TREES OF WILSON

Wilson's Family Heritage

Chronicles of the
Wilson County Genealogical Society

January 2011 Volume 20 Number 1

President's Message

We hope that you had a good holiday, were able to spend time with your families, and made memories to cherish. The rushing around and gatherings of the holidays are over, and now we settle back in our normal daily lives. During the winter days, we have a chance to get back to our family research.

A recent Associated Press article "Family Medical History Called 'Best Kept Secret' in Care," written by Lauran Neergaard, strongly advises each of us to add a family tree to our medical records. The subtitle, "Uncovering all the diseases that lurk in your family tree can trump costly genetic testing in predicting what illnesses you may face," almost says it all. The author continued by quoting research that has found that a "family health history" can be effective "in predicting what illnesses you and your children are likely to face."

So now is the time to get out the death certificates that you have collected. Make a new family chart, entering the causes of death. Expand that by entering other illnesses experienced by your relatives. Talk with your parents, siblings, aunts, uncles, and cousins to get all the information that you can. Look for patterns of illnesses which might predict a future problem. The more information you have, the better you can inform your doctor.

The U. S. Surgeon General operates a free website https://familyhistory.hhs.gov that helps people create a family health history. Compile yours! Share the information!

JOSHUA LAWRENCE

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Lawrence, Elder Joshua was a native of North Carolina. He was a great sinner but found a great Saviour, who called him by His grace and made him one of the ablest and boldest ministers of the New Testament in modern times. For more than forty years he advocated powerfully and fearlessly, both from pulpit and press, liberty of conscience, the specialty, spirituality and efficacy of God's salvation, and the unscripturalness and corruption of all the money-based religious institutions of the nineteenth century notwithstanding storms of slander and vituperation, and threats against his life, and, during the latter part of his life, great physical debility and suffering. He was profoundly acquainted with the scripture and church history. Few men could command larger audiences, or so entertain the attention of hearers. He was sometimes known, while asleep, to give out a hymn, sing, pray and preach a long sermon, without remembering anything of it when he awoke. He was pastor of several churches. His church at Tarboro experienced in his last days, a glorious revival for which he had long prayed.

He was born in Edgecombe County, September 10, 1778, and died in the same county, January 23, 1843, was reared on a farm and had not the advantages of a liberal education, united with the church in early manhood and began preaching at the age of twenty-three. He was a member

A 17-year-old Wilson County girl died in a local hospital yesterday afternoon just 15 days after she was bitten on the back of the neck by a wood tick carrying the Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

The girl, Mary Alice Harrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harrell, was bitten by the tick on Thursday two weeks ago and was taken sick the following Saturday.

It is Wilson County's first spotted fever death, though several cases have been reported in the last few years in the county.

The disease has been reported in several places in the state this year and in the last several years has made much headway east of the Mississippi, where it is believed to have come with WPA cattle.

Deceased is survived by her parents and two brothers, Jonas Davis and William Ernest Harrell. Funeral services were held from the home this afternoon at 4:30 and were conducted by the Rev. N. E. Gresham. Interment was in the Edwards Cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MISS HARRELL

Funeral services for Miss Mary Alice Harrell, were held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harrell in Gardners Township, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with a large number of relatives and friends gathering to pay final tribute. Rev. L. B. Manning conducted the services and interment was made in the Edwards Cemetery, near Crisp.

Pallbearers were Luther and Conway Bridgers, Gray Horton, Richard Webb, Fred Lewis and Curtis Owens, Jr. Flower bearers were: Misses Dorothy Bridgers, Irene Winstead, Virginia Jefferson, Hazel and Agnes Moore, Blanche Bridgers, Charlotte Thomas, Adel Etheridge, Myrtle Wiggs and Lucille Proctor.

Miss Harrell died Sunday afternoon in a local hospital where she had been suffering from spotted fever for several weeks.

[Contributor's note: The death certificate, filed September 5, 1938, of Mary Alice Harrell gave her residence as Elm City, Rt. #1, date of birth as April 8, 1921, death August 7, 1938, her parents as Jonas and Nancy Ann Harrell, and place and cause of death as Woodard-Herring Hospital from Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever from onset on July 22nd, 1938, Hunt Funeral Home, undertaker.

SIDNEY RUFUS ALLEY AND FAMILY

Introduction

The Alley family originated before 1860 in eastern Virginia. Sources state that Alamance and Buckingham Counties and Petersburg, Virginia, were early homes of this family.[1] Some good news influenced the Alley family to move south by at least 1860 when the official census recorder enumerated them in Wilson County, N. C. At that time the R. D. Alley family included father Richard, his wife Elderena and two very young sons, Richard L. and Sidney.[2]

Richard Dabney Alley and wife Ella Reeves

The parents of Sidney Rufus Alley, Richard and Ella Alley, decided after his birth in 1859 to move to the small town of Wilson, North Carolina, likely because there were better opportunities for a builder in the carpentry trade in this rural town which would grow in time as the relatively new Wilmington-Weldon Railroad would soon bring some prosperity to that area. By at least the 16th of June in 1860, the Alleys were reported living and working in Wilson, N. C. Father Richard Alley was 27 years old and Elderena A. Alley was 26 years of age.[3] The first son Richard Littleton Alley was reported as being born in 1856, and Sidney Rufus Alley was less than a year old as he had just been born on the 30th of November 1859, in Petersburg, Virginia.[4] Richard Alley and Ella Reeves were married about 1854 maybe in Petersburg, Virginia.[5]

The Civil War thrust itself upon North Carolina, Virginia, and the other Confederate States by 1861 and interrupted the normal flow of life. Richard D. Alley may have been in the War as a Richard D. L. Alley was reported in The North Carolina Troops, Vol. II as having served in Cavalry Companies H of the 7th Regiment and F of the 16th Regiment and was paroled in Goldsboro, N. C., on the 1st of May in 1865.[6] The lack of personal information in this source makes it uncertain that this was the Richard Alley here under study.

During the war years (1861-1865), Richard and Ella had one and possibly two more children. William J. Alley, most often referred to as "Willie Alley," was born in 1862. About the end of the war in 1865 or a little later, their first daughter Anna E. Alley was born. She was most often called "Annie Alley." Before the 1870 Wilson County Census, there were other children born to Richard and Ella Alley. In 1868 Ella may have had twins born to her as a Virginia and a Walter appear to have been born in those years according to the 1870 and 1880 Wilson County Census. Also in the 1860's, another son named Branch was born in 1869.[7] No surviving record of these children were found by this writer after 1880. Charles R. Alley was born into this family in 1874, and the following year or so the last child, Wesley G. Alley was born to Richard and Ella Alley.[8] Plenty of records were found on these two sons over the next forty or more years.

Richard Dabney Alley and Ella Reeves Alley appeared in the 1900 Wilson County Census together for the last time.[9] No graves were found in Wilson County for either in the normal sources. Ella died by 1902 according to an Edgecombe County marriage record of that year when son Sidney R. Alley married Lelia Keech in Tarboro, N. C.[10] Richard D. Alley was listed in the Wilson City Directory for 1908-1909 as a contractor living at 400 East Barnes Street.[11] He was not found in the 1910 Census. Recent information discovered by Genealogy & Local History Librarian Traci Thompson of the Braswell Library in Rocky Mount, N. C., revealed that R. D. Alley died in Dillon, South Carolina, on the 27th of December 1916. The 1900 D. C. Census indicated that other Alley members were more interested in moving north than south.[12]

Sidney Rufus Alley

Sidney Alley first appeared in the 1860 Wilson County Census as the one year old son of Richard and Elderena Alley. He was next recorded in the 1870 Wilson County Census as an eleven year old in the household of Richard and Ella Alley in Wilson, N. C. By the 1880 Wilson County Census, Sidney was 21 years old, and evidence from the Census of that year indicates Sidney Rufus Alley had taken on a life long responsibility for his future economic well-being. The Census of 1880 recorded his profession as "photographer".[13] He had acquired, in the very recent year or two, qualifications to be recognized as a professional photographer. His father may have sent him to Baltimore, Maryland, or another place to learn the trade that would support him well for the rest of his life. One source stated, "Mr. S. R. Alley started business in 1872 and for eight years traveled the State."[14] Sidney may have been an apprentice to an experienced photographer when he was quite young. It is not clear at this time when, where and how he qualified himself for the photography trade. What is clear is that he was in Wilson by 1880 and working in his profession.[15] He must have done well and business was plentiful, as he took in a partner Francis Marion Winstead early in the 1880's. Alley may have trained Winstead in their early years together. Their business was called the A & W Photo Gallery in Wilson. They were excellent in their trade and additional opportunities presented themselves to Alley and Winstead as they expanded their photography business to Tarboro, N. C. and maybe elsewhere too. By 1887 S. R. Alley sold out his Wilson partnership to Marion Winstead and thereafter devoted his time largely to the Tarboro studio.[16]

Sidney Rufus Alley's Person Life

It was about the time Sidney Alley sold to Winstead his partnership in Wilson that, at age 28, he married for the first time. The Wilson County Courthouse records reveal that on the 24th of November 1887, at Wilson, Sid R. Alley married 21 year old Annie B. Hudson, the daughter of E. T. and Anna E. Hudson.[17] Twenty months into the marriage on the 20th of July 1889, Annie Hudson Alley died, and Sidney Alley buried her in Wilson's new Maplewood Cemetery. Sidney secured for Annie a very nice headstone which stands over her grave today marking her earthly remains.[18]

Sometime after moving to Tarboro to operate his photo studio, he met 22 year old Susan R. Knight, daughter of the late W. H. Knight and A. E. Knight. They wed in Tarboro at the home of R. H. Rowe on the 1st of April 1891.[19] Fate was not kind to Sidney Alley as second wife Susan Knight Alley died twenty seven months into the marriage. She did give birth to a son Sidney Rufus Alley, Jr., in August of 1892. Young Sidney, Jr., failed to survive beyond about six years of age as he died on the 21st of June 1898. Both Susan and her son were buried by Sidney, Sr., in the downtown Tarboro Primitive Baptist Church Cemetery.[20]

One would think after this dreadful luck in marriage and family, Sidney Alley would have called enough was enough, but, obviously that is not human nature. On the 2nd of December 1902, after 33 year old widow Lelia Shaw Keech came into his studio to be photographed, they developed a friendship that turned into love.[21] They were married in Tarboro, in the home of the bride. Sidney R. Alley was 43 years old at this third marriage.[22] No evidence was found by this writer that Sidney and Lelia Alley ever had any children.[23]

No record was found in the Wilson County Courthouse that indicated S. R. Alley had ever owned property there. However, in the Edgecombe County Courthouse the record there indicates that in 1904 on the 9th of September Sidney and Lelia Alley purchased from merchant David and his wife Hannah Zander Lictenstein, who had moved to Richmond, Virginia, their very nice and large home at 900 Main Street, in Tarboro, N. C. In 1913 the Alleys evidently added an additional lot to their original home place.[24]

Sidney Alley appears to have operated his photographic business alone except for a short period when he sold his studio to Orren W. Turner in 1907 but soon returned to the business as a partner until Turner, in April of 1908, moved to Wilson and bought Francis Marion Winstead's gallery when Winstead retired.[25] Alley continued to operate his studio in Tarboro until 1918. The Edgecombe County Courthouse records indicate that Sidney and Lelia Alley sold their home on 900 Main Street on the 2nd of January 1918, to Martha E. Weaver, the wife of J. B. Weaver. The selling price was $5,500.00.[26]

The Washington, D.C., Years

One might wonder why photographer Sidney R. Alley and wife Lelia Shaw Alley decided to move to Washington, D. C., and open a photographic business there. After this writer researched the family of Richard Dabney Alley, father of Sidney, the census records beginning in 1900 for the District of Columbia indicated that Sidney's brother Charles R. Alley and family had moved there to work and in due time older brother Richard L. Alley and his family also moved north to Washington to work. The youngest Alley brother, Wesley G., who was a photographer also, moved there to ply his trade in the Capital City.[27] It seems obvious to this writer that Sidney's brothers had some influence which resulted in his moving to D. C. There likely were other motives also. The photographic opportunity there would be greater and likely much more exciting. Reports indicate that S. R. Alley was an excellent photographer and conducted his business in a very professional manner. He had been a successful photographer for about 40 years therefore his confidence level likely was such that he knew he could succeed very well among the Washington, D. C., trade.

The Alleys can be found in the District of Columbia census records beginning in 1900. Gradually as the Alley brothers and their families moved from Wilson, N. C., to Washington, D. C., by 1920 four of them were there in their new living area. With Sidney R. and Lelia Shaw Alley's move from Edgecombe County, they were the last of the Alley family to move north, and they are found on the 1920 District of Columbia Census records living and working there. By the 1930 census report for Washington, D. C., some significant changes in the Alley family had taken place. The census report for that year listed Richard Littleton Alley, but it stated in the collection of records that he had just died on the 14th of April in 1930.[28] Also, youngest brother Wesley G. Alley and his wife Lottie L. Alley (this was the first time a wife was listed for 54 year old Wesley) were living in Baltimore, Maryland. Wesley, it was stated, was now a newspaper photographer.[29] In the D. C. Census record of 1930, Sidney R. Alley was listed as 70 years old, but he still had a "photographic studio." Lelia Shaw Alley was by this time listed as 54 years old. They lived in a $9,000.00 home and had rented out space for boarders.[30] Their home was recorded as 1474 Harvard Street.[31] The 1940 U. S. Census has not been released to the public therefore the conditions and characteristics of Sidney Alley and his wife Lelia can't be deduced at present for that time period.

The Final Years of Sidney and Lelia Alley

It must have been very interesting to have lived in the Nation's Capital City during the Great Depression, World War II and the years thereafter. It is very possible that by 1940 Sidney Alley might have been retired from his photographic career. At present this writer has limited resources covering the Washington years though there are some primary sources there that need to be harvested. Maybe a future opportunity will present itself so the information that has been saved and recorded can be presented as Part Two of the Sidney and Lelia Alley story. However, it is known that he and Lelia Alley lived in Washington, D. C., until Sidney died on the 1st of October 1947, after an eighteen day stay in the Gallinger Municipal Hospital in Washington, D. C. Lelia Alley buried Sidney in the Cedar Hill Cemetery in D. C.[32]

After some additional time there in Washington and before 1950, Lelia decided to move back to her home state and birth area to be near to her siblings, R. F. Shaw, Pattie Shaw Larkin, Margaret Shaw

Williams, Estelle Shaw Hollingsworth and other kin.[33] According to the 1950 City Directory of Rocky Mount, N. C., Lelia was staying with her sister Estelle Hollingsworth at 119 South Tillery Street.[34] Lelia made her will on the 3rd of December 1947.[35] She obviously was impressed to put her estate in legal order soon after Sidney died that year. Lelia seems to have continued to live in Rocky Mount,[36] but by 1952 her health was such that she went to stay in a rest home in Goldsboro, N. C., and there on the 20th of June 1952 she died in Wayne County.[37]

After Lelia Shaw Alley moved to Rocky Mount, N. C., she had her husband's remains moved from his original burial location in Washington, D. C., to the City Cemetery in Rocky Mount. Linda S. Moore, the Pineview Cemetery Supervisor, supplied this writer with the following information, "Sidney Rufus Alley was interred in Pineview Cemetery June 30,1950. Other sources indicate that he was moved from Mount Olivet Cemetery, Washington, D. C., to Pineview after wife, Lelia Shaw Alley, moved back to Halifax County to be near her sister." When Lelia Shaw Alley died in 1952, she was laid to rest by her husband's side in section 46 of the Pineview Cemetery.[38] On the 26th of June 1952, the will that Lelia had written back in 1947 was filed in the Nash County Courthouse records. She left her cash, U. S. Bonds, silver, watch, diamond ring, brooch and crochet spread to her siblings and children.[39]

Conclusion

Sidney Rufus Alley was a professional photographer for maybe sixty years or more in Wilson, Tarboro and Washington, D. C. His first 40 years are fairly well known. However, further investigation of his more than 20 years work in the Nation's Capital from 1918 to the 1940's deserves further study and research to discover his photographic contributions in Washington, D. C., during the decades of that very important time in our national history which included the 1920's, the Depression Years, the years of World War II, and the beginning years of the Cold War. It seems reasonable to expect exciting additional results from those years of photographic historical significance in the career of Sidney Rufus Alley during his business life in Washington, D. C.[40]

Endnotes and Sources

1. Most all sources, especially the census and marriage records, state that Richard Dabney, Ella, Richard L. and Sidney R. Alley were all from in Virginia. 12. Traci Thompson printed from ancestry.com the death certificate for contractor R. D. Alley from Dillon, South Carolina. He died at age 84 from being kicked in the head by a horse. He was buried in Dillon, S. C. R. D. Alley was probably staying with his daughter Annie Braddy who had married Lewton (Luton as per the U. S. Census) Capers Braddy in Wilson County, N. C. in 1887 then they moved back to L. C. Braddy's home area in S. C. See ancestry.com, U. S. Census 1900, for Charles and Annie Latham Alley. Charles was a telegraph operator in Washington, D. 14. See No. 4 above. Actually other sources made this same statement. Maury York of the Edgecombe County Memorial Library collected information on S. R. Alley for a 1988 exhibition entitled, "Tarboro's Mathew Brady: S. R. Alley." York's library file included at least three clippings which used this same statement. They were from different printed sources and may have come from a common original source. In reality it does not appear likely Alley started his photographic business at age 13 as this statement suggested.

HATTIE HENDERSON RICKS

Contributed by Lisa Y. Henderson

This is an excerpt from an interview I conducted with my grandmother, Hattie Henderson Ricks, in 1994. She grew up on Elba Street in east Wilson and attended the Colored Graded School. She was born near Dudley, N. C., in 1910 and died in Philadelphia in 2001.

"I had pneumonia twice. The first day I went down to Graded School, that day it rained. I come back there was a hole in my shoe, had pasteboard in there. And I slopped in all the water and got my feet wet. And then I'd go to sneezing and coughing. That's what Mama said, anyhow, and I taken with a fever, and I was sick that whole rest of the year. I mean, wasn't strong enough to go down to Graded School; she wouldn't let me go down there. So I stayed home, and Mama put all them old rags, that old flannel cloth, and she'd put it in red onions and hog lard. And so Mama said, "You know you oughtn not to got wet!" Well, how was I gon help from getting wet? Had to come from school! So that was the first year I went to school. I remember that. Honey, I had to wear a piece of cloth up here on my chest, one on the back, with Vicks salve and hog grease or whatever that stuff was, mixed all up together and pinned it to my undershirt. And I had pneumonia. And they was sitting up with me. Said I hadn't spoken in three days. And so that old clock where Annie Bell took, it was up there on the mantel, it struck two o'clock. Mama was sitting on one side of the stove, and Papa on the other. So I said to, when the clock struck, I said, It's two o'clock, aint it, Mama? And they thought I was dying. So I didn't think nothing bout it. I went on back to sleep. I didn't know nothing bout it. Said I had double pneumonia. So they all I was always sickly and puny, and: Give her anything she want, that's what Dr. Williams white doctor so he said, She can't live nohow. And that's when I had the pneumonia. And so I Didn't want nothing but water. So, Well, give her all the water she want cause she can't live nohow. But I fooled em! Dr. Williams gone, Mamas gone, all of em, and I'm sitting right here!"9

[Editor's note: The State Archives record did not state what these persons were being inoculated against, but Ms. Henderson did some research which suggests that it was for smallpox.

Under the Reports to the Surgeon-General, United States Marine-Hospital Service; Public Health Reports, United States; Smallpox in the United States as reported to the Surgeon-General, United States Marine-Hospital Service, December 28, 1901 to February 21, 1902, in North Carolina for the period between November 1 and December 31, 1901, there had been two deaths in our state. The breakdown of cases of the disease by county showed a significant outbreak in Wilson County. Of the counties immediately adjacent and Wilson County, these cases were reported:

County	Number of Cases
Edgecombe	5
Nash	20
Greene	7
Wayne	25
Wilson	60

There were more reports of vaccinations in the State Archives files. Those will be included in future issues of Trees of Wilson.

OBITUARIES NAMING DISEASE THAT CAUSED DEATH

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin, III

Wilson Times, June 11, 1897

J. F. Abrams

We regret to announce the death of Mr. J. F. Abrams which occurred at his home about three miles from this city last Friday afternoon. For over a year Mr. Abrams has been an invalid from that always fatal disease, consumption, and his friends had for a long time despaired his ever recovering and so on Friday he peacefully and quietly entered into rest. The deceased leaves a wife, but no children. He was a member of the Primitive Baptist church and died in a full assurance of faith. His remains were buried on Saturday. ...

Harriett Barnes

Died at the residence of her son, Mr. Wiley Barnes, in Wilson Co., Dec. 11th, 1895, Mrs. Harriet Barnes, wife of Mr. Burkhead Barnes, aged 75 years 11 months and a few days. Her physical health was remarkably good up to the month preceding her death, when she was taken with erysipelas in her arm and only lived about two weeks. It seems she was conscious that her last sickness had come. ... During her sickness she manifested much patience and Christian fortitude. Although she never made a public profession of religion but was ever a firm Old School Baptist in her views. ... She was an affectionate mother and grandmother and loved by all who knew her, and may the surviving sons and daughter ... receive consolation ... Written by a friend.

C. W. McKay

Mr. C. W. McKay died last Tuesday night at his home on Green street of Brights disease. Although he has long been a sufferer yet his death was unexpected at this time. The deceased was about 60 years old. He was buried in Fayetteville, his old home, by the Masons, he being a member of that order. The Wilson Lodge sent representation to the funeral.

Mr. McKay has been among us only a short while having entered into the crockery business here last year; yet he made many friends who mourn their loss.

Wilson Times, May 1, 1896

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God, the Grand Master of the Universe to summon the spirit of Bro. C. W. McKay, a member of this Lodge, into his presence Be it.

Resolved. That in his death this Lodge loses a faithful member, one ever ready to respond to the call of distress, the community an honest upright citizen, and his family a kind and indulgent husband and father.

To his bereaved family we tender our sincerest sympathy and commend them to Him who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.

Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, published in the town papers, and spread upon the minutes of our Lodge

Bessie Overman

Last Tuesday night, little Bessie the three year old daughter of Mr. J. S. Overman died of Malarial fever.

The little one had been sick some six or seven weeks, but was much better, so the fond parents thought; but the messenger of death came suddenly and made the bright home desolate. ...

Elder John Scott

The Goldsboro Headlight says that after suffering untold agony, Elder John Scott of the Primitive Baptist faith, died Sunday night of hydrophobia at his home in Wilson. A few months ago he was bitten by a rabid dog and although he had the madstone applied to his wound, the disease broke out upon him in its full fury a few days ago, making his sufferings heart-rendering to witness.

Wilson Times, July 21, 1899

Mrs. Nathan Sellers

Last Thursday afternoon, yesterday a week ago, Mrs. Nathan Sellers died in this city after a prolonged illness. Some months ago she had an attack of subacute meninegetis [sic.] and although relatives and friends knew her condition to be very precarious, in the hope that she could be benefitted she was brought to this city for treatment.

The remains were taken to Fremont last Friday morning for interment.

Mrs. Sellers was the daughter of the late Mr. Jesse Aycock, of Fremont, and a niece of Messrs. B. F. and C. B. Aycock.

About fourteen months ago she married Mr. Nathan Sellers, of Goldsboro.

The Argus of that city says:

"Her coming was a benediction to all those who had the pleasure of her acquaintance and friendship. She was kind-hearted and true, a womanly-woman—God's gift to man.

"The funeral services were held at Fremont, the home of the mother of Mrs. Sellers, this morning and the interment was made in the old family burying ground.

"The hearts of our people go out in deepest sympathy to the young husband in his great grief and bereavement, and to the sweet baby boy, who will never know a mother's fathomless love or tender caress."

of the Kehukee Association which was organized in 1765 and which never favored modern missionnsm [sic.] and was present at this association held at Log Chapel in Martin County in the year 1803 when the query in reference to missions, money-based societies, etc. was introduced by Elder Martin Ross. The subject matter of this query continued to be a subject of contention which he opposed with all his eloquence and ability until it ended in the unhappy and final division among the Baptists of this state in the year 1827. In this division he took a bold stand in defense of the ancient practice of the Baptists and sided with what is now known as the Primitive Baptists and ever remained one.

Though his enemies have endeavored to injure his strong and noble character and great influence as a preacher and writer by reporting that before he died he renounced the doctrine he had preached, yet an account of his sickness and death written by Elder R. D. Hart who was his yoke-fellow in the gospel fully denies and proves untrue such slanderous reports. On his death bed he said he had never been more fully established in the doctrine and practice for which he had for forty years contended, and only wished he could have preached it more.

SADY MAY BURRESS OBITUARY

Wilson Daily Times, November 18, 1910

Little Sady May Burress, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. And Mrs. John Burress, died on Thursday night at half past eight o'clock at the Sanatorium in Wilson, where she was carried on Wednesday night and an operation performed on her Thursday about eleven o'clock for appendicitis. She was taken sick on Tuesday night and died on Thursday night. She was born December 24th, 1901, and died November 9th, 1910. Her father had only been dead nine months. Her sister had only been dead eight months and twenty-five days. Both of them died with pneumonia. What this little child suffered is unknown to all except her God. She was a loving little girl, the beauty of their home and loved by all. ... She called all of the children that she had not seen that day before she died that night, and tried to sing a sweet little song, but she was so weak that her mother couldn't understand but very few words of it. She said the Lord was before her. About eight o'clock Dr. Eagles went in to see her and she showed him her ring, and she talked and tried to play with him. He asked her who gave her that pretty ring and she told him that her sister Annie gave it to her. ...

Her little body was laid to rest Friday evening in the Burress family cemetery at Saratoga. Much sympathy is extended this sad family in so many hours of bereavement.

TREES OF WILSON

Wilson's Family Heritage

Chronicles of the
Wilson County Genealogical Society

February 2011 Volume 20 Number 2

President's Message

I would like to express appreciation to our members who have been such a help in the preparation of Trees of Wilson. We are thankful for each article contributed by our members. Bible, land, cemetery, court records and wills are such valuable information! The results of members' research help others of the same family and provide guidance to others.

J. Robert Boykin has sent many clippings from old newspapers and from Zion's Landmark. He has acquired newspapers that were lost when fire destroyed the Wilson Times archives. Other articles are about news from the area.

Lisa Henderson has found many Wilson County records in National and North Carolina Archives and online files. They often provide information that is hard to find or that we may not have thought to look for.

Albert Page has written and submitted the stories of several families. They are so well researched, documented and written. I wish that we shared ancestors so that he would write stories about my family.

Wanda Taylor, Edna Woolard and Carol Forbes have typed articles in a computer ready format which is such a time saver when I put Trees together.

Carol Forbes and Frances Roberson are always here to help with the mailing of Trees.

Our members benefit from one another. You too can contribute material for Trees of Wilson, and we really need your help! Check your files for something that you can send.

WCGS MEETING

Wilson County Public Library
Assembly Room, February 22nd
7:00 PM

Please join us for our next meeting on February 22nd at the library.

Following the business session, Pete Williams, a WCGS member, will talk to us about Between the Waters of the Tar and Toisnot, a historical novel that he has recently published, in which he incorporated stories about his parents and their families.

Four generations of the Williams family farmed lands in Nash County. His mother's family, the Petway family, developed Silver Lake, a recreational and commercial complex near Wilson in the early 1920's. The book, a story of how his parents met, includes happenings that actually occurred in their families. The chapters are dated and cover events in 1861, 1895, 1915-1935, and 1942-1945. The book is very well written, and the stories are informational and entertaining.

Upcoming programs:
March 29—Gayle Kildoyle, Executive Director of the Tobacco Farm Life Museum in Kenly, N. C.
April 26—Terry Bryant, restoration of the remaining portion of Wilson Collegiate Institute/Wilson Confederate Hospital and plans for it to become a museum
May 31—TBA
September 27—TBA
October 25—TBA
November 29—Annual Meeting

PARROTT MEMBORN

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Mewborn, Elder Parrott, was a native of Lenoir County, N. C. He was born January 1, 1799, united with Bear Creek Church August, 1824, and was baptized by Elder Lewis Whitfield, was soon ordained to the gospel ministry and after nearly forty years of faithful service in the Lord's vineyard he died April 29, 1864. Elder Mewborn had a bright experience in his change from nature to grace, and could truly say "the Lord hath led me." He was considered a very able doctrinal, experimental and propheticical [sic.] preacher. Many important events, such as the Civil war, the overthrow of the Civil power of the Pope of Rome, etc., were prophesied by him and came to pass about the time predicted. For many years he was a great sufferer from rheumatism. His mind became deeply impressed with the miraculous cures of diseases made by Christ and he was given a desire to earnest prayer, and faith to believe that Christ would heal him. This He did, and in his writings he says: "There came virtue and love and filled my soul and I felt the good effects, rose up and began to praise the Lord and stood on the floor." More than twenty years have passed and I thank and praise the Lord that I have not had the rheumatic pains since." His life was an honorable, useful one and shed a good influence in the community in which he lived.
[Editor's note: His sons, George, Parrott, Jr., and D. A. Mewborn will be included in future issues of Trees of Wilson.]

Elisha and Milly Felton Family

According to Hugh Buckner Johnston's "Edgecombe County Census of 1790" there was not one single Felton listed in the county for that year.[1] However, the land deeds for Edgecombe County did list, by 1799, a Job Felton buying land from a Henry King.[2] Job Felton was listed from the 1800 Edgecombe County Census through the 1840 census with his family in the county.[3] He was not accounted for in the Edgecombe County 1850 Census.[4] Elisha Felton showed up for the first time in the 1804 land records of Edgecombe County. He bought 95 acres on "Autries Creek and Deep Branch" from Job Felton for $100.00. The land was next to Stephen Harrell and John Webb.[5] In 1806 Elisha Felton sold land to John Webb.[6] Elisha Felton was enumerated for the first time in the 1810 Edgecombe County Census.[7] Elisha and Job Felton may have been brothers as their ages are close to the same according to the 1810 census through the census of 1840.[8] They appeared to have been born around the 1770's.[9] Job possibly might have been the older brother or a first cousin.

In the 1810 Edgecombe County Census Elisha and Milly Felton had eight children living with them. There were four boys and four girls.[10] In the War of 1812, an Elisha Felton served with the artillery from Edgecombe County.[11] In 1814 and 1816 Elisha purchased land three times. He bought first from John Statton, then from Dixon Ellis and later from Jethro Barnes, Jr.[12] Elisha Felton was listed in the 1815 Tax List for Edgecombe County. On page 20, the list does not indicate Elisha owned land.[13] Job Felton was recorded as having 140 acres worth $350.00.[14]

In Dorothy Williams Potter's 1820 Federal Census of North Carolina, on page 23, she listed Elisha Felton with ten children. Job Felton was listed on page 23 also, and Stephen Felton and his wife were accounted for on page 19. This Stephen Felton was probably the oldest son of Elisha and Milly. Throughout the decade of the 1820's, Elisha Felton sold land four times, and he bought twice. Stephen Felton was active during this time also buying and selling land.[15] Elisha Felton was listed on the 1830 Edgecombe County Census, and in his household there were seven children.[16] In the decade of the 1830's, Elisha Felton bought land twice and sold some land to his son William Felton. In 1840 Elisha and Milly Felton were listed with five children at home. Both Elisha and Milly were listed as being between the ages of 60 and 70 years. Job Felton was listed as being in the same age category.[17]

The 1850 Edgecombe County Census listed for the first time the names of the family members at home then in Elisha Felton's family. Elisha was reported to be 76 years old and a farmer with 100 acres cleared and 630 acres that were unimproved. His real estate was valued at $1,000.00. He had three slaves, a male and a female 50 years in age and one 8 year old female. His wife Milly was described as being 80 years old. Daughter Celia was 52 years old and Purity Pittman, who was blind, was 46 years of age. Purity may have been one of Elisha and Milly's daughters. Brothers Hardy and Duncan Skinner were living with the Felton's and described as "farmers".[18] Very likely they were working for the Feltons and possibly there was some kin between them.[19] It seems the other children of Elisha and Milly were married with their own families and living apart by this date.[20] The land records of Edgecombe County tell that Elisha Felton had land transactions in 1851,1852 and in 1853. He sold land twice and bought some land once during this time.[21]

Wife Milly Felton, it appears from the records, died between 1850 and 1852 as the marriage records of Edgecombe County indicate that Elisha Felton married a second time on the 26th of August 1852, to widow Basheba Brinkley Varnell.[22] Basheba Brinkley was first married to Levi Varnell on the 26th of December 1822, in Edgecombe County.[23] Basheba brought property to her marriage to Elisha Felton.[24]

Wilson County Courthouse records filed by son William Felton and James Barnes report that "Elisha Felton late of the County of Wilson died during the month of September AD 1858 having a last will and testament, which was duly admitted to probate at the October term AD 1858 of this court."[25] Invaluable information about the Elisha and Milly Felton family was included in this will. Some children and grandchildren were identified. The estate was divided up by the executors according to Elisha Felton's desires. Three sons were mentioned in the will: Reuben, Stephen and William Felton. Four daughters were also identified: Celeigh, Kasiah, Sally and Anna. In this writer's mind there is the question as to whether Purity Pittman was a daughter or not? She was nearly always with the family and documented in the census reports. She may have married a Pittman man earlier and he died.[26] Whatever her relationship, if any, she was not provided for in the Elisha Felton will in 1852. It appears also that some of the children of Elisha and Milly were not noted in this will and therefore elude efforts to identify them at this point.[27] They might have beem dead at this time, or Elisha might have settled with them before his death. The record is not obvious, so they can't be accounted for in their family of orientation at this writing. Daughter Celeigh Felton seems never to have married and therefore had no descendants.[28]

In the Wilson County will Elisha Felton mentioned the following children and grandchildren by families:[29]

Stephen and Jemimah Amerson Felton: Warren, Martha Ann (wife of John Walker), James, Jerusha and Thomas Felton

Reuben Felton and wife (unknown): John, Dory Ann, Elizabeth, Manoah, Franklin and Columbus Felton

Kasiah Felton and Starkey Howard: Nancy (wife of John Thigpen), Millisant (wife of Hardy Skinner), Elizabeth (wife of John Edwards), Cynthy, Polly Ann, and Margaret Howard

William Felton and Lydia Skinner: Elizabeth (wife of William Burrows), Shade, Robert, Millisant Warren, Ann Felton

Sallie Felton and Amos D. Owens: John F., Pennina (wife of Duncan Skinner), William, Reuben, Elisha,

Robert, Levy, Amos, and Sarah Owens.

Anna Felton and Joshua Walston: Stephen Henry Walston and Cely Ann Walston

William and Lydia Felton's family can be traced in the Wilson County records. William married a second time after Lydia died to widow Sarah Page Amerson.[30] Sallie and Amos Owens' family is also traceable in the census and land records of Wilson County. Kasiah Felton and Starkey Howard's family left plentiful records in the County of Wilson records. Kasiah died about 1849 and is not in the 1850 Census with her family.[31] Husband Starkey Howard married a second wife Emma Liza Pippen in 1852 and had a second family by her.[32] Son Stephen Felton and his wife Jemimah moved south into several states and can be found on the census records in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi.[33] Reuben Felton may also have moved out of North Carolina. At present this writer has no record of his location.

After looking at the census records and Wilson County maps for several years, this writer feels that Elisha Felton's land was very close to Starkey Howards' 347 acres,[34] there near the Wilson and Pitt County line on road 222 heading to Fountain from Saratoga, N. C. No graveyard has been found for the Elisha Felton family. However, the Starkey Howard family cemetery is accounted for and is located in the Saratoga Township on Highway 222, .5 miles east of Galloway Road (SR 1532), on the north side of road 222.[35] From the records, this writer feels sure that the Elisha Felton plantation/farm was near Starkey Howard's home, farm and graveyard. Hopefully, in the future the Elisha Felton family cemetery will be discovered.

Conclusion

The Feltons can be traced in the William Felton family line by the Felton family name. It can also be traced through Sally and Amos Owens or through Kasiah and Starkey Howard's children. Anna Felton and husband Joshua Walston had only two offspring, and they produced no children that this writer is aware of. It is possible that research might flush out Stephen and Jemimah Felton's family or maybe even Reuben Felton's family. It will be a challenge to accomplish more than the Wilson County Feltons mentioned above. There is enough information to write family biographies on the William and Lydia Skinner Felton family and his two sister's families, Sally Felton and Amos Owens and Kasiah Felton and Starkey Howard. It will take the usual interest and research effort to accomplish these projects. They await a future place in one of the issues of Lines and Pathways or Trees of Wilson.

OBITUARIES NAMING DISEASE THAT CAUSED DEATH

Miss Ellen Clark Dead.

Last night the community was shocked when it became known that Miss Ellen Clark had died at Montreat, where she and her sister, Mrs. H. G. Connor, Jr., had gone for recreation.

About two weeks ago Miss Clark was taken ill, but no anxiety was felt over her condition until a few days ago when a trained nurse became necessary.

This week her condition became serious and yesterday her physicians decided that an operation for peritonitis was necessary, and this operation was performed yesterday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Miss Clark passed away about 5:30.

Only yesterday morning relatives here received a telegram stating that she was better and the news of her death was therefore a shock to her relatives and friends.

Miss Clark was a most popular lady and a leading light, not only in social circles, but in all movements for charity and philanthrophy. Probably she did more to aid distress and to add to the pleasure of the Wilson young people than any one else of the city, and her death causes a vacancy in the social and benevolent life of Wilson difficult to fill.

She leaves two brothers and one sister, Mrs. H. G. Connor, Jr., and Mess. W. T. and James J. Clark, with whom we deeply sympathize in their bereavement.

The remains will reach here tonight at 11 o'clock and the funeral services will be held from the residence at 10:30 in the morning and will be conducted by the pastor of the deceased, Rev. J. C. Shive, of the Presbyterian church, of which organization she was an active and zealous member. She was also a member of the choir of that church and from the members has been received a most appropriate and beautiful floral offering, a lyre of roses.

One of the strings is broken embematical of the loss that is felt at the departure of the deceased, who was ever present when health would permit. [Typed as originally printed.]

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Davis Dead.

Last evening at 11 o'clock Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Davis died at her home on Green street in this city. Some time ago Mrs. Davis suffered a paralytic stroke from which she never fully recovered and Wednesday she had an attack of apoplexy which caused her death. Mrs. Davis was 67 years old and leaves her husband and several children surviving. She [was] a member of the First Baptist church of Wilson and the funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. W. Blanchard, at the home this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The interment was made in Maplewood cemetery.

[Editor's note: The 1900 Wilson County Census recorded the Davis family as household #146 in Wilson Township. John M. Davis, painter, was born April 1845, married 30 years, born in N. Living with them were their daughters Ula L., born April 1871, milliner; Minnie L., born August 1875; and Mattie S., born March 1880, all born in N. C. The inscription on Sarah's cemetery marker gives the information: "Sarah E. Davis (Mrs. John) b. 27 DEC 1843, d. 28 APR 1910. The inscription on John's marker gives the information: "John M. Davis, b. 24 APR 1844, d. 21 FEB 1923, 'A Confederate Soldier.'" Wilson County, North Carolina, Federal Census of 1900, abstracted by Joan L. Howell and Janice C. Mr. Will Drake Dead.

News was received here yesterday evening from Florence, S. C., stating that Mr. Will Drake had died at his home there from the results of a carbuncle. As his relatives and friends in Wilson were unaware of his serious condition, the news of his death was unexpected and shocking.

Mr. Drake is a native Wilsonian who several years ago located in Florence, where he successfully engaged in business, his time being mainly devoted to the management of a large farm. He was a son of the late Dr. Drake and is pleasantly remembered by his old friends here, for he was universally liked, and those who knew him regret his death. Will Drake was a popular, useful and honorable gentleman and "lies down to pleasant dreams." The funeral services were conducted this afternoon at Mullins, S. C., at three o'clock. Among those who attended the last sad rites were his brothers, Messrs Walter and Robert Drake, of Wilson.

[Editor's note: The 1900 Wilson County Census recorded the Wilson Township household #62 of Nicholas Drake, physician, born May 1834, married 42 years; daughter Zurna, born September 1864; son Robert H., druggist, born July 1876; daughter Hattie, born June 1877; son Benjamin H., Dr... for pictures, born June 1877. The grave marker in Maplewood Cemetery records Nicholas' death with this inscription: N. T. Drake, M. D., b. 13 MAY 1832, d. 14 FEB 1904, and on the double marker his daughter-in-law Lilian Farrow Drake, b. 07 AUG 1876, d. 06 NOV 1910, "Wife of R. H. Drake."

W. H. Drake, 30, was married to Maggie Taylor, 20, on March 26, 1899, by James S. Woodard, Primitive Baptist Minister, at Mr. Woodard's home in Gardners Township. In 1900 Walter Drake, salesman, born January 1870, married 1 year; his wife Maggie, born January 1879; and their son Earnie, born January 1900; lived in Wilson Township, household #171. Wilson County, North Carolina, Federal Census of 1900, Howell and Sharpe; Wilson County, North Carolina, Cemeteries—Volume IV, Howell; Marriages of Wilson County, North Carolina, 1855-1899, abstracted by J. Lera Gully

The death angel visited the home of Mr. John A. Gully June 11, 1910, and took from him his youngest daughter, Lera, age eight years, four months and seventeen days. May 26 she was taken with typhoid fever. All was done for her that a skilled physician and loving hands could do, but in vain. God called her to come up higher to live with him, and on Saturday night, June 11, at 12:30 o'clock her spirit was gently borne back to God who gave it. She leaves a father, a sister, two grandmothers, a grandfather and many relatives and friends to whom we would say weep not for she has gone ahead to make the way brighter, to make our desire for heaven greater. She adds to heaven more "beautiful beckoning hands." Little Lera won the hearts of every one for to know her was to love her.

In the school room she was the pride of her teachers, always so cheerfully, so faithfully performing every duty assigned her, always striving to excel. On the play ground her's was the merriest, happiest voice. Her sweet disposition made her the favorite among her schoolmates. In her home she was always so cheerful and happy, ever singing the beautiful songs she loved and performing some little deed of kindness for her loved ones. Oh, how sadly we shall all miss her, but the memory and influence of her pure, beautiful and spotless life will live on in the hearts of those who loved her, making them purer and better for having known her.

"Gone to the beautiful land,
Gone with the angel band;
Freed from earth's sorrow and care,
Safe with the dear Savior there;
All that is glorious to share;
Gone to the beautiful land,
Come with the angel band."

May God comfort the bereaved ones.

ALICE DICKINSON.

[Editor's Note: J. A. Gulley, 24, Wake Co. resident; and Sallie A. Watson, 25, Spring Hill resident; were married by P. T. Lucas, Baptist Minister, on December 22, 1897, at the residence of Levin Watson. The 1900 Wilson County Census transcription, Spring Hill Township household #2, records the family as John A. [Editor's note: While doing a spot check in the Wilson County 1900 Census, the following were identified:

Isaac W. Lamm, physician, born September 1864, married seven years, lived in the Town of Lucama. His wife, Ola M., born January 1870, daughter Vance D., born April 1894; and son Jasper H., born December 1896, born in Virginia; lived with him.

L. F. Lucas may have been Larry Lucas, farmer, born February 1849, who also lived in the Town of Lucama with his wife Martha, daughters Mary L. and Ethel, and son Authur.

J. R. Renfrow was probably James R. Rentfrow, farmer, born February 1867, married seven years, who lived in Spring Hill Township. His wife Linda, born October 1877; their daughter Bessie, born September 1895; and son Robert, born April 1896, lived with him.

Burket Lamm may have been the Burket Lamm, farmer, born January 1845, married 27 years, who lived in Spring Hill Township. His wife Susan, daughters Lenetta, Luetta, Sallie A., and Dollie F., and son James A., lived with him.

Frank Farmer and Eliza Farmer may have been the Town of Lucama household #92. Frank Farmer, farm laborer, was born December 1818, married ten years; his wife Elisa, was born in 1852, had nine births with one child living. His mother-in-law Faithy Barden, born in 1830, lived with them.

The Dew's, Isaac, Easter, Martha, Lecy, and Edget, may have been the Town of Lucama household #177. Isaac J. Dew, farmer, born in May 1844, married 32 years, and his wife Easter, born January 1850, had thirteen children with eight living. Their daughters Martha C., born March 1877; Arbecie, born January 1880; Laura, born June 1882; Georgia A., born August 1883; and Louesa, born September 1888; and son Agette, born February 1886; lived with them. Wilson County, North Carolina, Federal Census of 1900, abstracted by Joan L. (Elisha and Milly Felton Family, continued from page 16)

28. Celeigh Felton was last listed in the 1870 Wilson County Census as being 73 years old. Never was she listed any where as married and with children of her own. See Joan L. Howell, Wilson County, North Carolina, Federal Census of 1870, pg. 124, no. 104. See H. B. Johnston, The First Federal Census of Wilson County, 1860, for "Celia Felton", no. 810-805. She was enumerated as being born in 1790. Three people were listed in her Saratoga home: Mary born in 1856, Delpha born Nov. 1859, and Elisha Felton 35 years old. Maybe Mary and Delpha were his children.
29. Same as no. 25.
30. Sarah Page Amerson's first husband was Wiley Amerson and the father of their three girls, Mary, Caroline and Sarah E. Amerson. Wiley Amerson was killed in the Civil War on the 13th of January 1863, at Drewry's Bluff, Virginia, The N. C. Troops, Vol. X, pg. 351. Sometime after Wiley's death, Sarah/Sally Amerson married widower William Felton who was considerably older than Sally. William Felton's first wife Lydia Skinner had died by the time William and Sally were listed in the Wilson County Census for 1870. No graveyard has been found for the William Felton family in Wilson County.
31. Same as no. 9 above, pg. 99, under "Last Page (not numbered)." The very last entry is "Kenah Howard, 42 years old, died in February 1849 of miscarried 1-mo." This writer believes this is Kasiah Felton Howard. She is not listed with her Starkey Howard family on page 41 in the 1850 Edgecombe Census.
32. Same as no. 22 above, pg. 78, for marriage of Starky Howard and Emeliza Pippen, 30 Nov. 1852.
33. Use Ancesterv. Com, 1850 Louisiana Census for Stephen Felton family.

March 2011 Volume 20 Number 3

President's Message

Last month I spoke to you about ways that WCGS members have helped in the preparation of Trees of Wilson and encouraged other members to submit articles about their families, transcriptions of court records, wills, land deeds, etc. Others may have time to type in computer ready format newspaper articles or other documents that have already been contributed for use. Keep your minds alert for material that would be of interest to our members.

The first project undertaken by WCGS, spearheaded by Joan L. Howell, was to survey of all the cemeteries in Wilson County. Many members spent numerous hours visiting cemeteries and recording their location and the inscriptions on the grave markers. Subsequently, four volumes of cemetery records have been published providing an invaluable record of Wilson County family records.

Sadly, many of those cemeteries have vanished as farmers or nature have destroyed them, so our books provide a lasting record. Not only do they give birth and date records and often family connections, they give a location for the family.

However, the project is incomplete. At least two more volumes are expected. Some of the surveys have been done, but there are still cemeteries that have not been recorded. On site proofreading is needed for these cemeteries. We need to do it before the cemeteries or markers are lost.

If you can help, please let us know by phone 252-243-1660 or email at wcgs.earthlink.net .

GEORGE MEWBORN, AND PARROTT MEWBORN, JR.

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Mewborn, Elder George, the oldest son of Elder Parrott Mewborn was born December 26, 1824. As a boy he was bright and industrious, quick to learn and a great lover of books. In early manhood he taught school and worked as a clerk, but by experience learned that he preferred farming, at which he was successful. He was, in 1848, married to Miss Nancy Hardy. Some years later he was made to feel his sinful condition by nature and what he must be by grace to meet God in peace, was given hope in Jesus and in 1850 united with the church at Mewborn's and was baptized by his father. He served his church as clerk and deacon and during the latter years of his life "commenced to speak as a minister and bid fair to become an able minister though he was never ordained to the full work of the ministry." He died in 1859 in his thirty-fourth year of age.

Mewborn, Elder Parrott, Jr., son of Elder Parrot Mewborn, was born August 21, 1834, and died April 15, 1881. He served in the Civil War, and was in the fall of 1865 married to Miss Lany Hardy. In 1868 he was given a sweet hope in Jesus and united with the church at Mewborns, Green County, and was baptized by Elder T. W. Wills. In 1873 he was ordained to the gospel work by Elders S. Pate and Thos. W. Wills. He was a good disciplinarian and great lover of peace.

OBITUARIES NAMING THE DISEASE THAT CAUSED THE DEATH

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin, III

Wilson Daily Times, January 3, 1919

MILLARD T. BAGLEY

In the prime of his life and in his thirty-first year, Millard T. Bagley was summoned this morning at 8:30 o'clock. Only a few days ago Millard was stricken with Spanish Influenza which rapidly developed into pneumonia and his condition grew critical until the end came this morning.

He was born and lived his life among his relatives and friends at Stantonsburg, and truly he was a friend and favorite to all who knew him. He was kind, courteous, and big-hearted, with an unusually bright and sunny disposition. He was never found wanting in words of sympathy, comfort and cheer, choosing always to administer rather than to be administered unto.

He leaves a devoted wife, a little girl and a host of friends to mourn their loss.

He will be buried tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon at Stantonsburg.

[Editor's notes: The 1900 census for Stantonsburg Township included the household of Annie C. Bagley, born January 1859, and her son Millard T., born October 1887. Millard T. Bagley, born October 4, 1887, died January 1, 1919, was buried in Stantonsburg Town Cemetery.

The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

In 1900, Grover Rowe, born May 1871, farmer; his sister, Lucy, born August 1869; and brother, Howard M., born September 1867, collector-notes; lived in the Town of Black Creek.

From the statements from Moore-Herring Hospital and Quinn-McGowen Furniture Company, it would appear that Lucy died on August 19, 1916, possibly from a kidney problem for which she was operated.

The Moore-Herring Hospital, located at the corner of Douglas and Green Streets, later became Woodard Herring Hospital. Quinn-McGowen Furniture Company, located on the corner of Goldsboro and Barnes Streets, later got out of the embalming and funeral business and became Quinn Furniture Company. Turlington & Moore, Registered Druggists, later became Morrison's Drug Store. The drug store, first located in Briggs Hotel, was established in 1906 with R. A. Turlington as president and treasurer, and L. S. Edwards as secretary. They had a very popular soda fountain. By 1916 E. S. Morrison had bought into the business, and the name changed to Turlington and Morrison. It was later located nearby with its own store front on Nash Street.

Zion's Landmark, September 15, 1909

MRS. MARY TYSON

By request of her daughter Mrs. R. B. Galoway, I will try to write an obituary notice of her dear old mother, Mrs. Mary Tyson. She was the daughter of Dempsey and Pollie Gay, and was born December 2, 1838, and departed this life June 30, 1909, making her stay on earth seventy years, six months and 28 days. In 1856 she was married to Gray Ellis, and unto this union were born eight children, five of them still survive. In 1877 she became a member of the Primitive Baptist church at White Oak and was baptized by Elder Jesse Baker. She was a consistent member as long as she was able to attend.

In 1903 her husband died and in 1904 she was again married to S. H. Tyson with whom she lived happily until his death which was May 1908. She stayed with her children the remainder of her days which were few in number. She was staying with her youngest daughter when she died. She was in a troubled condition for a long time but seemed to bear her sufferings patiently, her disease was heart dropsy. She told mamma some time before she died there wasn't anything in her way, that she was perfectly willing to die. She was in feeble health for about twelve months but was confined to her bed for just five. I think she suffered for all of her sins here on earth, and I am glad they all have such a bright hope of her eternal rest.

She leaves three sisters, three brothers, five children, several grand and great-grand children, with a host of relatives and friends to mourn her departure, but we feel that our loss is her eternal gain.

Her niece,
NANNIE STOKES.

[Editor's notes: Gray Ellis and Mary Gay were married on August 5, 1856, in Edgecombe County. In the 1860 census, their surname was given as Flora. Gray was a cooper, and they lived in Wilson District. Fannie, 3, and Lucinda, 8 months, were also in the household. In 1870 living in Taylors Township were Gray, 36, farm laborer; and Mary, 31; Fanny, 12, farm laborer; Lucinda, 10, and John, 7. In 1880, Gray, 46, farmer; Mary E., 41; lived in Saratoga Township. Their children John E., 19, laborer; Emma C., 9; Rebecca B., 6; and Sukey, 1; were also in the household. In 1900 Gray Ellis, born February 1833, farmer; and his wife of forty-three years, Mary L. Ellis, eight births, six living children; lived in the Town of Saratoga.

Mary Lucinda Ellis, 21, married Franklin Whitley, 21, on December 30, 1979, at the home of Gray Ellis. John Ellis was one of the witnesses. Fannie Ellis, 22, married Hilliard T. Owens, 22, on January 8, 1880, at the home of Gray Ellis. Hilliard Thomas Owens was the son of Nathan and Martha Jane Owens. Emma C. Ellis, 15, married Columbus W. Owens, 24, Edgecombe County resident, on April 29, 1885, at the home of Gray Ellis. The marriage was performed by S. H. Tyson, J. P., and W. H. Mercer, E. W. Langley and John Ellis were witnesses. Rebecca Ellis, 16, married Robert J. Galloway, 20, both Saratoga residents, on February 7, 1889, at Saratoga Township. S. H. Tyson, J. P., performed the marriage, and G. A. Howard, J. J. Reasons and J. S. Harrison were witnesses. Sucky J. Ellis, 19, Saratoga resident, married Henry Carter, 21, Stantonsburg resident, on November 29, 184, near Moyton.

FEBRUARY 2011 MEETING MINUTES

Sue Powell, President, welcomed guests and members to the meeting. Guests were introduced, and minutes were approved as written in February Trees. The Treasurer's Report was given by Treasurer, Wanda Taylor.

A reminder was given that dues are being accepted now for 2011.

Appreciation was expressed to Dick Rountree for the years of service to WCGS by shipping our book orders. Larry Gaissert has agreed to assume those duties.

[See the announcements in the following section.]

Our speaker, Pete Williams, spoke on Between the Waters of the Tar and Toisnot, a historical novel tat he has written about his parents and how they met. To tell their story, he incorporated family stories and real events, some embellished. The families lived in Nash and Wilson Counties. The chapters are dated and cover events in 1861, 1895, 1915-1935, and 1942-1945. The book is very well written, and the stories are informational and entertaining. The book can be ordered from www.amazon.com .

TREES OF WILSON

Wilson's Family Heritage

Chronicles of the
Wilson County Genealogical Society

April 2011 Volume 20 Number 4

President's Message

A vibrant organization needs an active membership to accomplish its purpose. Our purpose is to "promote the collection and permanent preservation of materials of genealogical and historical value on Wilson County families" ... .

Since our membership includes persons who live across our country, the members who actually live in Wilson County have been the ones who have overseen most of the operation of WCGS. However, there are members who live out of state who have provided valuable assistance towards our goal.

Horace Peele, who lives in a mid-southern state, set up our web site and continues to be our web master. He has asked that someone else assume that service, and we need another volunteer.

Albert Page, who lives in a western state, Lisa Henderson and Joan Baker, who live in a southern state, and Shelly Pollero, who lives in a mid-eastern state, are some of those who have contributed articles for Trees.

Edna Woolard, who lives in a southern state, has typed old newspaper articles in computer ready format. Judy Pate, who lives in a mid-eastern state, has volunteered to type articles.

Many members have shared information on our discussion e-group helping researchers find answers to their questions and sharing information.

All member participation has been and will continue to be greatly appreciated. If you can help, please let us know by phone 252-243-1660 or email at wcgs.earthlink.net .

WCGS MEETING

Wilson County Public Library
Assembly Room, April 26th
7:00 PM

Please join us for our next meeting on April 26th in the Assembly Room at the library.

Following the business session, our program will be presented by Terry Bryant and Wallace Abernathy. Terry is the Commander and Wallace is a Lieutenant Commander of the Jesse S. Barnes Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. They will give a progress report on the restoration of the remaining portion of Wilson Collegiate Institute/Wilson Confederate Hospital. They will begin, by showing in a power point presentation, the condition of the building when the project began and continue with an update on the work that has been done. Some of the photographs will amaze you! This is a joint project of the Jesse S. Barnes and William Dorsey Pender Camps with plans to establish a museum when restoration is complete. The building has been moved to 401 North Goldsboro Street. Drive by to see how much work they have done to the outside.

D. A. MEWBORN

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Mewborn, Elder D. A., of Farmville, N. C., was born June 14, 1840. He is a son of Elder Parrott Mewborn, was raised on a farm, and as a boy acquired a love for, and habit of reading. As advantages of school were limited he found that his studious habits were the foundation of his acquisition of knowledge in future life. He served as a private in the war between the states when not disabled, and in 1867 was married to Miss P. A. Dixon. From a boy he had a feeling that he would one day become a preacher and set about to get religion. But in this he failed for the Lord showed him his sinful nature and utter helpless condition, and in November 1872, he united with the Meadow Church in Green County and was baptized by Elder Jesse Baker. He was in 1874, ordained as a deacon, licensed to preach in 1879, and ordained to the full work in 1881 by Elders J. C. Hewit, and L. H. Hardy, and is a useful, faithful minister.

[Editor's notes: Drewry Aldridge Mewborn, eighth child of Elder Parrott Mewborn II and Mary "Polly" Aldridge, was born in Greene County on June 14, 1840. His father farmed a plantation on Tyson's Marsh, ran a gristmill, and was the elder at Mewborn's Meeting House near Jason.

Drew enlisted as a private in Company C, 47th N. C. Infantry Regiment on October 21, 1862. He was captured at Bristoe Station, VA, on October 14, 1863 and was

FARMER CEMETERY

Noxubee County Historical Society, Quarterly Bulletin, Number 132, Winter 2011

Contributed by E. B. Oyaas and Marcus Anderson
Reprinted with permission

[Editor's note: E. B. Oyaas sent a copy of the Noxubee County Historical Society's bulletin containing this Farmer Cemetery since it said B. S. Farmer was born in Wilson, N. C. Since he was born in 1820 before Wilson was established, we must surmise that it was known by his family that his birthplace was where Wilson began. After receiving the bulletin, I phoned Marcus Anderson, one of the recorders of the cemetery, for permission to reprint the article. Not only did he grant permission but he also sent photographs of the cemetery. We appreciate being able to share this record of some of those with local ties who moved away.]

"This cemetery is located on the south side of Miss. Hwy. 32 across the Alabama line about one hundred yards behind The Roost Hunting Preserve Lodge, Michael Thompson, manager. Farmer Cemetery is enclosed by an old iron fence with the name "Farmer" etched on a tin strip screwed onto the ornate iron gate. Most of the plot is covered with 4 x 4 foot cement squares. The tombstones are large and elaborate with Masonic emblems and gargoyles.

"Marcus Anderson and I entered with permission from Michael Thompson, manager of the lodge, and recorded the inscriptions:

B. S. Farmer
Born in
Wilson, NC
April 15, 1820
Married
Tryphenia Reed
May 2, 1850
Died
Feb. 17, 1892

"Tryphenia Reed apparently married (1) B. S. Farmer and after his death married (2) Jerome Clanton. The three were buried side-by-side and each grave is encased within elaborate marble scrolled sides connected to end bars. An urn and several decorative pieces lie within the graves' marble sides.

"The following two tombstones had the surname engraved across the top of the stones:

Isaac Farmer
Born in
Edgecombe Co, NC
Oct. 23, 1793
Died in Pickens Co, AL
Nov. 7, 1867

Aaron T. Farmer
Born in
Edgecombe Co, NC
Jan 10, 1820

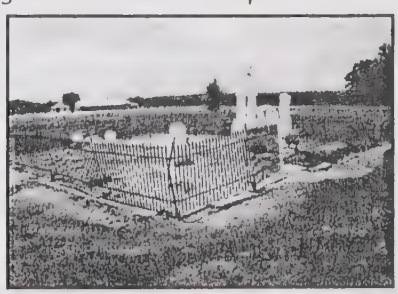
May 1874



"Other tombstones are:

Monroe Luke

In his 24 Year

Lucinda
Wife of James Luke
Died Aug. 31, 1878
In her 40 Year

Ja .....
Died
Nov. 31, 1878
His 45 year

"(Lucinda's original marker, suggested by the significant number of marble pieces scattered on the ground, seems to have been replaced by a granite stone with the above data. Next to Lucinda's marker is the broken tombstone with 'Ja ...' and above inscription. The proximity of the two graves leads one to the conclusion the latter is Lucinda's husband, James Luke.)

"On the extreme west side next to the iron fence was a partially broken marble tombstone positioned on a more modern granite base:

A. C. Reed
Born 1820
died
July 15, 1902

"These inscriptions leave me with questions. What was Lucinda's maiden name? Were A. C. Reed and Tryphenia Reed Farmer Clanton brother and sister? What was B. S. and Aaron T. Farmers' (both born in 1820) connection? Who was the wife of Isaac Farmer?

"On Farmer Cemetery's north end outside the iron fence, there is a new tombstone inscribed 'Ken Dyson, 1952-2010.' Dyson was one of the owners of the Roost Hunting Preserve."

OBITUARIES NAMING THE DISEASE THAT CAUSED THE DEATH

MRS. EVELYN PASCHALL KEYS

Yesterday evening about six o'clock Mrs. S. R. Keys, nee Evelyn Paschall died after several weeks illness of typhoid fever. Mrs. Keys contracted fever at her home in Wilmington and was brought here to be at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Paschall, but her condition became so serious that she was afterwards removed to the Wilson Sanitorium. There her condition continued critical and for several days her recovery was almost despaired of and the end yesterday evening was not surprising.

Mrs. Keys was only twenty years of age and leaves an infant child of only two months old. Last year she was married to Mr. S. R. Keys who held a position in Mr. W. B. Young's dry goods store here and later they removed to Wilmington, N. C. Mrs. Keys was a most popular young lady, and her sad death is mourned by a multitude of friends.

The funeral services were conducted at the residence of her parents Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Paschall, by Rev. G. F. Smith, pastor of the Methodist church.

The honorary pall-bearers were: Messrs. B. F. Lane, W. E. Warren, W. M. Wells, Capt. T. N. Tilghman, Dr. C. E. Moore and Dr. E. T. Dickinson.

The active pall-bearers were: Dr. Henry Best, Dr. Carl Moore, Messrs. Alex Webb, J. S. Whitehead and Thurman Fulghum.

Many young lady friends of the deceased acted as flower bearers.

[Editor's note: In the Wilson County 1900 census, Benjamin G. Paschall, machinist, born January 1859 in N. C., father born in Virginia, mother born in N. C.; and his wife of seventeen years, Ira P., born January 1865, six births, five living, lived in Wilson Township. Their children were Clara L., born Oct. 1883; Henry S., born May 1888; Evelyn M., born June 1890; Callie E., born June 1894; and Hellen S., born Dec. 1898. Wilson County, North Carolina, Federal Census of 1900, Howell and Sharpe]

NETTIE LEE WEBB

Death of a Little Girl.

Nettie Lee Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crumel Webb, was born August 10, 1908, and died October 25, 1910. John W. Webb and Beedy Webb, her grandfather and grandmother, have been married 46 years, and have five children of their own and ten grandchildren, and this is the first death in their family since marriage. Her grandfather was a Confederate soldier in the civil war and served four years and was seriously wounded through the neck and shoulder, and is 66 years old, and her grandmother is 67 years old. She was also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. B. Woodard. She had only been confined to her bed but eight days with appendicitis. What she suffered none can tell. She was a sweet and loving child, but He who doeth all things well needed her more than we and thought it best to take her from this world of trouble to a bright and a happy home where no pain, sorrow nor death can enter therein. Her little body was laid to rest Wednesday evening in the J. S. B. Woodard family cemetery. I wish to thank my many friends for being so kind in such a time of need.

Much sympathy is extended the bereaved family.

A NEICE.

DAVE OETTINGER

Dave Oettinger Dead.

During the past few months, while the genial and kind hearted Dave Oettinger had been battling with the disease, which all thought would result in death, the sincere sympathy of every heart in Wilson had been with him and his family.

But last Monday morning when it was told around the city, that Dave Oettinger had passed away every one knew that the sufferings of a good man were ended, and believed that he had gone to rest. For if a life in which much suffering is alleviated, in which many hearts are made much happier by his charity,--life free from immortality and vice does not entitle the liver to the title of Christian, then few, very few will bear the name.

Mr. Oettinger was born about forty years ago in Washington, D. C.

Early in the seventies he came to this city with his brother Mr. Jonas Oettinger, and for some years they were with Mr. Rosenthal. Later they both bought out this store and at Mr. Dave Oettinger's death, the large business done in the three stores on Wilson's principal street was a monument to the business integrity of each of these two brothers.

In 1891, Mr. Dave Oettinger married Miss Bertha Rosenthal, of Washington, D. C. Two children blessed this union and no family was a happier one. Until last summer Mr. Oettinger was a very healthy man. During the summer season he contracted malaria, which so impregnated his system that before it was eradicated, enlargement of the liver was produced.

All that medical skill could do, was done to relieve the sufferings which were great, and until a few months ago, hope was entertained for his recovery. Later though it became evident that recovery was impossible and so he awaited death as a martyr. Last Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock he passed away.

The interment was to be in Washington, D. C., and so Monday night before the remains were taken away, services, in part were held by Rabbi Myerberger. The local lodge, of Masons, of which Mr. Oettinger was a prominent member assisted.

In Washington on Tuesday afternoon suitable ceremonies were held and the body was interred.

Thus passes away a most worthy citizen, a kind hearted gentleman, an ideal husband and father and a true friend. Although after the customs and traditions of his fathers he was a Jew "of the straitest sect," yet with "orderly walk and godly conversation," he exemplified the life and teachings of the man Christ Jesus.

As a mason, Mr. Oettinger's place can not be filled. He was Past Master of Mr. Lebanon Lodge No. 117, and Past High Priest, of Mr. Lebanon, Chapter No. 27. Masons of this city sent Messrs. Lat Williams, W. J. Boykin, Dave Woodard, Thos. Bell, E. H. Adams and F. S. Davis, to Washington with the remains, and these gentlemen acted as pall bearers.

The masons of Wilson and the state will feel and mourn the death of Mr. Oettinger.

WILLIAM PRESTON SIMPSON

Wilson Daily Times, June 12, 1896
Wilson Daily Times, June 19, 1896

Mr. W. P. Simpson Dead.

Yesterday morning the people of our city were shocked and grieved when the death of one of her prominent citizens was announced.

It was known on Tuesday that Mr. Simpson had been stricken with apoplexy and was dangerously ill and yet his friends could but hope for his recovery.

Mr. Simpson had been up to his farm at Ringwood attending to business and had left on Tuesday morning to drive through the country to his home. Before he had gone very far however he was stricken and died on Wednesday evening. This death is indeed a sad one and is a heavy blow to our city and the surrounding county. Few deaths have been received with such profound and universal grief. Many sorrowful comments were heard. Many were those who said "He was a good friend to me." Says one farmer "he has done more for me than any other man living."

Mr. Simpson was originally with the firm of Branch, Hadley & Co., Branch, Briggs & Co., Branch & Co., respectively as their book-keeper. Later he was a member of the firm of Hackney Bros. & Simpson, and when this copartnership was dissolved, he was made cashier of Branch's Bank, which had just then been organized. At Mr. Branch's death he was made President of the Bank. He was also president of the Wilson Cotton Mills. Not only did he prove faithful in these positions showing extraordinary business talent, but in those positions relative to the town and its upbuilding he was ever on the alert to do that which was for her best good. For years he has taken an active part in the educational interests of the town being at the time of his death one of the trustees of the Wilson Graded school.

Mr. Simpson was a bold and aggressive business man, it being a habit of his to become conversant with the men with whom he came in contact. He was a close observer both of men and methods.

He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss, and whose memory will ever be green with his kindness and goodness. Our sympathy is with them.

Owing to his being so far from the railroad his remains were not brought home until last night and were enterred this morning.

Resolutions of Respect.

The Board of Trustees of the Wilson Graded Schools desiring to express their sorrow at the death of Mr. W. P. Simpson, and to show their high appreciation of his service as a member of their Board, have caused the following resolutions to be spread upon their record:

Resolved that in the death of Mr. W. P. Simpson the Wilson Graded Schools and the cause of education in this community have lost a valuable friend and an earnest advocate. Aggressive and fearless in the charge of his duties, he was ever watchful of opportunities for improving the efficiency of the schools and of extending their influence among the people. Although burdened with the cares and management of large business interests, both for himself and others, he was at all times prompt in his attendance upon our meetings and enthusiastic in promoting the interests of the school. Wise in counsel, bold and progressive in action, his devotion to teachers, pupils and patrons has won for him the affectionate remembrance of all.

Resolved, Further, that in our intercourse with him, both officially and personally, he was always gentlemanly in bearing and courteous in manner, winning the respect and affection of all with whom he came in contact. A successful business man, an upright, useful and patriotic citizen, a conscientious and faithful public officer, his untimely departure from this life cast a gloom over the whole community which is brightened only by the confident trust that he has heard from the Master, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

[Editor's note: The full name of W. P. Simpson was recorded in The Rise of a Southern Town, Wilson, North Carolina, 1849-1920, by Patrick M. Valentine.

a POW at Point Lookout, MD, until the end of the war.

Drew studied and taught school in 1866 and 1867. He married Peninah Adeline Dixon, daughter of Richard Dixon and Mary Barrington Sugg, on January 17, 1867. They lived on land he inherited on Tyson's Marsh until he sold it December 3, 1870. He bought land in Pitt County, N. C., which he lost in 1873. He then built a house on the Richard Dixon farm and farmed infertile land there for six years. Richard and Mary Dixon deeded a tract of 48 acres on Middle Swamp to Peninah A. Mewborn on October 10, 1878.

D. A. joined the Meadow Primitive Baptist Church November 24, 1872, and Peninah joined in May 1873. He was given "written license to travel and preach wherever he felt it to be his duty" December 27, 1879. On March 6, 1880, he moved his membership to Hadnots Creek Primitive Baptist Church in Carteret County, N. C., where he was ordained to preach in 1881. He lived next to his uncle Lemuel H. Hardy, farmer and Elder at Hadnots Primitive Baptist Church on White Oak River. Drew preached and taught school during the three years he lived there.

By 1883, "shell marl," a source of lime to make the land more fertile, was found on the Green County Dixon farm. Drew moved his family back to the house he had built six years before. The production of corn increased from 2 to 20-25 bushels and seed cotton from 100 to 300-400 pounds lint cotton or 700-1000 pounds of tobacco.

Drew was the Elder at Meadow Primitive Baptist Meeting House from 1883 to 1927 and taught at the Jonas Williams School near his home and boarded some of its teachers.

Drew and Peninah's children were John Richard, Henry Dixon, Eunice Manora, Benjamin Parrott, Joshua Albert, Josiah William, George Lemuel, and Levi Andrew.

Drew died May 9, 1928, and was buried in the Richard Dixon Cemetery near his home in Greene County. Source: Greene County Heritage, North Carolina]

MARCH 2011 MEETING MINUTES

Sue Powell, President, welcomed guests and members to the meeting. Guests were introduced, and minutes were approved as printed in February Trees. The Treasurer's Report was given by Treasurer, Wanda Taylor.

Data entry of the 2010 Trees index is in process and will be mailed as soon as possible. The 2008 index has not been started.

Sue made another plea for more membership participation and gave a summary of the different ways members can be of help by contributing to the WCGS purpose to collect and preserve the genealogical and historical materials on Wilson County.

[See the announcements in the following section.]

A most interesting program was given by Elaine Richardson, Visitor's Service Coordinator of the Tobacco Farm Life Museum in Kenly, N. C. It was a great reminder for many of us of days past when there were working family farms. Following Elaine's presentation some of the members enjoyed discussing the "days of yore" on the farm.

FEBRUARY 2011 BOARD MEETING

Renewals being very slow this year, ways to increase the mailing list were discussed to keep our bulk mailing rate. Reminders will go out with Trees and letters will be sent to other societies suggesting an exchange of news letters. Carol Forbes will compile names from queries which could lead to new members. Carroll Arthur will print a reminder (for those who have not renewed) to be placed on the next mailing of Trees.

There was discussion of methods to improve the membership. Perhaps encouraging more member participation might be good as we seem to have the same few involved in WCGS activities.

Sue again asked for help on projects.

Program ideas were discussed. Doug Radar and Ray King were suggested for future meetings. Jerry Stancil reminded us about the importance of using maps in all genealogical searches and offered to do a presentation at one of our meetings.

Wanda asked the board about reimbursing Sue for a new keyboard, mouse, and some minor repairs. It was approved.

Completing business, we adjourned.

TREES OF WILSON

Wilson's Family Heritage

Chronicles of the
Wilson County Genealogical Society

May 2011 Volume 20 Number 5

President's Message

At some point in our research, we all have trouble finding the answer to one of the facts that we need to know about an ancestor. We try to approach the problem, our "brick wall," from different angles and still can not find the answer.

At our meeting this month, we will have an open discussion about such dilemmas. Someone else may have tackled a similar problem or have more experience researching a different set of records that might hold the answer. We hope that you will bring your research problem for discussion and hopefully learn ways to find a solution.

On page 58 of this issue is the description of the steps a researcher used to find the solution to one of her "brick walls." She used many different internet sites following a natural chain of investigation and found WCGS for the answer to the last piece of her puzzle. Her questions were answered in our reply. The internet has a wealth of information that can help us add piece by piece to the facts that we already know.

On page 56, there is an article about one of our underused set of records, that of roads and bridges. It has often been said that we need to know the neighbors of our ancestors. The census is one source for that, but much can change between two census records. Roads and bridges records contain the names of the men who lived along the roads and near bridges that needed to be built or repaired. They can help you find where your ancestor lived.

Sue Evans Powell

WCGS MEETING

Wilson County Public Library
Assembly Room, May 31st
7:00 PM

Please join us for our next meeting on May 31st in the Assembly Room at the library.

Following the business session, we will have a departure from our usual format. Instead of a speaker, we will have an open discussion session which we could call "How to Find the Answers You Need."

Bring your genealogy related questions about how and where to conduct research to find different types of records. Ask how to find the records you need. Present the steps that you have followed unsuccessfully to find an answer about an ancestor. Describe research dilemmas that you have been unable to resolve. What could one do to find answers that don't seem to be in any public records? We will have several experienced researchers who will try to suggest another approach that you can follow.

Upcoming programs:
June—Annual Social
September 27—J. "Jay" Arthur Evans, Mineral Rights
October 25—Doug Rader, Early Colonization Around Stantonsburg
November 29—Annual Meeting

Do you know how to use maps in your research?

ICHABOD MOORE

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Moore, Elder Ichabod, a son of William Moore, was a soldier in the Mexican War and a useful minister among the Baptists. He was born in Wilson County, N. C. April 10, 1793, convicted of sin and given a sweet hope in Jesus in his eighteenth year, united with the Meadow Church Green County, 1821, and was baptized by Elder Thomas Dupree. He was, in the same year ordained to the work of the ministry by Benjamin Dupree and Samuel Moore. In 1832 he with others, constituted the church at White Oak, Wilson County and was pastor of this churh [sic] until his death. Was also pastor of Toisnot, Black Creek and Tyson Churches. Elder Moore was strong in the faith, pure in life and brought up his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. One of his sons, Elder A. J. Moore of Whitaker, N. C., is a noted minister of the Primitive Baptist Church and feels he owes much to the faithful life of his father.

[Editor's note: A. J. Moore will be included in the June issue of Trees.]

WAR WAS DECLARED

On May 6, 1861, Confederate President Jefferson Davis approved an act passed by the Confederate Congress recognizing that a state of war existed with the United States of America.

On May 20, 1861, delegates voted to take N. C. out of the union and align with the Confederate States of America.

A Big Eater

Last Saturday evening Thomas Boon, a Nash county man, went into Kemp & Perry's saloon near Wyatt's tin shop and called for a twenty-five cent dinner. When he completed his meal, he had eaten six pounds of stew beef, three bunches of trout, one pound of corn bread, 14 inches x 7 inches and ½ inch thick. He had drank eight cups of coffee and had said grace three times. The restaurant cook gives us this as being true.

Gen. Lee's Farewell Address to his Army

The following is a copy of the original farewell address of General R. E. Lee to his army, issued April 10th 1865, copied from the original now in the hands of our sheriff J. W. Crowell who read it to his company on that date. Many old soldiers will take delight in reading it.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY NORTHERN VIRGINIA.

April 10th, 1865.

GEN. ORDER NO. 9:--

After four years of arduous service marked by unsurpassed courage and fortitude, the Army of Northern Va. has been compelled to yield to overwhelming numbers and resources.

I need not tell the survivors of so many hard fought battles who remained steadfast to the last that I have consented to the result from no distrust of them.

But feeling that value and devotion could accomplish nothing that could compensate for the loss that would have attended the continuance of the contest, I determined to avoid the usless sacrifice of those whose past service have endeared them to their countrymen.

By the terms of the agreement, officers and men can return to their homes and remain until exchanged. You will take with you the satisfaction that proceeds from the consciousness of duty faithfully performed, and I earnestly pray a merciful God will extend to you his blessing and protection.

With an unceasing admiration of your constancy and devotion to your country and a greatful remembrance of your kind and generous consideration for myself I bid you an affectionate farewell.

Wilbanks Letter

My letter this week will be short as there is little news in this vicinity just now.

Business is as brisk as could be expected for this time of the year.

Our merchants are receiving their spring goods and wish to call attention to their special lines.

Last Wednesday at 2 o'clock Mr. R. R. Lewis of Edgecombe county was married to Miss Mattie Lewis of Gardners, Wilson county. The ceremony was performed by Elder James S. Woodard at the home of the bride's parents. The groom was forty-five years of age and the bride sixteen. We wish them all happiness in their journey through life. May it be a long and happy one.

We had a very sad death in this neighborhood last Wednesday a week ago. Mrs. Mittie Baker, wife of Willis Baker, and daughter of John Varnelle, died at 4 o'clock on that day. She leaves a husband and one child about three weeks old. She was eighteen years of age, having been married two years. Few women were more esteemed than she and she leaves a host of friends who sympathise with Mr. Baker in his sad bereavement.

Friend.

[Editor's notes: The marriage register recorded that R. R. Lewis, 41, Edgecombe County resident, and Mittie S. Wiggins, 19, Gardners Township resident were married by James S. Woodard, Primitive Baptist Minister, on March 11, 1896, at the residence of William R. Wiggins, Gardners Township. The marriage was witnessed by K. C. Lewis, S. W. Wooten, and C. H. Wiggins.

The marriage of Willis Baker, 27, Wilson County resident, and Mittie Varnell, 16, was performed by W. D. P. Sharpe, J. P., on March 21, 1894, at the residence of John Varnell, Gardners Township. M. O. Forbes, Moses Baker, and M. P. Baker were the witnesses.

There was also a marriage record of Willis Baker, 26, to Leah Varnell, 15, performed by J. T. Moore, J. P., on February 24, 1897, in Gardners Township. The witnesses were L. T. Dildy, J. W. Webb, and Chas. Walston.

In the 1900 Wilson County Census of Gardners Township, household number 129 contained the following persons:

John Varnell, head, born Dec. 1848, married 30 years, farmer

Sallie Varnell, wife, born Jan. 1845, 12 births, 9 living children

JONATHAN TOMLINSON

Stricken With Paralysis

Last Saturday night at 9 o'clock, Hon Jonathan Tomlinson the member of the State House of Representatives from Wilson Co., was stricken with paralysis on his left side.

If nothing worse develops, he will recover, although his condition is now serious. Mr. Tomlinson is a resident of Black Creek Township having lived in Wilson county all his life.

He represented his county in the Legislature in 1894. He is a very popular man in his county and his many friends will watch for any change in his condition.

Communicated

The apostle Paul, as he saw that the time for him to offered [sic] up was at hand writing to his beloved nephew Timothy wrote, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith," and thus with a consciousness in his heart that he had not neglected his duty but had performed his life work he was ready to be taken to his Master. That feeling duty done was sure a proud one and a greater econium cannot be bestowed upon any man than to say he has done his duty that his community has been advantaged by his having lived in it. Thus as I come to write a few words in memory of Jonathan Tomlinson, I feel that I ... [missing] stow that high praise ... he was faithful in the ... of each and every duty ... upon him. He was a self-made man in all respects, and by his own energy accumulated considerable means. In his business relations he was just and honorable and always commanded the respect and esteem of his neighbors and friends by the fairness of his dealings and the purity of his life. Socially Mr. Tomlinson was a pleasant companion and a warm friend, a very kind-hearted man; he was a loving indulgent father and husband. He served his county as one of the commissioners and also in Legislative halls at Raleigh and every duty was well performed and not the slightest taint of dishonor has ever sullied his fair record. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand to a friend and with that charity which lets "not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth" did not like to be reminded of the favors he bestowed upon those who were so fortunate as to be able to call him friend. The writer is proud to say that [he] was among the number that had the honor and the pleasure to call him friend and to me he was a friend "faithful and true." Stricken down in the midst of his usefulness with a large family and circle of friends to mourn his memory, those bereaved ones can only bow in submission to the will of him "Who doeth all things well," and cherish his memory and strive to imitate his many virtues. As with a heart full of grief we pen these few lines as a tribute to the dead, we feel how inadequate are words to portray the feelings of sorrow that fill our heart. Mr. Tomlinson was a Christian and died in full fellowship with his church, and may the alwise God who has taken him back to himself, soothe the wounded hearts of the deeply bereaved ones he has left behind. The good that he has accomplished in life is his great momument [sic], and we can only in a feeble way mention that goodness by saying: "His life was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world this was a man."

RICHARD MAURY
Richmond Maury Dead

Tuesday the many friends of Mr. Richmond Maury, of the Stemmery firm of Richond [sic] Maury, & Co., of this city, were surprised and grieved to hear that that gentlemen [sic] has just died at his home in Danville of acute appendicitis. Mr. Maury, since his first appearance here, has always impressed those with whom he came in contact, as being a splendid citizen, an excellent business man and a perfect gentlemen [sic]. To many of our people his death is a personal loss, but to all, his death means the loss of one of Wilson's most enterprising citizens. He was the pioneer in the stemmery business here and at his death, conducted, possibly, the largest stemmery in this state. Not only was he largely interested here, but in Danville and in Richmond he was financially interested, and well known in both cities in business and social circles.

By placing his business here, Mr. Maury made himself a public benefactor, for the presence of this large stemmery aided to create the great demand for tobacco which has made Wilson a large tobacco market.

So Wednesday morning at a called meeting of the Wilson Chamber of Commerce, resolutions were adopted relative to his death, and a floral tribute was sent, attesting to a very small extent, the regard in which Mr. Maury was held by the business men of the city.

The resolutions of the Chamber are as follows:

Wilson, N. C., August 3, 1897.

Whereas, God in His all-wise providence, has called from labor to rest Richmond Maury, one of Wilson's most earnest and successful supporters and advocates,

Now, therefore, Be it resolved,

1st. That in his death the town of Wilson has lost a personal friend.

2nd. That his successful efforts in the advancement in our midst of a large business enterprise has contributed much to the permanent establishment of our tobacco trade.

3rd. That his business career in Wilson is a fit model for our young men to emulate, and we do commend his want of affectation, his cordial social qualities, high moral character and eminent abilities as a business man.

4th. That we tender to his sorely bereaved family our most profound sympathy.

F. W. Barnes,

LOCALS

Mr. Ernest Nadal succeeds his father in the drug business. We wish him success and feel sure it will be successfully managed.

The young people of the town gave a Gypsy Tea last Wednesday evening at Wiggins' Mill. It was a very enjoyable occasion, and all had a pleasant time.

We are glad to see that Mr. W. W. Hargrave, a former citizen of Wilson, was elected to the very important position of warden by the Knights Templars Coueur De Lion Commandery which met at Knoxville, Tenn. This is very complimentary.

Mr. Tom Summerlin who lived on the Farrior place near Wilson, died last Sunday morning. He had a yellow chill the week before and had grown rapidly worse. The deceased leaves a wife and four children. They have our sincere sympathy in their affliction.

We regret the death of Rev. Mr. Wingate's little daughter, Miriam, which occurred last night a week ago. The funeral services were held on Friday and were conducted by the Rev. Mr. M. L. Poffenberger of Tarboro. We offer our sympathy to the stricken family.

[Editor's note: W. W. Hargrave, 23, druggist, born in North Carolina, was a boarder in the Davis Hotel on Barnes Street in Wilson according to the 1880 Wilson County census.

ROADS AND BRIDGES

North Carolina Research, Genealogy and Local History

Chapter 21 by Raymond A. Winslow, Jr.

In North Carolina, the County Courts and, after 1868, the County Commissioners "were largely responsible for the creation, upkeep, supervision, and financing of roads, bridges, ferries, ditches, and canals until legislation in 1915, 1921, and 1931 transferred" those responsibilities to the State Highway Commission.

"Care of roads and bridges was a community duty. Road overseers were appointed annually to attend the stretches of road on which they lived, and they were empowered to call on all eligible able-bodied hands from among their neighbors to labor on the roads." Unless exempted or excused, those persons "cleared obstructions, cleaned ditches, made minor repairs to bridges, and did such other work as necessary to made the roads passable."

Ferries, some major bridges, and mills were both partly private and partly public. A toll or fee was normally charged for public use, and they usually had full time keepers. Grist and saw mills, powered by water or steam, public landings or wharves, and the improvement of navigation on numerous waterways were also county responsibilities.

ROADS AND BRIDGES RECORDS

"Records and papers concerning roads, bridges, ferries, mills, canals, ditches, landings, and local navigation are filed as separate categories, lumped under the general heading 'Roads and Bridges' or filed chronologically among other public papers. Those created before 1868 may be in the offices of Clerks of Superior Courts while later ones may be in the offices of Registers of Deeds." The North Carolina State Archives preserves the records from all time periods. The six categories of records are described below ("Road Dockets" items may cover all six groups):

1. Petitions for laying out, cutting, constructing, turning, changing, altering, repairing, preventing, closing, stopping up, or discontinuing roads, bridges, ferries, et. al. These records "usually contain signatures of neighborhood residents and mention local geographical features and landmarks such as buildings both public and private, with dates and the reasons for and descriptions of the desired requests."

2. Reports of Juries or Commissioners who had been given the responsibility of creating, changing, or inspecting roads, etc. These reports "describe the matter under their consideration" and may contain rough sketches or finished surveyor's maps, the names of persons whose property might be affected along with an assessment of damages, and the names of persons liable to work on particular roads.

3. Warrants and Orders "appointing road overseers, commissioners, jurors, supervisors, builders, and keepers or tenders of bridges or ferries" often named the persons and described their duties. "Overseers' appointments may give details concerning the bounds of their responsibilities or may simply say 'in the room and district of' previous overseers."

4. Contracts and Specifications for construction or repair may give details. Performance bonds posted by builders or keepers, usually called bridge bonds or ferry bonds, required the discharge of the stated duties.

5. Bills, Receipts, and Accounts "show sums of money received or expended, describe the reasons therefore, and name the persons involved."

6. Legal Papers, "both civil and criminal, may be filed under the subject with which they deal. Those concerned with roads include complaints against negligent overseers or persons who damaged roads, etc., or who hindered the public's access to them, as well as prosecutions of such offenders." Mills often exploded or overflowed resulting in lawsuits. Similar records regarding railroads may be found in some counties.

Road and bridge records, like all record categories, may contain valuable unexpected details about what would seem to be unrelated subjects. They may refer to watercourses and structures whose existence and/or location may not be known or traceable.

County Court minutes contain many references to roads. "Additional information may be found in County Commissioners' minutes, county accounts and claims, road dockets, and tax records."

HIGHER COURT RECORDS

Chapter 32, by George Stevenson

During the period from 1670 through 1738, the General Court sat for the entire colony of North Carolina. During this period they shared jurisdiction with other courts in several areas including erection of bridges and ferries and construction of roads. "Colonial Court Records" is the record group at State Archives that includes the General Court records.

After 1738, Circuit Courts were established and Precinct Courts became County Courts of Pleas and Quarters. The General Court remained the court of record, and the Sessions and Minute Dockets as well as the records of the cases were returned to the General Court.

STANTON'S AND WHITE OAK BRIDGES

"Looking Backward," Hugh Johnston

Stanton's Bridge

Somewhere near the northeastern boundary of the present Wilson County, Dempsey Eure, Aaron Atkinson, Benjamin Sharpe, James Pitt, Jesse Johnston, Thomas Pitt, Kinchen Cherry, John Forbes, Isaac Scarborough, Jeremiah Weaver, Dempsey Skinner, Jr., Isaac Hobbs, John Wilkinson, Lamon Dunn, and Jonathan Gardner, Jr., were authorized on March 4, 1814, to turn the road from Tarboro to Stanton's Bridge in accordance with the petition of Amos Johnston.

On May 23, 1814, James Stanton, Eli Amason, Willie Stanton, and Archalaus Barnes were asked to agree with the Wayne County Commissioners on the repair of Stanton's Bridge on Contentnea Creek, and the cost was reported at $147.70. The road from Sparta to Stantonsburg was mentioned on February 22, 1819, and on February 24th John Parker, Henry Stanton, and Benjamin Amason were appointed to confer with the Wayne committee towards erecting a new bridge called "Stanton's Bridge." This had been done by May 24th by Willie J. Stanton, and Edgecombe County assumed $498.50 of the costs of 997.00.

Prior to November 29, 1825, Stephen Felton repaired the "Bridge across Contentnea at Stantonsburg" at a joint cost of $67.50 to the Counties of Edgecombe and Wayne; and on February 26, 1828, Josiah R. Horn, Henry L. Stanton, Joseph Daniel, and Coffield Ellis were named to meet with the Wayne Committee and to let the rebuilding of this bridge to the lowest undertaker. David Bundy and Thomas Hadley took the contract and had completed it by August 25th at a cost of $487.00.

On February 23, 1829, James Cobb succeeded Samuel Moore as overseer of "the road leading from Stantonsburg to Greenville." This was probably the road that crosses Toisnot Swamp just north of the influence of Goff's Branch, and Cobb's duties ended at the Greene County line.

On November 7, 1837, Joshua Wilkinson, Thomas L. Burt, and Jacob S. Barnes were the Commissioners who certified that Edgecombe and Wayne Counties each owed Jesse Boswell $197.50, after deducting $5.00 for the old timbers, for having rebuilt "the Bridge at Stantonsburg."

WHITE OAK BRIDGE

On February 11, 1785, James Barnes, Absalom Barnes, William Amason, Jr., Nathan Tart, William Whitley, Jr., Nathan Baggett, Abram Baggett, Jr., James Amason, George Whitley, Joseph Cox, Joshua Haile, and Malachi Brantley were appointed by the Edgecombe County Court "to lay off a Road leading from Tarborough to the ... upon Tosneot Bridge by the Meeting House, crossing the White Oak at or near Theophilus Thomas's into the road by Isaac Eason's to Martinborough, and that Theophilus Thomas, Esqs. attended the said Jury and is also appointed Overseer of said Road."

The hands of the following persons were ordered to assist them in this work: Malachi Brantley, Marmaduke Brantley, William Amason, Jr., Widow (Ann) Langston, John Thomas, Theophilus Thomas, James Amason, George Bruce, Shadrach Eason, Isaac Eason, Isaac Eason, Jr., Nathan Baggett, Nathan Baggett, Jr., William Whitley, Jr., George Whitley, Joseph Cox, Joshua Haile, William Daniel, Richard Bolton, Archelaus Barnes, John Amason, Jonathan Tart, and Widow (Mary) Thomas.

On May 3, 1785, it was "Ordered that Theophilus Thomas Esqr. attended the sd. Jury" for the new road consisting of Elnathan Tart, Cornelius Jordan, Cornealius Jordan, Jr., Marmaduke Brantley, John Hedgepeth, Eli Amason, William Amason, Jr., Joseph Cox, Thomas Saunders, John Dew, Jr., William Hickman, John Walton, Joseph Farmer, Isaac Farmer, Jr., Arthur Dew, Malachi Brantley, Isaac Eason, Shadrach Eason, Abner Eason, and James Amason. On August 2, 1785, Joseph Parker, Esq., was ordered to administer the oath to the "Jurors to lay off a road agreeable to a former order": Arthur Dew, John Dew, Joseph Simms, Malachi Brantley, John Walton, Shadrach Eason, Abner Eason, Isaac Eason, Isaac Eason, Jr., Charles Coleman, William Amason, Joseph Cocks, Joshua Bentley, Joseph Daniel, Isaac Farmer, Jacob Horn, William Robertson, Sr., James Stanton, Joseph Farmer, William Whitley, William Ellis, James Amason, Benjamin Amason, Asa Daniel, Lemuel Daniel, William Daniel, William Daniel (smith), Cornelius Jordan, Thomas Sanders, William White, and Joshua Jordan.

On November 9, 1785, Henry Robinson was made Overseer of the work of his own hands and those of Ephraim Barnes, Mary Thomas, and Nathan Tart to "open the new Road leadg. across the White Oak swamp near Theophilus Thomas's, beginning at the Road near the Meeting House and to work thro' the sd. White Oak swamp." All hands below White Oak Swamp were to work under Absalom Barnes, and "the remainder of the hands that formerly worked under William Ellis (were to) open aforesd. new road from the end of the Road near Isaac Eason's thro' the White Oak Swamp" under William Amason. Thus began the actual cutting of the road lately laid off.

This road must have begun near the Thomas Settlement on the Wilson-Tarboro Highway, passed into the old Plank Road at Sun, crossed White Oak Swamp along the present Highway, and by-passed Saratoga southerly in the direction of Stantonsburg. On February 7, 1786, the hands of William Ellis and Henry Robertson were instructed to "make a Bridge over White Oak Swamp where the new Road Crosses near Theophilus Thomas's" under the direction of William Amason, William Ellis, Henry Robertson, Elnathan Tartt, Joseph Cox, John Singleton, and Theophilus Thomas.

On August 10, 1786, Malachi Brantley was Overseer of the "road from White Oak swamp to the old Road near James Amason" with the hands of Theophilus Thomas, John Thomas, Mills Barefield, Eli Amason, Ann Langston, Henry Amason, Richard Bolton, John Bullock, James Johnson, and Samuel Mayo; and Absalom Barnes was Overseer of the "old road from Spencer Ball's to Whiteoak Swamp" with the hands of Ozeal Barnes, Jesse Amason, John Amason, Joshua Haile, and George Bruce.

On the same date Abner Eason was Overseer of the "new Road from the old Road at James Amason's to the end of the road near Isaac Eason's" with the hands of Reuben Bateman, Mercer Ward, James Singleton, Lewis Bundy, Shadrach Eason, William Eingleton, Abram Baggett, Nathan Baggett, Blake Baggett, Joel Baggett, Joshua Johnson, Thomas Wills, Leonard Wills, William Daniel, Thomas Daniel, John Daniel, John Chester, Cyprian Thigpen, George Whitley, Isaac Eason, Coburn Eason, John Corbett, Nathan Lewis Davis, John Gay, William Gay, and Richard Gay. This road seems to have proceeded over Autrey's Creek.

AZARIAH "ASA" W. BLAKE

Query and Information submitted by Jane Cranford

Do you have any information about the soldiers buried in the mound under the Confederate memorial statue at Maplewood Cemetery in Wilson, N. C.? It is my understanding that a bronze plaque was mounted there listing the soldier's names, etc.

For years I'd heard that my gr-gr-gr-grandfather, Azariah W. Blake, called "Asa" or "Aza", of Montgomery County, N. C. enlisted in the Civil War as a Confederate, left for service & never returned. It was said that no one had ever known what happened to him, and it was presumed he died during the war. Asa was married before the war, in 1849, to Parthenia Elizabeth Haywood Blake. They were both about age 18-19 when they married, so he would have been in his early 30's at the time he died or disappeared. Parthenia went on without him, raising their 6 children and running their farm, but she never remarried. She passed away in 1904 in Montgomery Co., N. C., at the age of 74. Her grandfather's house, built in 1780, still stands on Thickety Creek in Mt. Gilead, Montgomery Co., N. C., too. Lots of descendants from those families still live in the area.

Many times I've looked for information about Asa and wondered if he'd been killed in battle, died in a prison camp, or what, but had found no information. What happened to him was a family mystery. Today I came across a posting on an Ancestry.com message board that gave a death date for Asa. That information "opened the flood gates" so to speak, as that led me to find so much more information today.

Entering his name and the death date, I found the following information in Roster of North Carolina Troops in the War Between the States, Vol. 3, by the N. C. General Assembly, published by Ashe & Gatling, State Printers, Raleigh, N. C. 1882: Company K, 45th Regiment, N. C. Troops - Blake, Asa - Private - Enlisted Oct. 7, 1862; Montgomery Co (N. C.); died May 3rd, 1863 of disease, at Wilson.

I looked up Wilson, N. C., to see if any camps were there, or if battles had been fought there. I checked to see if I could find Asa Blake in any cemetery data bases for the town or county of Wilson, N. C. I also looked for other soldiers who'd died at Wilson. From a Daughters of the Confederacy book, by Turner Publishing, I found an entry about a soldier named Wilson Dallas Jones, of Company D, 63rd Regiment, N. C. Troops, who died April 22, 1863, of "febres typhoides" (typhoid fever) at a Confederate Hospital in Wilson, N. C. (Not meaning to get off track, but I'll note it was an interesting entry due to the body preservation method. It seems the body was packed in sand within the wooden coffin and shipped to Greensboro where the family picked up the body and took it home to Rockingham Co., N. C. The entry noted that the body and coffin had to stay on the wagon overnight, under a tree, until the funeral the next day, because the coffin was so heavy to lift with all that sand in it.) Now back to Asa.

I thought since Asa Blake died of disease in Wilson, maybe he could have been treated at this same Confederate Hospital. I found several other accounts of soldiers with notations like "hospitalized in Wilson" or "died at the hospital at Wilson." In looking for information on this hospital, I came on a website of The N. C. Dept. of Cultural Resources, N. C. Highway Historical Marker Program. Wilson has a historic marker (ID #F-32) commemorating a Confederate Hospital (N. C. General Military Hospital #2), which was headed by Dr./Major Soloman Sampson Satchwell, a military surgeon with the Twenty-fifth N. C. Infantry. This Confederate Hospital was established in the former Wilson Female Seminary building. At the war's end the hospital closed, the girl's school reopened and eventually became Wilson Collegiate Institute. The historic marker is located at Herring Ave. and Gold St. in Wilson and says the hospital was located 1-1/2 miles southeast. That website had great information about the hospital, telling about it's workers, use of such medical supplies as turpentine and ice to treat fevers, etc. Most interestingly to me, it said that those who died at the Confederate hospital were buried in a mass grave. Then it said when Wilson created a town cemetery, the soldier's bodies were re-interred there and a Confederate Monument was erected over the site. I found that Maplewood Cemetery, a large cemetery in Wilson, has a Confederate Monument. In researching that, I found a posting dated May 11, 2003 [sic.?], by Dennis Rogers of the News & Observer. On that day, a bronze marker was placed at the edge of the "Soldiers' Mound," at Maplewood Cemetery. He says the marker provides names, units and states for the 101 soldiers buried in the mound under the Monument and that prior to the plaque, nothing had indicated this. [The marker was dedicated May 10, 2008]

I thought perhaps you'd have info and might even have additional information, such as general info about the hospital like whether the building is still standing, or whether any of the hospital records exist, any local newspaper accounts from that time about the hospital, or how Wilson was affected during the war, etc. I noticed typhoid mentioned in several of the accounts I found of the soldiers treated at the hospital and wondered if there was an outbreak in town, or in the hospital at that time. I looked up the doctor, Solomon S. Satchwell and found he wrote some medical essays. I also found some information on his personal and professional life before and after military service, and info about his death and burial. Oddly enough, though it was many, many years later, he died of typhoid, too.

Any information will be greatly appreciated. Thank you so much for your time and I didn't mean to be so wordy. Maybe the mystery of old Asa Blake will be solved at last! Best Regards, Jane Cranford email address: jcrnfrd@yahoo.com P.S. - Please note, Asa could be buried under his full name, Azariah W. Blake, his initials A. or A. W. Blake, or his nickname Asa (or Aza) Blake.

[Asa Blake is one of over 200 named on the plaque.]

APRIL 2011 MEETING MINUTES

Sue Powell welcomed guests and members. The minutes were approved as printed in the last issue of TREES. Wanda Taylor gave the treasurer's report showing an income of $594.26 and expenses of $374.12. Data entry on the 2010 index is 60% complete and will be mailed upon completion.

(See announcements below.)

Attention was called to the newsletters of Old Dobbs County GS and Edgecombe County GS. Both have improved formats. Our genealogy room has copies of each. Sue read an email query sent recently by a descendant of "Asa" W. Blake, who died at the Wilson Confederate Hospital and was buried here in Wilson. It made for fascinating reading and was a reminder of the importance of small bits of family history when connected.

Terry Bryant and Wallace Abernathy, Commander and Lieutenant Commander of the Jesse S. Barnes Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, gave a wonderful program (complete with pictures) on the preservation and renovation of the Confederate Hospital in Wilson N. C.

In 1859 six men opened a forty-room girls' school, at a cost of $8,000.00, which was known as the Wilson Female Seminary. The Confederate government took it over and converted it to a hospital with Dr. S. S. Satchwell as the general surgeon. Two hundred soldiers died there. The building was converted to a military training school in 1880, and in 1898 was it divided into six buildings for rental property.

Today it is located at 401 Goldsboro Street and sits on one and a third acres. Many, many hours of work have been dedicated to this restoration project with much more to be done.

Upon completion of this project there will be a museum and a room for the UDC.

Terry and Wallace made us aware of this ongoing project and what it means to our home to have this wonderful piece of history being restored as a work of love and dedication to our past history.

Questions were answered after the presentation and the meeting was adjourned.

June 2011 Volume 20 Number 6

President's Message

We are now in the season of the Memorial Day and 4th of July celebrations when we honor our military and our country. Please remember the sacrifices that have been necessary to keep our freedoms.

We are also in the season of family reunions and vacations. Family reunions are a vital part of keeping the spirit of kinship alive as our extended families spread across the country. Don't let an opportunity pass to gather with your family to celebrate your heritage and renew your ties with your relatives.

Vacations are a good opportunity to make research trips. You can spend time with family asking questions and learning the oral history from the older members of your family. You can travel to libraries and archives to search through the records held there. The Wilson County Public Library has an extensive collection of material related to our heritage.

Use every opportunity that is available to you.

We do not meet in July & August. Upcoming programs:
September 27—J. "Jay" Arthur Evans, Mineral Rights
October 25—Doug Rader, Early Colonization Around Stantonsburg

1836: STANTONSBURG CELEBRATES FOURTH OF JULY

"It's History," by Hugh B. Johnston

The Tarborough Press of July 16, 1836, described in some detail "The Celebration of the Fourth of July at Stantonsburg." The American flag was raised at sunrise. At noon all the active participants assembled at the Masonic Hall. Dr. John R. Dering read the Declaration of Independence, followed by the oration of Dr. John J. Daniel, the full text of which was printed in the newspaper. Lemuel Deberry served as president for the occasion and Isaac W. Horne as vice president.

At 2 p.m. "the company sat down to the table and partook of a dinner prepared for the occasion." Afterward 13 official toasts were proposed by Deberry, followed by the "voluntary toasts" of Lemuel Deberry, John R. Horne, Dr. J. J. Daniel, Thomas S. Burt, Joshua Barnes, Benjamin Bynum, Joab Horne, Joshua Wilkinson, Jesse Mercer, Nathan P. Daniel, William J. Armstrong, Isaac W. Horne, and a final toast by President Deberry. (Several names suggest an origin northward of Town Creek.)

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States

(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Moore, Elder A. J. This gifted and successful Primitive Baptist Minister is a native of North Carolina and resides at Whitakers. He was born January 18, 1837, educated at Wilson, Oxford, and the University of North Carolina; left college in 1861 to enter the Confederate service; at first joined the Orange Light Infantry and when this company was disbanded, he went home and organized a company in Pitt, Wilson and Green counties which did faithful service as Co. F in First Regiment until the war closed. Capt. Moore was wounded in a charge before Battery Wagener, August, 1863, was in hospital several months and afterwards sent home, where he was, January, 1864, married to Miss Elizabeth Farmer to whom he had been engaged for some years. Upon his recovery he returned to his post and proved a faithful, fearless officer until the fateful day at Appamattox. Capt. Moore, after being under conviction for sin about seven years, united with the church at Wilson, N. C., 1870, baptized by Elder R. D. Hart and ordained by Elders P. D. Gold and B. P. Pitt, December, 1873. The following clipping from the Gospel Messenger of 1907, written by Elder S. Hassell, gives a record of Elder Moore's life and labors. Elder Hassell says of him: "The most gifted and successful Primitive Baptist pastor that I know of in the United States was established in

New School Building

The contract for the plans of the proposed new school building was awarded to the architects and contractors, D. J. Rose and Bro., and under their hands the work on the plans is rapidly being finished.

The school building, according to these plans, will have no superior in the state, and possibly no equal. It will be modern in every respect—heated by steam, lighted by electricity and completely sewered.

It will front 126 feet on Whitehead avenue and 121 feet on Lee St.

The tower will be 75 feet high, and the whole building will be of brick.

This building will surmount a slight hill and will be very convenient from the residential portion of the city.

There will be a large art room, a number of music rooms, seven regular class rooms, a principal's office, a large dining room and over thirty-two sleeping rooms.

A large auditorium, having a seating capacity of over 600, will be an annex to the main building. There will also be two commodious society halls.

In fact the building proposed would be an ornament to any city; and one of which the citizens of Wilson will be proud. Such an institution as this will be when Prof. Kinsey is at its head, will inspire admiration and patronage from abroad.

By undertaking and pushing such enterprises as this, the citizens of Wilson have made the name of their city the synonym for "business enterprise."

WILSON'S BIG FIRE

$100,000 Goes Up in Smoke – Largest Prizehouse in the State Burned

Wilson has again suffered severely by fire. Last Saturday night about 12 o'clock the alarm was sounded and when our firemen repaired to the scene they found that the handsome brick and wood prizehouse, located near the cotton mills, belonging to Briggs and Flemming was in flames. Though they fought valiantly, it was soon seen that it was impossible to save the structure, and attention was turned to surrounding buildings. Soon the building collapsed and falling enveloped with flames the colored Episcopal church, a neat structure valued at $2,000. The heat was so intense that it was found impossible to save it and soon it succumbed to the flames. The prizehouse of Briggs and Flemming was the largest in the State, and a handsome structure, 50 feet wide and 160 feet long, towering six stories high. It was located on a hill and could be seen for quite a distance from Wilson. The proprietors had contracted for a complete steam plant to be put in June 15th next, and had nearly completed the necessary addition, 40x116 feet to accommodate it. The loss is heavy and will be close to $100,000. The main building cost, including fixtures $14,000, insurance on that was $8,000. Stock of tobacco on hand, including that sold and not delivered, all of which is a total loss, amounted to $80,000, insurance on same $68,000. New brick annex almost completed on which there was no insurance for steaming purposes cost about $2,000.

MAJOR THEOPHILUS THOMAS, ESQUIRE REVOLUTIONARY PATRIOT OF NORTH CAROLINA

Hugh Buckner Johnston, Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine, 1956

Contributed by Charles C. Lucas, Jr.

Theophilus Thomas was the youngest and perhaps the most prominent son of the Reverend John Thomas, Sr., and wife Christenater Roberts of Edgecombe County. He was born on March 8, 1739/40, O. S., probably on his father's original patent of 1741 (in the present Wilson County), where he died between September and October, 1803. He was not only wealthy and distinguished in his own right, but has had a host of distinguished descendants, such as Stephen Seymour Thomas whose portrait of President Woodrow Wilson hangs in the White House. Little is known of the early life of Theophilus Thomas, but he received the best local education and engaged in the study of Law. He was also mindful of his spiritual obligations and was an active Deacon of Tosneot Baptist Church by August 24, 1776, and it is interesting to note that the Church was not moved to its more central and convenient location until the year preceding his death.

He became a Justice of the Peace after the retirement of his father and served regularly as a Judge on the Bench of the Edgecombe County Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions at Tarboro from August 26, 1778, to February 24, 1800, when failing health forced his own retirement from public life. He was also the Tax Collector in his District from May 24, 1780, until the year following May 23, 1793, it being then Captain Eason's (No. 6) District. The Minute Books of the County Court mention his election to the office of Sheriff of Edgecombe County on February 2, 1790, but he had so much trouble in collecting the taxes for 1789 that he declined to serve after February 11, 1791. On November 1, 1790, he had been able to pay the State Treasurer only £571/14/5 in cash and had not yet been able to redeem the certificates for the other £256/11/8.

The relations of Theophilus Thomas with the Edgecombe County Court give us considerable insight into the problem of keeping the bridges in repair. Between February 8 and October 24, 1787, he effected the repairs to the Lower Tosneot Bridge, on the road from Stantonsburg to Saratoga, and was paid 59/15/0 by the County Trustee. He, William Ellis, and James Stanton were directed to repair this bridge on August 28, 1794, and Jesse Rogers was paid £21 for the work on May 27, 1795. The same three men and Archelaus Barnes were asked to let the repairs to the "lowest undertaker" on May 28, 1798, and Theophilus Thomas was paid £25 for the job on February 26, 1799.

On November 29, 1798, Theophilus Thomas, Archelaus Barnes, and Willie Stanton "are appointed to lett to the lowest undertaker the saving & taking care of the plank & timber belonging to the Bridge across Contentney at Stanton's & report," and on the 26th of the following February, Willie Stanton was paid £6 by the County Trustee "for securing the old plank belonging to the Bridge over Contentney at his house." There must have been some heavy rains that summer, because on August 27, 1799, Theophilus Thomas and William Ellis, Esquires, were appointed Commissioners to act with the Commissioners from Wayne County in building a new bridge at Willie Stanton's and to make a report at the next meeting of the Court. This was the bridge now known as Stantonsburg Bridge.

On February 11, 1785, a committee was named "to lay off a Road leading from Tarborough to the ... upon Tosneot Bridge by the Meeting House, crossing the White Oak at or near Theophilus Thomas's into the road by Isaac Eason's to Martinborough, and that Theophilus Thomas, Esqr. attend the said Jury and is appointed Overseer of said Road." On November 9, 1785, Henry Robinson was made Overseer of the work of his own hands and those of Ephraim Barnes, Mary Thomas (widow of Jonathan Thomas), and Nathan Tart to "open the new Road leadg. across the White Oak swamp near Theophilus Thomas's, beginning at the Road near the Meeting House and to work thro' the sd. White Oak swamp."

On February 7, 1786, the hands of William Ellis and Henry Robertson were instructed to "make a Bridge over White Oak Swamp where the new Road Crosses near Theophilus Thomas's" under the direction of Theophilus Thomas and others. The latter was commissioned to build a bridge over White Oak Swamp on August 31, 1791, and was paid £26/15/0 for his work on November 27, 1792. Theophilus Thomas, Jacob Horn, William Amason, George Brownrigg, and Eli Amason were ordered to repair this bridge on May 27, 1800, and we find that his sons continued to participate in such activities in their community for many years after their father's death, before they sold out and moved South.

It is not known exactly when Theophilus Thomas became the Captain of a Militia Company of Edgecombe County, but he was actively engaged in the Revolutionary Period. In June, 1781, less than a month after the passage of the British Army under General Cornwallis through Wayne and Edgecombe Counties on his route to Virginia, Captain Thomas marched a Company of three-month draftees from lower Edgecombe County to the Town of Halifax, where some of his men were turned over to Captain Benjamin Coleman of the United States Continental Line for service against the Tories along the Cape Fear River. He seems to have been promoted to Second Major of the Edgecombe County Militia Regiment in 1785; and on January 4, 1787, the General Assembly of North Carolina approved the recommendation of Members Elisha Battle and Etheldred Phillips that he be appointed First Major, a Commission that he held until his resignation in 1795.

When William Attmore, a Philadelphia merchant, took tea at Richard Blackledge's home in Tarboro on December 23, 1787, he noted in his diary that a Colonel Thomas was one of the gentlemen present. Since we know that frequent business and social engagements required the presence of Major Theophilus Thomas at the County Seat, we have reason to believe that this was an early example of the polite Southern exaggeration of military titles. However, it should be noted that a Colonel Thomas was paid £16/10/0 for fifty-five bushels of corn (No. 20) and six head of cattle (No. 75) by the United States Comptroller's Office in Kingston (Kinston) after the Revolutionary War; and Green Hill, Treasurer of the Halifax Military District, paid a number of claims presented by Theophilus Thomas: £10/2/6 (No. 294), £160/0/0 (No. 49), and £23/12/6 (No. 254) in 1783.

Judge Thomas patented 3,068 acres of land from the State of North Carolina (including 150 in Wayne County), bought 1,360, and received 790 from his father, making a total of 5,218 acres, and at the time of his death possessed all of it excepting 1,250 acres, of which 1,100 had been deeded to two of his sons. The Edgecombe County Census of 1790 listed him with 8 males, 5 females, and 21 slaves in his family; and in 1800 there were 3 males 10/16, one male over 45, 2 females under 20, one female over forty-five, and 19 slaves. He also owned a tremendous amount of personal property of all sorts, which was listed partly in his nine-page will dated June 25 and probated on November 29, 1803, and more completely in the Inventory made by his sons Ichabod and Micajah Thomas and presented to the Edgecombe County Court in February of 1804.

About 1770 Judge Thomas had married Mary Rogers (October 12, 1756-March or April 1810), daughter of Thomas and Mary Rogers of Nash County. They had eleven children: (1) Obedience, November 29, 1771, married Elnathan Tart and later George Brownrigg, (2) Millicent, born April 28, 1773, married James Tart and later John Eason, (3) Ichabod, November 8, 1774, married Susannah Barnes, (4) Benjamin, April 16, 1778, married Mary Dickinson, (5) Theresa, April 25, 1780, married Enos Tart, (6) Tabitha, August 7, 1782, married Benjamin Simms, (7) Micajah, May 26, 1785, (8) John Rogers, September 20, 1787, married Mary Hooker, (9) Theophilus, Jr., May 25, 1790, (10) Elizabeth, November 17, 1793, married John B. Cobb, and (11) Nancy, August 1, 1797, married a Pope.

For his farming operations, Major Thomas employed the following implements: 2 scythes, 2 reap-hooks, pair of cart wheels, 4 plow frames, 4 cutters, 5 fluke hoes, 14 weeding hoes, 4 grubbing hoes, garden hoe, grid hoe, 2 steel traps, pair of iron traces, pair of leather traces, parcel of plow-gear, parcel of baskets, 2 pairs of horse-hames, 2 pairs of steel-yards, 2 cart saddles, parcel of horse bells; parcel of peas, beans, corn, and fodder; parcel of timber for cart wheels, etc., and a parcel of band buckles and bridle buckles. He must have had a considerable apple orchard to make use of an apple mill; still kettle, cap, and worm; 24 cider casks, brandy cask, rundlet, bung-borer, 2 wooden funnels, tin funnel, and a parcel of plank for making barrels. He had three full casks of cider on hand at the time of his death, and also a little over seven barrels of brandy, which seemingly represented a twelve-month supply for private and public entertainment.

The list of tools was even more impressive: 2 hand-saws, crosscut saw, whip-saw and box, 2 saw-sets, iron square and compass, 2 smoothing planes and irons, jack, 5 augurs, 2 gouges, 7 chisels, hand-vice, cooper's vice, cooper's adze, cooper's joiner and cross, carpenter's adze, 10 large axes, 4 small axes, pair of iron wedges, frow, caulking iron, screw plate, parcel of gimlets, set of blacksmith tools and bellows, set of shoemaker's tools, punch, saddler's hammer, saddler's crow-bar, parcel of iron and steel, 2 claw-hammers, glue pot, lathing axe, whetstone, 2 hones, bottle of train oil, joiner, joiner's saw, molding plane; parcel of nails, hinges, and locks; 2 drawing knives, 2 fleshing knives, currying knife and steel, and a "sear single."

The livestock consisted of 5 horses, a yoke of oxen, parcel of fowls, parcel of geese, 37 cattle, 34 sheep, 87 "fat hogs," 40 shoats, 14 sows with pigs, and 3 dry sows. The family were supplied with shoes and clothing from 10 sides of leather, 9 tanned sheep skins, a skin, parcel of wool, parcel of flax, parcel of cotton, linen-wheel, 2 woolen wheels, loom and gear, pair of warping bars and screen, flax-break, pair of tow-combs, and 2 pairs of sheep shears. The more personal things were 22 slaves (each called by name), £13/5/0 in cash, 2 pairs of spectacles, a parcel of books (not itemized), 3 razors with case and strop, 3 pairs of scissors, pocket-book, pair of money scales and weights, 2 shot guns, pair of shot-molds and ladle, parcel of fish hooks, 2 pairs of saddle bags and lock, 2 pairs of leather wallets, 4 saddles and bridles, and a parcel of shoe-buckles and knee-buckles.

Judge Thomas's furniture and furnishings were both handsome and varied, as might have been expected of a man of his substance and social standing. The main house contained a buffet with a parcel of glass and earthen ware, 3 pine tables, 17 flag-bottomed chairs, chest of drawers, 4 pine chests, walnut table, walnut writing desk, 2 looking-glasses, 6 bedsteads with feather beds and furnishings, 2 brass candlesticks, tin candlestick, set of curtains, 2 pairs of fire-dogs, 2 pairs of tongs and shovels, 4 inkstands, box of wafers, and 4 slates and pencils. If this does not compare with the elaborate Virginia inventories, the reader should remember that we are dealing with lower Edgecombe County at the end of the Eighteenth Century.

The kitchen and dining room were equipped with a pair of hand bellows, iron tea kettle, frying pan, 3 iron pots, 2 stew pots, brass skillet, iron skillet, tin coffee pot, gridiron, 3 pairs of pothooks, 2 bearers, Dutch oven, nutmeg grater, pepper box, brass spice-mortar and pestle, coffee mill, handmill, riddle, stone butter-pot, 6 jugs, 2 quart bottles, 5 small boxes, 2 knife-boxes, 17 open-headed stands, 5 small stands, 4 trays, corkscrew, lantern, 4 tubs, 4 pails, 2 piggins, 3 dishes, 6 tin basins, 7 pewter basins, 18 pewter plates, 9 large spoons, 8 teaspoons, set of 8 knives and forks, and a parcel of salt, alum, and brimstone.

The detailed will of Theophilus Thomas was witnessed by Eli Amason and Willie Barnes and began with an order to sell 800 acres on both sides of the road leading from Tarboro to Godwin's Bridge, at the head of Beaver Dam Branch and adjoining Enos Tart's line. The plantation tools such as axes, hoes, barrels, hogsheads, and timber were to be divided among his wife and sons Micajah, John, and Theophilus. The miscellaneous books were to be shared by his three sons and two youngest daughters. The four daughters who received five shillings each were Obedience Brownrigg, Millicent Eason, Treacy Tart, and Tabitha Simms. Of his older sons, Ichabod received two slaves and Benjamin only one.

Micajah Thomas was bequeathed a plantation of 640 acres on the road from Tarborough to Stanton's Bridge on Contentnea Creek, all the land from White Oak Swamp to "my back line on a branch of Little Contentnea Creek," 4 slaves, young sorrel mare, saddle, bridle, cow & calf, heifer, 3 ewes & lambs, 4 sows & pigs, feather bed, bedstead, and bedclothes, chest, smooth-bore gun, large pewter dish, large pewter basin, 6 new pewter plates, large brass candlestick, barrel of brandy, Iredell's "Revisal," all the "Acts of the Assembly," whip-saw, joiner stock, jack, smoothing plane, all plane irons, large hand-vice, 3 chairs, stew pot of "mixed mettle," small joiner's saw, and a pair of iron traces.

John Thomas (later a Baptist minister) received the plantation bought of James Barnes south of White Oak Swamp, another tract bounded by Barnes's Mill, the "old wolf pitt," John Amason, the Swamp, and David Woodard's line; 4 slaves, filly, black walnut table, small pine chest, barrel of brandy, cow & calf, heifer, 3 ewes & lambs, large brass candlestick, 3 chairs, saddle, bridle, 2 sows & pigs, saddlebags with lock and key, small set of firedogs, crosscut saw, and a small iron skillet.

Theophilus Thomas, Jr., got the land east of the road "as far as the Wolf pit" and adjoining his brother John, 3 slaves, sorrel filly, 2 sows & pigs, 3 ewes & lambs, saddle, bridle, feather bed, bedstead, and bedclothes, shot-moulds and ladle to melt lead, book entitled "The Young Man's Companion," and other property at his mother's death. Elizabeth Thomas heired 2 slaves, feather bed, bedstead, and bed-clothes, set of curtains, chest of drawers, saddle, and bridle; while her sister Nancy was given 2 slaves, feather bed, bedstead, and bed-clothes, set of curtains, saddle and bridle, walnut desk' and both were to share the household furniture after their mother's death.

The wife Mary had outright possession of 3 slaves, feather bed, bedstead, and furniture (bed clothes), set of curtains, 4 cows & calves, 10 sheep, flock of geese, sorrel mare, 5 sows & pigs, 10 two-year-old hogs, and 2 cattle, but only lifetime use of the home plantation, the land west of the road from White Oak Swamp to Micajah Thomas's, the still, cap, and worm, a large pine chest, buffet, 2 pine tables, large spice-mortar, brass skillet, 5 chairs, hunting gun, blacksmith tools, large iron potracks, 2 iron bearers, and the yoke of oxen.

Mary (x) Thomas made her own will in Edgecombe County on January 18, 1810, witnessed by James Barnes, John B. Cobb, and H. Haywood. She left five shillings each to her children Obedience Brownrigg, Millicent Simms, Treacy Tart, Tabitha Simms, Ichabod, and Benjamin. John, the executor, received a sow with pigs. The bequests to the other four children were as follows: (1) Micajah, walnut table, candlestand, and 2 sows & pigs, (2) Theophilus, sorrel horse, mule, the hogs, yoke of oxen, and 2 feather beds, (3) Elizabeth Cobb, the small mare and 6 chairs, and (4) Nancy Thomas, saddle, bridle, and $350 to school, board, and clothe her. On November 25, 1812, the Edgecombe County Court ordered James Barnes, Willie Barnes, Reddick Barnes, and Garrot Knight to divide the remainder of her estate among the lawful heirs.

ELIZABETH KIRBY

Sister Kirby was the daughter of Annie Nichols, and wife of brother W. B. Kirby, was 23 years old and died Jan. 1894 leaving 2 children. She [was] a member of the church at Contentnea, Wilson county, N. C. Her fatal sickness was Typhoid fever. She was a faithful church member, a kind mother, an obedient wife, and good neighbor. During her last sickness she said she had been to a delightful place, and was going home, and did not regret to die as her friends hated for her to go. Truly the day of one's death is better than the day of his birth, one who is born to sorrow, and dies to sin, who comes into a world of trouble, but is borne by angels unto a world of glory.

P. D. GOLD.

[Editor's note: W. B. Kirby, 24, married Elizabeth Nichols, 18, on Dec. 15, 1889, at Old Fields Township where they both resided.

JOHN TIMOTHY QUARLES
Mr. J. T. Quarles Died at Wilson Yesterday Morning

Mr. J. T. Quarles died yesterday morning a few minutes after 10 o'clock in a hospital in Wilson, where he was carried a week before, following several strokes of paralysis suffered by him at his sister's Mrs. S. H. Rountree's home in this city some weeks ago. He was stricken first while sitting at the dinner table and suffered two more strokes within 48 hours thereafter. The remains will be interred today at Wilson, former home of Mr. Quarles, and where two sisters live.

Mr. John Timothy Guarles [sic] was about 52 years of age and a native of Wilson county, a son of one of the county's most prominent families. He was widely read and was doubtless better versed in history than any other man in Kinston with his remarkable knowledge of the inside history of American politics from the foundation of the government. For many years he was a traveling salesman with a territory covering pretty nearly every sate [sic] in the union, and had been thrown with all classes of men. He was strong in his likes and dislikes and his friendships were bound as with chains of steel. Latterly he had been making his home with his sister, Mrs. S. H. Rountree, in this city and was for some time deputy clerk of the superior court. Always affable and courteous he readily made friends where he went. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. S. H. Rountree, of this city, Miss Callie Quarles and Mrs. Manning of Wilson and a brother.

In 1880, G. W. Quarles, 48, keeping house, lived on Green Street in Wilson Town. Her children Mary M., 19; Jno. F., 17, clerk in store; and Carrie E., 15; lived with her. Alex Quarles, 22, farm worker, lived in the Stantonsburg Township household of his aunt Zilla Edmundson.

In 1900, Sallie Qualls, born Nov. 1828; and her daughter Callie, born Feb. 1870, clerk; lived in Wilson Township.

Sue W. Quarles, 18, married T. H. Rountree, 23, Lenoir Co. resident, on Nov. 6, 1873, at Stantonsburg. Mary Qualls [sic.], 24, married W. L. Manning, 27, on Dec. 30, 1884, at the home of Mrs. Quall.

the doctrine of God our Saviour before he had a hope in Christ; was wounded by a bullet in the elbow of his action, his devotion to right arm during the War between the States; and that arm has been bent almost at a right angle ever since; has had beautiful and wonderful visions in exact accordance with the Scriptures, and that have been fulfilled in his life; has been a farmer and a teacher; has reared one of the most gentle, upright, intelligent, and useful families of nine children to be found anywhere; is a fine gentleman of the old school; has served four churches every Saturday and Sunday, except one or two, for about thirty years, going on the trains and riding in his own conveyance from twenty to thirty miles; is a sweet singer; fervent in prayer; an excellent doctrinal, experimental, and practical preacher, speaking clearly, ably, fluently, and eloquently from the heart to the heart; is a burning and a shining light; a sheep-finder and sheep-feeder; a discerner of spirits; an able disciplinarian; is not afraid of the face of clay; but is bold to declare, in any presence, what he believes the Scriptures teach, and uncompromising in defense of the truth; is charming and liberal to his ministering brethren who visit him at his home and home church; preaches Christ nearly all the time both out of and in the pulpit, in the family circle, on the public and the private road, and everywhere; has built up more churches and, I believe, baptized more white members than any other Primitive Baptist preacher that I know of; is honored and admired by all who know him; has suffered great reproach and persecution on account of his indomitable stand for truth and righteousness; has been blessed of the Lord with health and strength; has one of the loveliest home churches on earth; has served his churches so constantly that he has made but few and short preaching tours away from them; has received very little financial help from his churches; has no confidence whatever in modern religious inventions; never sent any of this children to a Sunday school; has never held a protracted meeting, nor had an organ in one of his churches; depends upon the pure, sweet, old-fashioned gospel of Christ alone to attract the subjects of grace; has been my most intimate friend for about __tty years; and has been, for about thirty years, the beloved and faithful pastor of Kehukee Church, near Scotland Neck, Halifax County, N. C., the Mother Church of the Mother Association of the Primitive Baptist Associations of the United States. He is no hireling, but a true undershepherd who cares for all the flock, instead of scheming and laboring to get their fleece for himself; he is an eminently self-sacrificing and gracious and gifted and successful minister of Jesus Christ. He has been greatly blessed of the Lord, who has made him a great blessing to his family, his churches, his community, and the world, for which the Lord be praised. If all our ministers were like him, they would need no heathen or Jewish or modern religious inventions to maintain or increase the number of their members."

So the proprietors will lose all told about $20,000. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to our enterprising townsmen in their heavy loss; but we are glad to learn they will rebuild in time for the new crop on a more extensive scale, and put in the latest and best system of re-drying tobacco artificially. The fire caught in the upper story. Cause unknown. Insurance on the colored church was $1,000.

Family Re-Union

Wilson was honored this week by the presence of Mr. J. T. Barron, of Columbia, S. C., one of the ablest lawyers in the South, and now General Counsel for the Coast Line railroads in South Carolina. He is also high up in Masonry, being Past Grand Master and Past Grand High Priest of that state. He was accompanied by his wife and came to be one of a pleasant family gathering on the birthday of his sister, Mrs. B. F. Briggs. Among other members of the party were the mothers of both Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Briggs. Mrs. Briggs is now in her 79th year. Mrs. Barron, who is in her 66th year, came fifteen miles from her home in Edgecombe county to be present at the re-union. Dr. and Miss Mattie Barron, uncle and sister of Mrs. B. F. Briggs were also present. They spent the day at the hotel receiving visits and congratulations. The Times wishes them all many such happy birth days.

President's Message

Some of us use our vacations for research trips. On this page is a report written about a research trip to Wilson, N. C., and State Archives and the State Library in Raleigh, N. C. He describes the very beneficial information that he found in both places.

Those of us who live within an easy drive to Wilson and Raleigh are already aware of the treasure trove of information that can be found in the Wilson County Public Library (WCPL), State Archives and State Library. There are records to find in either place that can not be found in any other one place.

We have told you before about the family records compiled by Hugh B. Johnston which have been bound and shelved in WCPL. Other researchers have placed there copies of their own research.

Dr. Robert G. Horn is one of those. He contributed to WCGS copies of his books William Horn of Nansemond, His Sons, and Their Children, A genealogic assessment of early Horn families of Colonial upper Eastern North Carolina; and Henry Horn, the Quaker, of Contentnea Creek. These books contain excerpts from information that he collected on the family from various sources over a decade of his research efforts. The books were in turn given to the library for use by any Horn researchers.

We do not meet in July & August. Upcoming programs:
September 27—J. "Jay" Arthur Evans, Mineral Rights
October 25—Doug Rader, Early Colonization Around Stantonsburg.

MY RESEARCH TRIP IN NORTH CAROLINA

Dr. Robert G. Horn

I have done extensive research on a distant ancestor, Henry Horn, 1716 - 1797, who was probably born in Nansemond County, Virginia. He then lived near Rich Square, N. C., as a Quaker, then in the Rocky Mount, N. C., area, and finally, well documented, for at least the last 15 or 20 years of his life, he lived "south of Contentnea Creek." According to the text of his will and Wayne County records, at the time of his death, he was a resident of Wayne County, I think undoubtedly on property which is now in Wilson County.

I would very much like to identify more specifically the site or area where Henry Horn lived at the end of his life. Any hope of identifying a burial site for this man or any of his early descendants seems remote, but I would certainly be willing to search extensively if I had any indication of where to start.

[Editor's note: Your editor's response to Dr. Horn's query, told him about Hugh Johnston's research on the Horn family. Also, he was referred to Frank Thompson who has done considerable research in early land grants in the area south of Contentnea Creek. After several e-mail exchanges, he sent this message.]

This week I made a quick trip to NC. I will mention a few highlights

BENNETT and B. C. PITT

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States

(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Pitt, Elder Bennett, of North Carolina. This faithful and highly conscientious servant of God was born in Edgecombe County, N. C., about the beginning of the nineteenth century, lived in this county all his life and died there about twenty years ago. He was a member of Lower Town Creek, was advanced to the work of the gospel ministry in middle age and was an acceptable preacher and highly esteemed by his churches. Elder Pitt was possessed of many noble traits of character and lived the doctrine he preached to others. His departure was peaceful and triumphant.

B. C. PITT

Pitt, Elder B. C., son of Elder Bennett Pitt, was a native of Edgecombe County, N. C. He was a blameless, lovely man and a gifted preacher. His membership was at Lower Town Creek Church, convicted of sin in early life, united with the church and was soon set apart to the gospel ministry. He served churches in the Kehukee Association, but his health was poor and he passed away in middle life lamented and missed by the Baptists of his association. And the editor regrets that data for more extended sketches of the lives and labors of both Elder B. C. Pitt and his honored father could not be obtained.

[Editor's note: Bennett Pitt was bonded to marry Katura Mercer on Feb. 11, 1840. In 1850, Bennet P. Pitt, b. 1815, farmer; and Keturah, b. 1823, lived in Edgecombe

STANTONSBURG TOWNSHIP

Wilson Daily Times*, date not known

"Looking Backward" by Hugh Johnston

Stantonsburg Township (No. 10) is bounded on the south by Wayne and Green Counties, on the west by Black Creek and Contentnea Creek, on the north by Wilson and Gardner's Townships, and on the east by Saratoga Township. It is crossed north to south by N. C. Highway 58 and the Norfolk and Southern Railroad. The Town and Stantonsburg School (No. 14) are in the southern part of the Township. Moyton derived its name from the big general store that Moye and Applewhite once operated east of Stantonsburg. Evansdale originated after 1905 on the Railroad and west of N. C. 58 in the northern end of the Township. It was named by D. S. H. Crocker, who had assisted the Railroad in obtaining the right-of-way between Wilson and Stantonsburg. One of the largest landowners in that community is William W. Graves, son of the late Dr. J. T. and Louisa Barnes Graves. She was the daughter of Edwin Barnes whose old home has been restored to much of its original condition and is the present residence of Ed Whitley.

[Editor's note: The home has been lost due to a fire since Mr. Johnston wrote this article.]

Over three hundred students are enrolled in Stantonsburg. There is a Baptist Church and a Methodist Church. The present population is in excess of six hundred persons. The peculiar location of Stantonsburg resulted in the building of a number of bridges across Contentnea Creek and Toisnot Swamp in its vicinity. The two best known are Stanton's Bridge (see my articles of June 12 and 14) and Ruffin's (Peacock's originally) Bridge (see my articles of April 3, June 23, 26, 30, and July 3). Woodard Bridge, on the road from Stantonsburg to Black Creek, was named for Elisha Woodard, Sr., whose plantation lay near-by and from whom most of the Woodards in Wilson County descend.

"The site on which it now stands," wrote Claire Powell, "was given by Mr. Henry Stanton in the year 1817, hence the name Stantonsburg. Mr. Stanton was the town's first mayor. At the time Stantonsburg was probably the most prominent business section in the county. Contentnea Creek on which the town is located was the leading factor. Cotton was sent down to Newbern [sic.] on flats and barges, and returning barges brought fertilizer and merchandise. It was also quite a market for tar, pitch, and turpentine." I might add that people living in what is now Wilson County, who did not get their store-bought commodities from the merchants who had established themselves in what is now Stantonsburg prior to 1800, had to go to Old Sparta or some more distant point reached by external commerce.

Chapter LX of the Private Acts passed by the General Assembly on December 23, 1817, was "An Act to incorporate the town of Stantonsburg in the county of Edgecombe." Its government was vested in Willie J. Stanton, James Eastwood, John Parker, Blake Little, James Dickinson, and Joshua Turnell, "The Commissioners of the town of Stantonsburg." Their duties were "to superintend the police of said town" and "to suppress all riotuous [sic.] and disorderly assemblies, especially on the sabbath day." Their taxing power could not exceed $.50 per pole and $.50 per $100.00 property valuation, which money was "for the payment of the town watch or patrol" or some other proper purpose.

The Commissioners were to meet at least once every three months, at the call of whomever was appointed Chairman, and any vacancy could filled by the appointment or election of another fit person. It was specified that each Commissioner had to take and subscribe to the following oath in the presence of a Justice of the Peace before entering upon the duties of the office: "I A. B. do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will faithfully perform the duties of a commissioner of the town of Stantonsburg, to the best of my ability and judgment, so help me God." The variation in the oath was allowed for the sake of the Quakers who then occupied an important place in the public and private life of that community.

Chapter CXLIV of the Private Laws ratified on January 8, 1828, consisted of "An Act to appoint additional commissioners for the town of Stantonsburg, in the County of Edgecombe," to have equal powers with the Commissioners already in office. They were Henry T Stanton, Patrick S. Cromwell, William Little, Benjamin Miller, and Frances Alexander. On March 1, 1873, there was a second "Act to Incorporate the Town of Stantonsburg in Wilson County," bounded by the properties of Lewis Cox, Edwin Barnes, Henry W. Thompson, Contentnea Creek, John A. Laws, the Tarboro Road, and the Black Creek Road. The new Commissioners were Dr. C. C. Peacock, H. M. Thompson, Lewis Cox, W. S. Dunn, and J. W. Peacock. Before the turn of the last Century, a disastrous fire destroyed much of the Town. It was reincorporated in 1909 with Henry E. Thompson as Mayor and Commissioners Paul Moore, H. O. Summerlin, and G. D. Eason. In 1943 the Mayor was R. B. Tapp and the Commissioners were J. W. Applewhite, N. P. Coley, W. W. Pittman, Wiley Shingleton, and L. F. Hales.

Foy's School is the first school in the Township of which I have any positive knowledge, although there must have been earlier ones of some variety or other. Dr. Foy (born on September 12, 1838) had made his first public appearance in Wilson. He received his A. M. from Bethany College in Virginia, his D. D. from the University of North Carolina, and his LL. D. from the University of Mississippi. On March 19, 1860, he married Kate Johnston Battle (born on August 22, 1842), daughter of the Reverend Amos Johnston Battle of Wilson. The Foys apparently settled and began their work in Stantonsburg in the Summer of 1863, since he advertised that his seventh session would begin on August 2, 1869. The school year at that time consisted of twenty weeks of intensive study, but I suspect that the students learned as much or even more than they do at the present day in nine months.

When the famous actress, Fanny Kemble (see my article of April 16th), passed through Stantonsburg in 1838, on her way to Waynesborough (Goldsboro), she was anything but impressed if we may judge by what she wrote: "Of the breakfast at this place no words can give any idea. There were plates of unutterable-looking things, which made one feel as if one would never swallow food again. There were some eggs, all begrimed with smoke, and powdered with cinders; some unbaked dough, cut into little lumps, by way of bread; and a white, hard substance, calling itself butter, which had an infinitely nearer resemblance to tallow. The mixture presented to us by way of tea was absolutely undrinkable; and when I begged for a glass of milk, they brought a tumbler covered with dust and dirt, full of such sour stuff that I was obliged to put it aside, after endeavoring to taste it. Thus refreshed we set forth again through the eternal pine-lands, on and on, the stall stems rising all round us for miles in dreary monotony, like a spell-land of dismal enchantment to wihch [sic.] there seemed no end ...."

Her biographer added: "Fanny never forgot that ride, or the blessed moment when daylight came, and a halt at a place called Stantonsborough. Not that Stantonsborough shared, by any means, the 'blessed' estate. It was just a halt, and a house, and not more. Here the gentlemen washed, all together, at an open-air table furnished with basins and one towel. And the ladies went into a room with a chair and a bench, a pitcher, a basin, and some soap — and no towel at all. And Fanny Butler managed to demoralize the whole potential town of Stantonsborough by demanding not only the wherewithal for drying her hands, but something that was clean, into the bargain." The only correction that I would suggest is that Stantonsburg was just a fraction larger than Miss Bobbe leads us to believe.

HISTORY OF STANTONSBURG SCHOOLS

A History of Stantonsburg, Circa 1780 to 2004

Compiled by Stantonsburg Historical Society

"... On September 7, 1818, James Stanton, Sr., deeded two acres of land adjoining 'Stantons or cross roads chappel' to Wiley J. Stanton, Blake Little and James D. Stanton of Edgecombe County and Henry J. G. Ruffin, Samuel Vines, James Eastwood, Thomas Speight and Seth Speight of Greene County for a sum of five pounds. The land was to revert to the Stantons once it was no longer used for school purposes. The original deed is in the possession of Joyner Stanton [now deceased] of Hartsville, South Carolina, a descendant of James Stanton.

Local tradition maintains that it was upon this site that Hopewell Academy, Stantonsburg's oldest documented school, and one of the oldest schools in what is now Wilson County, was established. On December 31, 1822, an act of the legislature was passed incorporating Hopewell Academy. The trustees named in the act include James Stanton, Elijah Price, Josiah R. Horn, Samuel Vines, Jesse Speight, Benjamin Miller and Henry T. Stanton. Very little is known about this school, its appearance or its duration. It was still in existence on January 9, 1828, for it was here that the North Carolina Temperance Society was organized. Dr. Josiah Horn, one of the academy's trustees, was elected president at the meeting and another local resident, Lemuel DeBerry, was elected secretary.

Mr. George Stronach's Letter

Morehead City, May 27th, 1897

EDITOR TIMES:

Dear sir: A few days ago at Cape Lookout there was captured a sea monster, known down here as a "Black Turtle" it was eight feet long and weighed 670 pounds. It passed Morehead City this morning on the train en route to Raleigh to be placed in the museum, where it will be on exhibition. This turtle was caught nine days ago and has lived ever since without anything to eat or drink.

About three miles from Morehead city, just outside the bar some men were in a small row boat and ran across a whale. Running up behind it they were able to get in reach with their harpoon, but striking a bone the harpoon did not go deep enough to open, and of course this made whale mad, causing it to go down on its head. It then struck at the boat, but fortunately missed it and unfortunately for one of the men, struck him hard enough to knock him down and dislocate one of his shoulders. The whale made its escape.

Mr. Arendal at Morehead caught in one of his nets which he had set very near the hotel, a "Tarpon" or "Silver King of the South." He is a perfect beauty, glittering like silver itself. Enclosed I send you one [of] its scales to show for itself. The tarpon is 4 feet 2 inches long and weighs 39 pounds.

Of course these sound very much like fish stories and especially coming from me, but I can prove about these things. Heard several talking tonight who said the turtle weighed more than I put it, but I got my news from a very good man.

Yours truly,
G. T. Stronach.

Lucama Letter

We are having a good deal of sickness just now in this vicinity; mostly dysentery and malarial fever, our physicians being kept very busy.

Miss Pauline Evans who has been visiting Dr. Crocker and family for several months, has just returned to her home in Columbia, S. C.

The crops are looking very fine in this section and the seasons have been favorable and the farmers seem to be very busily engaged in their farms.

Messrs. J. D. and Addie Boyett, K. H. and E. J. Barnes, Nora Bass, Willie Lucas, Johnnie Farrell, Sidney Bass, Barefoot, Tomlinson and Misses Polley and Ida Bass, are back from the Turlington Institute, Smithfield, N. C. where they have been pursuing a course of literary instruction.

We are sorry to hear of the accident happening to the little four year old daughter of Mr. John V. Mason on last Thursday. Mr. Mason and his wife were away from the house and the children were all at play. When they were alarmed by the screams of the children they hastily went to the house and upon their arrival they discovered the fact that one of the larger boys had chopped off two fingers of the little girl about four years old. The fore finger was cut off between the first and second joints, and the middle finger was cut off between the second joint and the joint articulating the finger with the hand. The boy was chopping with an ax when he cut his little sisters fingers off, she was at once carried to the nearest physician and her wounds were dressed and are doing well.

We regret very much to hear of the sad misfortune happening to the little four weeks old infant of Mr. and Mrs. James Wheeler's. On last Saturday night the little infant was sick and the parents gave it, as they thought, about four or five drops of paregoric, and it went to sleep and slept very sound all night, but on arising next morning they could not arouse the baby at all when the thought then occurred to them that they had given the child an over dose of paregoric. Realizing the fact that it was nearly gone and evidently suffering with opium poisoning, they at once sent for a physician, but it was too late as the poison had been in the system for about twelve hours before the physician was sent for, and the effects of the opiate in the system had remained too long to be counteracted and sustain the circulation and respiration, and the infant died at about 12 o'clock Sunday. The physician's opinion was that the paregoric had been poured into a bottle previously containing laudanum that had evaporated and left a residue of opium upon the bottom of the bottle, and that the paregoric had dissolved and taken up the opium making it very strong, similar to opium itself. The physician administered the chemical and physiological antidotes and did all in his power to save it, but it was too late.

We were shown yesterday a copy of the Tarboro Press, now the Tarboro Southerner published in 1841. It is the property of Mr. B. F. Briggs and contains a notice of the death of this great-great-great grandmother. Mr. Briggs also has in his possion [sic] a book of psalms bought in 1760 by the great-great-grandfather of Mr. Briggs; and a prayer book given to Mr. Brigg's great-great-great grandmother, when she was ten years old.

A Worthy Object

The ladies of St. Timothy's Guild will next Wednesday eve, from 8 to 11 o'clock serve refreshments to our town people and visitors on the court house green.

The prices are low, only 10 cents for cream. Cream and cake 15 cents. We bespeak a large attendance, for our people will be in condition to appreciate these good things after the heat and excitement of the day, besides the ladies of the Guild never do things by halves.

METEORITE FELL IN CROSSROADS

American Journal of Science, Volume 46,* Page 67 (1893)

Written by Edwin E. Howell in Washington D.C. on June 13, 1893

Reprinted in "Wilson's Heritage," the Newsletter of the Wilson County Historical Association and used here by permission

Contributed by John N. Hackney, Jr.

Last September I purchased from Mr. B. E. Barnes of Boyett[ej, N. C. (who secured it of the finder about three weeks after it fell), a small aerolite which is here figured. It fell in the early morning about 5:00, May 24, 1892, in the township of Cross Roads, Wilson County, N. C., and was seen by a young man named Gray Bass, who was only about 200 feet distant. He seems to have been frightened by the sight and sound and waited two or three hours before going to the spot. With a stick he then dug up the meteorite, which penetrated four or five inches into the packed, but sodded, earth close by a road bed. Young Bass also states that some of the grass near the spot was dead and looked as if killed by fire! He further says that he thought the meteorite came from the northwest. From the testimony of others who heard it, however, it seems undoubtedly to have come from exactly the opposite direction, having been heard as far away as 18 miles in a S. E. direction. Among those who heard it was a boy one-quarter of a mile to the southeast, Mieajoh Hales, four to six miles to the S. E. who describes the noise as "somewhat like thunder accompanied by lesser sounds like the report of pistols or the snapping of burning reeds." Another man, Edward S. Dees, distant five or six miles nearly south, wrote in answer to my inquiries, that one clear morning before sunrise sometime in May he was in the open field and heard a peculiar noise which lasted a quarter of a minute and sounded like "a freight train crossing to a trellis" - thought it came from the S. W. William B. Scott, about 18 miles to the S. E., writes that before sunrise on the 24th of May he and a neighbor heard a noise "something like a skyrocket, but more like thunder, which went off in a northern direction."

Mr. Barnes sent the stone first to the National Museum [The Smithsonian] and a fragment weighing 4.5 grams was broken off. With the exception of this piece nothing has been taken from it since it was picked up; several small chips, however, were broken off before it reached the ground and the broken surface partly crusted again. It now weighs 157 grams and would probably have weighed about 200 grams, if it had reached the earth unbroken.

The thick, even crust coating the meteorite indicates that it was a complete individual and not one of a shower. The freshly broken surface is of the usual grey color and the structure is chondrotic. The dimensions of the stone are 1, 2, and 2.5 inches. The specific gravity is 3.67, which is somewhat greater than most meteorites of this class, indicating a little more iron. [("Wilson's Heritage") Editor's note: As of 2007 the 4.5 gram piece described above from Wilson County's 1892 meteorite, along with another 3.0 gram piece discovered later, were still held in the collection of the Smithsonian Institution, National Museum of Natural History.]

Confederate Reunion

To-morrow, Saturday, July 17, Company H. 7th Confederate Calvary will hold their third annual reunion in a grove in the northern part of the city, near the new school building. At the beginning of the war this company numbered about 150 men. Of these about thirty survive, and it is hoped that all may be able to be there to meet together and over, the barbecue, refight their battles and recite the adventures of war. The picnic will be under the management of Mr. John R. Moore, and all may expect a good time for it will be a success.

Remarkable

The negro girl-preacher, Cleretto Nora Avery, who has created so much interest in the city, left Monday. The crowds she attracted to her discourses were large—many white people attending. Friday afternoon she preached to a large congregation in the white Methodist church here, and her sermon on that occasion elicited many favorable comments.
She is a mulatto, claiming to be only eleven years old, yet can read fluently and speaks to her large audiences with no hesitation. Her father was a preacher and she claims that his mantle of inspiration has fallen upon her.

Mr. Richard Baker of Gardners, was sent to the Asylum at Raleigh, some time ago; the cause of his insanity is thought to be bad health. His people have heard from him, and he does not improve any.

INDEX FOR 2010 TREES OF WILSON

INTRODUCTION

This index contains an alphabetically arranged name index of the Volume 19 (2010) issues. The numbers to the right of each name indicate the page on which that name will be found at least once. If a name appeared on more than two successive pages, the page numbers will be hyphenated.

If the same name appears more than once on a given page, it will be listed in the index only once. Search the page for additional appearances of the same name.

Generally, names listed in the index will be as they appear on the page; however, some assumptions were made in obvious cases (such as "Sallie, wife of Jesse Smith" was indexed as Sallie Smith). Where maiden or previous surnames were given, they appear in the index in parenthesis. In addition, these women will be found indexed by their maiden and/or former surnames.

Be sure to look for variant spellings of the name which you seek.

Business and place names are included only if they contain a surname within their name.

The index does not contain names pertaining to current society business (such as membership roster, contributors, etc.) Every effort has been made to include just those names of genealogical/historical significance.

I drove all day Tuesday, and went to the State Archives on Wednesday morning. In a short time I was able to see the original documents from the Franklin County Court Minutes wherein the fact of the death of Colonel William Horn shortly before September of 1800 was documented. The Court minutes document the appointment of his widow, Sarah (Sally) Norfleet Hilliard Horn as administratrix of his estate, and give her the authority to dispose of his "Perishable Estate".

No one, including me, has yet been able to find a will for Colonel William, and I know of no one who has previously appreciated the fact documented in the Court Minutes, that Colonel William died in 1800 or shortly before. Of course, the key to my finding this information was the abundant Horn papers in the Hugh B. Johnston collection.

In the late 1790's the Colonel was apparently a vigorous young man in his early sixties, with two young sons by his fourth wife. Only a couple of years earlier, in 1796, the Colonel and Sarah had been given a large tract of land on the Cumberland river, just north of Nashville [Tennessee], a gift from Sarah's stepfather. I can only imagine the family foresaw a bright future across the mountains in Tennessee.

The Colonel's daughter, Milberry, married to a well to do Joseph Phillips, had recently moved from N. C. to the Nashville area, and they had a large property and accommodations just east of Nashville. The Colonel's son, Josiah, would come to Montgomery County in late 1799 and purchase land on the Cumberland River on 1 January 1800, along with his family and others, including his aunt, Mourning, the Colonel's young sister and her family.

Unfortunately, it seems, the Colonel never apparently arrived in Tennessee, if he ever started.

The Colonel and his family received the gift of land in Tennessee in 1796. In 1797, in March, he was involved in a legal dispute in a Nash County court, in which the ownership of a property was in dispute among the Colonel, a brother, and their father. At the same time a friend of the Colonel had traveled to Tennessee and registered the deed to the Colonel's property in Davidson County, TN.

I am aware of no documentation of the presence or existence of the Colonel between March of 1797 and the reference to his death in the Franklin County, N. C., courts records in September of 1800.

I speculate that the Colonel, possibly even with his family, started on the trek to Tennessee, and I further speculate that he may have died during the course of that journey. His wife's presence in Franklin County, NC, in 1800 is probably related to the fact that, of her two grown young daughters by Hilliard, one was married to William Green, Jr., and the other would shortly thereafter marry Thomas Christmas, both citizens of Franklin County at the time of the execution of the court document in September of 1800. Perhaps after the Colonel died or disappeared, Sarah Horn, the young widow, moved to Franklin County in relation to her daughters' interests there.

I was also able to make great progress in defining the probable area "south of Contentnea Creek" where Henry Horn the Quaker, the Colonel's father, lived for the last 35 or forty years of his life, from about 1760 to 1797.

On Wednesday afternoon I went to the Genealogy Room of the Wilson County Library, where I was warmly greeted by Rusty Rains. I checked out the Hugh B. Johnston Horn family book and looked around thoroughly at the shelves and elsewhere.

Early on I asked to see a copy the book, Wilson County's Founding Families. There in the first part of the book, near the bottom of page 13, in the first sentence of the last paragraph, I read the following: "Beginning at Horn's bridge on Contentnea Creek run the quaker road to...", providing me a pretty strong clue that the bridge on Quaker road where it crosses Contentnea Creek is likely to be near the place where my remote greatgrandfather, Henry Horn, the Quaker, probably lived.

I could find no more precise data at the Wilson County library, but I felt that this information would be a big help, with Frank Thompson's experience, to look for other evidence which might support this location as near Henry's property.

On Thursday morning, I went to the Genealogy Library at Raleigh, and was greeted warmly and very helpfully by Joy McGee Heit.... After spending a good deal of time in the shelves, I came across an amazing resource, a Garland P. Stout map of Wilson County, with extensive documentation of place-names and associated people. I will not go into more detail here, but there are a number of notations in that map and the associated manual that suggest that Henry Horn, Sr., in the last half of the 1700's operated a mill adjacent to Contentnea Creek, just south of Horn's bridge.

BARNES RESEARCH PUBLISHED

Joan L. Howell, a Barnes researcher, was given Hugh B. Johnston's Barnes family research before his death. Among those records were typed narratives of those members of the family that he had researched extensively. Ms. Howell has typed and organized these studies into alphabetical order and fully indexed the names. She also included the extensive study, "Which Edward Barnes Was the Son of James, Isle of Wight County, Virginia," by Margaret Van Ness Nelson, Barbara Barnes Monroe and Carol LaPorte, included in Trees of Wilson, March 2000. This study disputes the previously accepted ancestry of Edward Barnes of Edgecombe County and throws the local Barnes line of descent from Virginia into question. The book contains 179 pages and will have perfect binding. Barnes Narratives will be available for $12.00 plus tax and $5.00 shipping and handling.

Ms. Howell has also given to WCGS the results of a census study that she compiled, Thataway, Barnes Individuals Born in North Carolina Who Moved Elsewhere. She extracted from the 1860, 1870, and 1880 census records of other states, the white Barnes families with an individual who gave his or her birth place as N. C. This indexed document of 63 pages, in spreadsheet format, will be printed and available upon request for $6.00 plus tax and $5.00 shipping.

JAMES F. ABRAMS

We regret to announce the death of Mr. J. F. Abrams which occurred at his home about three miles from this city last Friday afternoon. For over a year Mr. Abrams has been an invalid from that always fatal disease, consumption, and his friends had for a long time dispaired his ever recovering and so on Friday he peacefully and quietly entered into rest. The deceased leaves a wife but no children. He was a member of the Primitive Baptist church and died in a full assurance of faith. His remains were buried on Saturday. To his widow, we extend sympathy in her loneliness.

[Editor's note: In the Wilson County 1880 Census, James F. Abrams, 30, carpenter; and his wife Sophie, 23, were listed as living in Toisnot Town.

James F. Abrams, b. Sep. 1, 1849, d. June 6, 1897, and Sophia A. Abrams, b. Apr. 12, 1859, d. Sep. 11, 1897, "Wife of James F. Abrams," were buried in Maplewood Cemetery, Wilson, N. C.

NANCY ROUNTREE BARDIN

A Sad Death

Last Sunday, Mrs. B. H. Bardin, the mother of our efficient Clerk of the Superior Court, J. D. Bardin, left here for Rocky Mount to visit her daughter. She was then apparently in good health. On Tuesday the sad news was received here that she had died suddenly of heart failure.

Mrs. Bardin was well known in this city, being a member of the large Rountree family of this county.

Before her marriage to Mr. B. H. Bardin, she was a Miss Nancy Rountree.

The deceased was 65 years old and leaves three children, one son, Mr. J. D. Bardin and two daughters.

She was for a long time, since 1873, a faithful, beloved and worthy member of the Primitive Baptist Church in this city. The funeral services were held from that church on Wednesday, and were conducted by Elders Wm. Woodard and P. D. Gold. The remains were interred in Maplewood Cemetery. To her sorrowing relatives—those who knew and loved her—we extend sympathy in this, their sad hour of sore bereavement.

[Editor's Note: Nancy Rountree Bardin, b. 1833, d. 1897; and B. H. Bardin, b. 1826, d. 1890, were buried in Maplewood Cemetery.

In the 1880 Wilson County Census, B. H. Bardin, 55, deputy sheriff, and his wife Nancy, 46, lived on Tarboro Street in the town of Wilson. Their son Jefferson, 19, sign painter; and daughters Sallie, 15; N. L., 15; and S. P., 11; lived with them.

GEORGE WASHINGTON DEW

Mr. G. Wash Dew died at his home near this city yesterday morning of congestion of the brain.

He was stricken Sunday and never recovered. For several years Mr. Dew has been in poor health, but this news of his death was unexpected.

The deceased leaves several children,—a number of them grown.

Lack of time prevents our getting the detals [sic] of his life, but he was well known throughout the county and counted his friends by the score.

To the sorrowing family and large number of relatives, our sympathy is extended.

[Editor's notes: George Washington Dew married first to Unity Ellis, daughter of Hickman and Queen Esther Sharpe Ellis. M. E. PASCHALL FARMER

DIED

The death of an infant in all its beautiful innocence is a sad one, the death of one having attained their three score and ten is sadder, but the death of a young man, a young husband in the prime of his life is still sadder, yet there is a death the saddest of all, the death of a young wife, leaving a baby just budding into childhood and needing the watchful care of a fond mother. Such a death as this latter occurred in this city last Saturday and darkened a happy home.

Mrs. G. W. Farmer, the daughter of Mr. And Mrs. J. B. Paschall, has been sick for a long time of dyspepsia and died last Saturday. She was only 19 years old and has been married about two years, leaving a little boy. The remains were interred Sunday afternoon in beautiful Maplewood.

Mrs. Farmer was a member of the Methodist church and her resignation to death was a great consolation to her parents.

These latter wish to return thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted during the sickness and death.

To those bereaved, we extend sympathy.

[Editor's note: George W. Farmer, 22, married M. E. Paschall, 18, on Nov. 7, 1894, at the M. E. Church, Black Creek.

June 30, 2011 Board Meeting

Sue welcomed the members with news of a response concerning the copyright of Wilson County Founding Families, and it was agreed to move forth with the process.

Joan Howell has given us 179 pages of Hugh B. Johnston's Barnes Narratives with permission to publish. We discussed the need to copyright and decided it was not necessary. A print number was discussed dependant upon the price, and the sale price is to be determined by the cost of printing.

Also, we received from Joan a copy of Thataway, Barnes Individuals Born in North Carolina Who Moved Elsewhere. We will print a copy for the library and then have copies printed as requested by members.

Sheppard Memorial Library invited us to participate in programs on July 17 and July 24. We will not be represented by the board but will send back copies of TREES and the Gold Catalogue.

There is a need for conversion of WCGS records to an updated version of Quick Books for the treasury and a spreadsheet in another program for membership. Being on an old PC and in a format which in unusable on another computer could very well present future problems. It was decided to look into new Quick Books for Wanda's computer, and Larry was to be asked about converting lists from Works to a spreadsheet that can be used for address labels.

Sue will be out of Wilson a great deal and asked about plans for records to be stored elsewhere. Scanning as a possibility is to be investigated. Wanda asked for a portable file, and she and Sue needed several small items all of which were granted.

The meeting was adjourned for the summer.

President's Message

We in the southeastern part of the country are often faced with tropical storms and hurricanes at this time of the year. It seems that we have experienced tornados more frequently than we used to.

Other WCGS members live in areas that have earthquakes and other natural disasters. Fire can be another dreadful event that we hope we never experience.

These acts of nature and man can wreck havoc in our lives and cause us injury, loss of family, records and property. We all hope that these things never happen to us, but we never know what the future holds for us.

We can "bury our heads in the sand" and ignore the possibility that it could happen, or we can safeguard our records and other treasures. On pages 86-87, we have included an article compiled by Jeff Scott filled with advice about disaster preparedness and recovery of water damaged documents and media.

While you are thinking along these lines, consider what you want to happen to your research when you become unable to handle it. You do not want all the information that you spent so much time collecting, analyzing, abstracting, and compiling to be discarded. Consider preparing a copy to be placed in your library. Attach a codicil to your will or write a document telling the administrator of your estate whom you would like to receive your genealogical records. Do it today! Tomorrow may be too late!

Pittman, Elder Wiley. From an old copy of the minutes of the Kehukee Association of 1864, the editor copies the following in reference to Elder Pittman. "He was born on the 27th of July, 1815—in one of the most retired spots in Edgecombe County, N. C., and was raised up in the same neighborhood where he was born—with little or no education—and was not even favored with the advantages of literary associates. He was married on the 4th of December 1838; came before the church and offered for membership at Williams meeting house, Edgecombe County, Saturday before the second Sunday in November, 1842, and was baptized on Friday following. He commenced preaching in 1854, and was ordained in 1857. He was looked upon universally, where known, as a very sound gospel minister, and dwelt mostly on experimental preaching. He was held in high esteem by persons who differed with him in sentiment, because of his good common sense and meek and humble deportment. He was what the world would call a poor man and was so afflicted in body as to be unable to labor much on the farm, but what of a support he could not raise at home, was supplied by his brethren and friends round about, especially those who made no profession of religion. He died November 22, 1861—leaving a wife, nine children—five sons and four daughters—the church at Williams, and a large circle of friends to

DISASTER PREPAREDNESS AND RECOVERY

Reprinted with permission from Old Dobbs Trail

Compiled by Jeff Scott

Natural disasters can happen at any time. In the weeks following the tornados that hit in the Wilson County area, storm victims spent hours trying to salvage treasured items from the debris. There were reports of letters and photographs being found many miles away from the owner. Can you imagine your genealogical research scattered over several square miles? Have you prepared for such a disaster?

Ask victims of disasters what they regret the most, and it's typically the loss of family photos and memorabilia. There's probably no way to make a copy of Grandma's quilt, but you can make sure most of your photo memories survive. The key is to make copies and store them securely. Burn some CDs with your digital photos and scan any iconic family photos that don't have negatives, and make CDs of those as well. (If you don't have a scanner, ask a friend who does, or have them professionally done.) Then store those copies in other locations. Send copies to relatives or other trusted individuals who don't live in your neighborhood. As one website noted, "The key is to get your copies out of your immediate geographic area; the farther away, the better." If your area is hit by a storm or fire, the copies will survive. Consider several copies in different locations and in different media formats (CDs, flash drives, portable hard drives). At least one copy is likely to survive.

In addition to photographs, make copies of all computer files. Store backup copies of important emails and family tree files with those same family and friends. Heirlooms and other items that cannot be scanned may be photographed or videoed to at least have a visual reminder if the original is destroyed or can't be salvaged.

When a disaster does strike, there are many resources to assist in salvaging irreplaceable items. Search the internet for directions or contact information for professionals. Start with the following. The North Carolina Preservation Consortium has an excellent website with useful tips - http://www.ncpreservation.org/resources/disaster.html. Also try the following page at the Library of Congress site—http://www.loc.gov/preservation/family/ftpreserv.html. There are detailed instructions for dealing with a variety of issues and many have short video clips showing exactly how to save your treasures. Here are a few of the most important rules to follow when dealing with documents and media.

Paper Documents, Maps, Posters, etc:

- Paper is very fragile when wet and must be handled with care, provide adequate support.
- Blot excess water off the documents.
- Do not attempt to separate individual items while very wet. You may leave them in stacks no higher than 1/4" to dry.
- If pages can be separated safely, they can be interleaved using absorbent paper towels or separating materials, such as waxed paper. Change interleaving materials until item is dry.
- Clean, rusted-free window screens stacked with bricks or wood blocks between them will provide a drying surface with maximum air circulation.
- If drying items on a hard surface, cover area with absorbent materials and change when wet. When items are almost dry, place them between protective sheets such as blank newsprint and put a lightweight on them to flatten.

Books

- Books that are more than half wet should be allowed to drain. Place the book on its top edge on a sheet or towel.

Place small pieces of sponge under the fore-edge of the book to allow water to drain. Do not fan open the pages.

Continue until water is no longer draining. The book can now be frozen.

- Freezing does not dry the book but it prevents further damage from water absorption. A book may safely remain frozen for weeks, even months. Wrap the book in plain waxed paper and place in the freezer. Frost-free freezers can dry out wet books by the same process that produces "Freezer burn" in food. The process however can take weeks to months depending on the moisture in the book.
- After the books have frozen, the ice can be brushed off and the books can be thawed slowly. During the thawing process blot all excess water and then air-dry as described below.
- Books that are half wet have the best result when they can be air-dried. Fan books open and stand on top or bottom edge; never stand them on the front edge. Stand books on driest edge first as it is the strongest. As the book dries turn it upside-down to the opposite edge every few hours.
- Place a sheet of white paper towels larger than the pages between the front and back cover and adjacent page before standing on edges. Replace the interleaving as it becomes saturated.
- When the book is no longer wet, but still cool to the touch, close and place on a solid surface with a slight weight such as a brick to keep distortion to a minimum.
- Check frequently to ensure that no mold is growing.

Photographic Materials

- Some historical photographs are very sensitive to water damage and may not be recoverable.
- Most prints, negatives and color slides can be air-dried. The emulsion (picture or image) side should be face up.
- Avoid touching the front surface of wet or damp photographic prints or negatives. Note: The emulsion side often appears less glossy on negatives and color slides.
- If photographic materials are covered with mud or dirt and are still wet, they may be gently rinsed in a bucket of cold, clean water, or a light stream of cold water, and then dried.
- To speed drying time, dry items on a clothesline using wooden or non-abrasive plastic clothespins. Do not pin over image!
- Air-drying Framed Photographs: Place the frame glass-side down and remove the backing materials.
- Carefully remove object and air-dry. If the object is stuck to the glass, do not remove; instead dry frame with object inside, glass side down on a flat surface.

Compact Discs and CD-ROMs

- Rinse off mud and dirt with cool clean water. If dirt persists, soak in a dilute detergent solution. Do not rub the disc.
- Dry vertically, in a rack if possible. If not place printed side down on clean sheet on wax paper.
- Air-dry the accompanying paper insert as described in the air-drying of paper section.

Computer Diskettes

- Remove diskette from casing and bathe in clean water.
- Air dry on paper towels or lint-free microfiber towels such as glass cleaning cloths.
- Place diskette into new casing and copy. Discard original after copying.

Video, Computer and Recording Tape

- If the tape is wet, disassemble case and remove tape.
- Leaving tape on reel, rinse in clean water.
- Support vertically on clean sheet or towel to dry.
- Reassemble dried tape and case and copy. Discard original after copying.

This site also provides details for handling damaged textiles, wood and upholstered furniture, and paintings. There's also a discussion of how to handle various contaminants, mold, smoke and soot. Remember hurricane season is approaching [has arrived]! We can hope that none of us will ever have to deal with these problems, but the possibility certainly exists. It's best to be prepared with copies and the knowledge of how to handle damaged documents and heirlooms.

lament his death. Elder Pittman was neither rich nor great in the common acceptation of the world, but was more than both; a good man. He bore his protracted illness with Christiain [sic] patience and resignation, and well may we add in conclusion "mark the perfect man and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace." The editor, who is a grandson of the subject of this sketch, desires only to add, that Elder Pittman's limited education was a heavy cross to him in the ministry. Many were the excuses he offered as reasons why he should not preach. But none were [sic] sufficient. God uses the foolish things to confound the wise, and God used him for His glory and the good of his people. Such a life of faithful service and such a name as his, is rather to be chosen than great riches, and is an invaluable legacy to his descendants.

DAVID OETTINGER
Dave Oettinger Dead

During the past few months, while the genial and kind hearted Dave Oettinger had been battling with the disease, which all thought would result in death, the sincere sympathy of every heart in Wilson had been with him and his family.

But last Monday morning when it was told around the city, that Dave Oettinger had passed away every one knew that the sufferings of a good man were ended, and believed that he had gone to rest. For if a life in which much suffering is aleviated [sic], in which many hearts are made much happier by his charity, — life free from immorality and vice does not entitle the liver to the title of christian, then few, very few will bear the name.

Mr. Oettinger was born about forty years ago in Washington, D. C.

Early in the seventies he came to this city with his brother Mr. Jonas Oettinger, and for some years they were with Mr. Rosenthal. Later they both bought out this store and at Mr. Dave Oettinger's death, the large business done in the three stores on Wilson's principal street was a monument to the business integrity of each of these two brothers.

In 1891 Mr. Dave Oettinger married Miss Bertha Rosenthal, of Washington, D. C. Two children blessed this union and no family was a happier one. Until last summer Mr. Oettinger was a very healthy man. During the summer season he contracted malaria, which so impregnated his system that before it was eradicated, enlargement of the liver was produced.

All that medical skill could do was done to relieve the sufferings which were great, and until a few months ago, hope was entertained for his recovery. Later though it became evident that recovery was impossible and so he awaited death as a martyr. Last Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock he passed away.

The interment was to be in Washington, D. C., and so Monday night before the remains were taken away, services, in part were held by Rabbi Myerberger. The local lodge of Masons of which Mr. Oettinger was a prominent member assisted.

In Washington on Tuesday afternoon suitable ceremonies were held and the body was interred.

Thus passes away a most worthy citizen, a kind hearted gentleman, an ideal husband and father and a true friend. Although after the customs and traditions of his fathers he was a Jew "of the straitest sect", yet with "orderly walk and godly conversation," he exemplified the life and teachings of the man Christ Jesus.

As a mason, Mr. Oettingers place can not be filled. He was Past Master of Mt. Lebanon Lodge No. 117, and Past High Priest, of Mt. Lebanon, Chapter No. 27. Mason's [sic] of this city sent Messrs. Lat Williams, W. J. Boykin, Dave Woodard, Thos. Bell, E. H. Adams and F. S. Davis, to Washington with the remains, and these gentlemen acted as pall bearers.

The masons of Wilson and the state will feel and mourn the death of Mr. Oettinger.
[Editor's notes: In 1880, Dave's brother, Jonas Oettinger, 23, born in Maryland, clerk in store, lived in the household of his uncle E. (Emil) Rosenthal. In 1882, Rosenthal sold the store to Jonas and David Oettinger. The brothers married Rosenthal's two oldest daughters.

Farmers brought cotton, forest products, watermelons, and chickens to barter for merchandise that they needed from the Oettingers' store. The brothers did well as did their store which originally dealt in dry goods but later became a department store. The store, located on Nash Street, was still in operation well into the twentieth century.

JULIA QUARLES
Died

Last Wednesday evening the little five months baby, Julia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Quarles died of meningetis [sic]. The little one was a very promising baby and was very healthy until a few weeks ago was taken with whooping cough. The strain brought on menigetis [sic] and it died after intense suffering.

The remains were intered [sic] yesterday afternoon. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of the community.

[Editor's note: Julia Quarles, "Little Julia, Daughter of Alex & Julia Quarles," "Aged 5 months" was buried in Maplewood Cemetery, Wilson, N. C. Her mother died just months later. Her grave marker with the inscription "Julia Parker Quarles, b. JAN. 23, 1868, d. Jan. 5, 1900, Wife of Alex Quarles, is in the same plot at Maplewood Cemetery. William Alexander Quarles, b. Jan. 5, 1857, d. Aug 2, 1940, was also buried there.

In 1900, William A. Quarles, b. Jan. 1857, dry goods clerk, lived in Wilson Township. Living with him were his daughters, Blanche, b. June 1887; Mary P., b. Dec. 1888; and Annie,b. Jan. 1893.

WILLIAM PRESTON SIMPSON
Mr. W. P. Simpson Dead

Yesterday morning the people of our city were shocked and grieved when the death of one of her prominent citizens was announced.

It was known on Tuesday that Mr. Simpson had been stricken with apoplexy and was dangerously ill and yet his friends could but hope for his recovery.

Mr. Simpson had been up to his farm at Ringwood attending to business and had left on Tuesday morning to drive through the country to his home. Before he had gone very far however he was stricken and died on Wednesday evening. This death is indeed a sad one and is a heavy blow to our city and the surrounding county. Few deaths have been received with such profound and universal grief. Many sorrowful comments were heard. Many were those who said "He was a good friend to me." Says one farmer "he has done more for me than any other man living."

Mr. Simpson was originally with the firm of Branch, Hadley & Co., Branch, Briggs & Co., Branch & Co., respectively as their book-keeper. Later he was a member of the firm of Hackney Bros. & Simpson, and when this copartnership was dissolved, he was made cashier of Branch's Bank, which had just then organized. At Mr. Branch's death he was made President of the Bank. He was also president of the Wilson Cotton Mills. Not only did he prove faithful in these positions showing extraordinary business talent, but in those positions relative to the town and its upbuilding he was ever on the alert to do that which was for her best good. For years he has taken an active part in the educational interests of the town being at the time of his death one of the trustees of the Wilson Graded school.

Mr. Simpson was [a] bold and aggressive business man, it being a habit of his to become conversant with the men with whom he came in contact. He was a close observer both of men and methods.

He leaves a wife and four children to mourn their loss, and whose memory will ever be green with his kindness and goodness. Our sympathy is with them. Owing to his being so far from the railroad his remains were not brought home until last night and were enterred [sic] this morning.

Resolutions of Respect

Wilson Daily Times, June 19, 1896

The Board of Trustees of the Wilson Graded Schools desiring to express their sorrow at the death of Mr. W. P. Simpson, and to show their high appreciation of his service as a member of their Board, have caused the following resolutions to be spread upon their record:

Resolved that in the death of Mr. W. P. Simpson the Wilson Graded Schools and the cause of education in this community have lost a valuable friend and an earnest advocate. Aggressive and fearless in the charge of his duties, he was ever watchful of opportunities for improving the efficiency of the schools and of extending their influence among the people. Although burdened with the cares and management of large business interests, both for himself and others, he was at all times prompt in his attendance upon our meetings and enthusiastic in promoting the interests of the school. Wise in counsel, bold and progressive in action, his devotion to teachers, pupils and patrons has won for him the affectionate remembrance of all.

Resolved, Further, that in our intercourse with him, both officially and personally, he was always gentlemanly in bearing and courteous in manner, winning the respect and affection of all with whom he came in contact. A successful business man, an upright, useful and patriotic citizen, a concientious [sic] and faithful public officer, his untimely departure from this life cast a gloom over the whole community which is brightened only by the confident trust that he has heard from the Master, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

[Editor's notes: W. P. Simpson, b. Sept. 30, 1851, d. June 3, 1896, was buried in Maplewood Cemetery. His wife, Anna Rebecca, b. Aug. 26, 1848, d. March 12, 1941, was also buried there. An obelisk was erected in the memory of the members of their family. Others named on the obelisk were:

Annie P. Simpson, b. Feb. 1875, d. Dec. 11, 1947

Ashton Lee Simpson, b. Apr. 26, 1881, d. Sept. 23, 1881, "Children of W. P. & A. R. Simpson"

Edgar W. Simpson, b. Dec. 18, 1876, d. Feb. 15, 1938

Margaret C. Simpson, b. May 27, 1887, d. Feb. 26, 1977 (a separate marker identified her as wife of Reese B. Simpson)

Mattie Simpson, b. Sept. 1882, d. July 21, 1883, "Children of W. P. & A. R. Simpson"

Randolph Shotwell Simpson, b. June 15, 1885, d. June 12, 1886, "Children of W. P. & A. R. Simpson"

Reese B. Simpson, b. Apr. 1884, d. Dec. 3, 1934, named his brothers F. A. Simpson and James D. Simpson as alternate estate managers.

W. P. Simpson made his will Sept. 5, 1893, and it was proven in court June 6, 1896, Book 3, page 199. He named his wife Anna R. Simpson as guardian of his estate and children. He made specific bequests to his wife and children Edgar W. Simpson, William P. Simpson, Reese B. Simpson, and Annie Simpson. He

W. P. Simpson was one of several men who obtained a state charter in 1891 for a railway, to be called the Wilson and Carolina Railroad Company, to run from Wilson to Tarboro, Washington and Weldon. It is possible that this charter was "a ploy to pressure the Atlantic Coast Line into providing more service." Wilson County, North Carolina, Cemeteries IV, Howell; Abstracts of Wills, Wilson County, North Carolina, 1855-1899, J. SUSIE WILLIAMS
DEAD

For a number of weeks, Miss Susie, the twelve year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lat Williams of this city, has been battlging [sic] with that awful scourge, — typhoid fever. Several times it was reported that her condition was much better, and then the sad news would come that she had had a relapse.

Last Friday we took pleasure in announcing that on the evening before, her condition was much improved.

But that evening at 7 o'clock death came to her release and she was no more a sufferer.

The remains were interred the next afternoon at 5 o'clock, the funeral services being conducted at the home on Nash Street, by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Hurley, of the Methodist church.

Messrs, [sic] E. F. Nadal, A. P. Weaver, W. S. Micks, E. P. Mangum, S. B. Parker and Jas. Lipscomb were pall bearers.

Lovely flowers were piled on the mound, emblematic of the purity of the life of the maiden resting underneath.

Few children so endear themselves to neighbors, play-mates, teachers, and parents as did this sweet little girl. Susie was a general favorite.

In this hour of sore bereavement may the suffering ones be given grace to say "Thy will be done."

VIOLET WILSON
Died

Wilson Times May 19, 1899

Last Saturday morning the little sixteen months old daughter, Violet, of Mr. Ed. Wilson was taken sick. From then until Monday it was quite ill but its parents did not think the illness would prove fatal. On Tuesday morning however, its illness took a very violent form and rapidly developed into meningitis from which it died that afternoon.

Violet was a bright little child and had endeared herself to many.

The remains were intered [sic] last Wednesday afternoon in Maplewood. Owing to the absence of Mr. Melton, the pastor of the parents, Rev. M. T. Moye of the Christian church conducted the services.

The sympathy of the many friends of the family is heartfelt.

EDWARD BARNES

Barnes Narratives, Researched and Documented by Hugh Buckner Johnston

Typed, Edited, and Indexed by Joan Lawrence Howell

[Editor's note: This is Mr. Johnston's narrative of Edward Barnes, included in the book recently published by Wilson County Genealogical Society.]

EDWARD BARNES, died in the spring of 1762 in Edgecombe County, North Carolina. He married Sarah Pope, born ca 1697 daughter of Elizabeth Powell and John Pope who made his will in Isle of Wight County on February 1, 1748/49, probated in Southampton County on July 14, 1751, naming daughter Sarah Barnes.[1] Elizabeth Pope made her will in Southampton County on July 12, 1757, and named a "cousin" (niece) Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Barnes "in North Carolina."[2]

On April 28,1711, Edward Barnes patented 131 acres east of Chowan River in Nansemond County.[3] On April 6, 1722, he patented 340 acres west of the head of Chowan River and south of Indian Creek Swamp in Chowan County.[4] On March 26, 1723, he and Richard Holland patented 460 acres west of Chowan River and west of Miry Meadow adjoining Joseph Ballard, John Gay, John Davison, and Godfrey Lee.[5] On March 28, 1723, he patented 345 acres west of Chowan River, west of Miry Marsh, and along Miry Meadow.[6] On August 1, 1727, he patented 540 acres west of Chowan River and south of Indian Creek adjoining Richard Holland.[7] On August 11, 1727, he patented 575 acres west of Chowan River "known by the name of the Nansemond town," south of Indian Creek to its mouth, and bounded by Chowan River Pocoson.[8] The preceding patents totaled 2,161 acres of land.

On October 27, 1726, the name of Edward Barnes was mentioned in connection with land grants on lapsed patents.[9] On June 12, 1735, he paid arrears of Quit Rents from September, 1729, to March 1732, in the amount of £17.6.6, on 440 acres in Bertie County.[10] On May 18, 1738, he witnessed the will of John Baude in Bertie County.[11] On February 1, 1741/42, John Minsie of Chowan County sold Edward Barnes of Northampton County for the sum of £20.0.0 Virginia money 440 acres (from a patent of 640 acres dated April 1, 1723) north of Indian Creek Swamp, west of Chowan River, and along John Hooks, the Virginia line, Meadow Branch, and Robert Braswell (the other 200 acres had been sold to Bryan MacClain); witnessed by Robert Sharman and James Maney.[12]

On February 6, 1741/42, Edward (EB) Barnes and James Maney witnessed the deed of Robert Sharman to George Liverman in Bertie County.[13] On August 12, 1742, Edward (E) Barnes, Yeoman, of Northampton County, deeded to "my beloved son, Wm. Barnes" 150 acres west of the head of Chowan River and south of Indian Creek Swamp; witnessed by Peter Garland, Thomas Best, and Barret Montgomery.[14] On September 15, 1743, Edward (E) Barnes, Planter, of Northampton County, sold James Maney, Merchant, for £10.0.0 current money 100 acres west of Chowan River and west of Indian Creek Swamp (from my patent of May 2, 1725); witnessed by William Barnes, John (P) Page, and Robert Tharpe.[15]

On May 12, 1747, Edward (EB) Barnes "of Edgecombe" sold Carr Durden of Nansemond County for £288.0 current Virginia money 440 acres in Northampton County north of Indian Creek Swamp adjoining the Virginia line (part of a patent to John Mensie on April 1, 1723): witnessed by Elisha (E) Durden and Joseph Barnes.[16] On January 22, 1747/48, Edward (E) Barnes sold James Maney for £10.0.0 current Virginia money 100 acres on Horse Pasture Branch; witnessed by Joseph Barnes and Thomas Uzzell.[17] On June 16, 1752, Edward Barnes made an unsuccessful attempt to patent 300 acres north of Toisnot Swamp in Edgecombe County.[18] On October 25, 1753, he patented 179 acres adjoining the land of John Thomas in Edgecombe County.[19] On June 24, 1761, in the Edgecombe County Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, "Ordered that Edward Barnes an old and infirm person be exempted from paying county taxes and that he be recommended to the next assembly for a further exemption of public taxes. "[20]

Edward Barnes had lived after 1723 near the present Riddicksville in the extreme northeastern corner of Northampton County, an area included in Bertie County from 1722 to 1741. He appears to have settled near White Oak Swamp in Edgecombe (now Wilson) County in 1747. Edward (B) Barnes made his will in St. Mary's Parish of Edgecombe County on December 15, 1760, describing himself as a Planter "formerly of Chowan River," and it was probated on March 23, 1762: (1) son Nathan Barnes, one shilling; (2) son William Barnes, one shilling; (3) son Jacob Barnes, one shilling; (4) son Abraham Barnes, one shilling; (5) daughter Mourning Fiveash, one shilling; (6) daughter Charity Simms, one shilling; (7) daughter Mary Simms, one shilling; (8) daughter Elizabeth Leigh, one shilling; (9) daughter Sarah Amason, one shilling; (10) daughter Patience Barnes, 100 acres on Chowan River, where she was then living, after the death of her mother; (11) grandson Jacob Barnes, reversional interest in the 100 acres on Chowan River after the death of Patience Barnes; (12) granddaughter Barbara Wiggins, two cows; (13) granddaughter Ferreby Wiggins, two cows; (14) grandson Michael Barnes, the tract called Mirey Mash on Chowan River where his mother was then living; (15) wife Sarah Barnes, lifetime use of the land where Patience Barnes was living; (16) witnesses: James Barfield, Eliza Barfield, and Thomas Edmundson.[21]

He has searched through archival and newspaper accounts, diaries, census data, and other sources. Previous accounts of Tar Heel deaths did not include approximately 2000 African-American and white North Carolinians who died serving in the Union army. TREES OF WILSON

Wilson's Family Heritage

Chronicles of the
Wilson County Genealogical Society

October 2011 Volume 20 Number 9

President's Message

WCGS was formed in 1991 by members of a genealogy class at the local community college. Our membership has grown to include persons in many states across our country. We have accomplished a great deal in those twenty years and hope that we will continue to fulfill our purpose to preserve and share the history of Wilson County and its people.

However, WCGS is at a crossroad, and the road to take is questionable. It has become difficult to identify persons who are willing to accept the leadership of the society.

Two years ago, the nominating committee fell back on me to serve as president for the third time. This year they have been unable to identify anyone willing to serve as president.

We live in a busy world with many responsibilities and commitments. Some feel that they would rather be "Indians rather than a Chief." Some don't feel that they have the traits needed to be a leader.

Because of that, the society's leadership and work have been accomplished by just a few members. These members have worked hard for many years for the benefit of all of the members. We have given our time to the society willingly sacrificing our own projects. We have asked many times for help from our membership with very little response.

Without the leadership of a president, the society will flounder. Who will give it direction? How will it survive? The answer is in the hands of the membership. What will it be?

THEOPHILUS BARNES' POEM

ENTREATY

Before we place on our brother
The stigma of disgrace,
Just try to balance your judgement
By putting yourself in his place.

Look well at all his surroundings,
At his pleasures and his cares.
Don't crush a brother with our curses,
When he can be saved by prayers.

Look at his strength, his weakness,
Test the surgings of his blood.
Does it flow like a gentle streamlet,
Or rush like a turburlent flood.

Perchance all the early training
Of the man was the kind to bend,
This mind in the crooked channel
That led to the bitter end.

It may be in a single hour
Some powerful impulse came.
It may be for action of others
That he is now bearing the shame.

Then look with tenderest mercy
On the erring of our race,
And e'er we pass judgment upon him,
Just put yourself in his place.

Brother Gold, this is from one that loves you and the Baptist family. Would to God that we could all dwell together in peace and love. O that day when freed from sinning.

Theophilus Barnes.

MURDER OF ROBERT TURNAGE

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

Mr. Bob Turnage Murdered While Asleep.

His Throat Cut From Ear to Ear—The Store Burned to the Ground.

Wilson Times, April 28, 1899

Last Wednesday morning Mr. Geo. Moore, who lives in the Turnage Section which is just across the line between this county and Pitt, came to Wilson and gave the harrowing details of an awful crime, a meager account of which had been previously received by the phone.

Mr. Theodore L. Turnage is the proprietor of Turnage's store, which is also the post-office of Turnage.

Last Wednesday morning about 4 o'clock, Mr. Turnage was awakened by the cry of fire and soon saw that his store, about two hundred and fifty yards from his house, was on fire—in fact almost completely inveloped [sic] in flames. He rushed to the scene and immediately tried to go in to get out his books which were in the safe, thinking of course his nephew, Mr. Robt. Turnage who slept in the store was on the outside.

Knocking a window open he jumped in and as he crossed the room he stumbled and was then horrified to see that he had stumbled against the body of his nephew. The body was cold and Mr. Turnage pulled it out in the open air, only quick enough to escape the building falling in.

When the body was examined it was found that the neck had been cut about half off, the instrument being used, presumably, a sharp knife and the stroke beginning at the middle of the troat [sic] and going behind the left ear—the jugular vein being completely severed.

It is thought that the young man, who was about twenty-six years old had been murdered in his sleep and had then scrambled to the floor and died—that then the rascals plundered the store and then fired it.

There was then no clue to the miscreants. Mr. Moore on his arrival telegraphed to Raleigh for bloodhounds and they were expected on the noon train. They did not come however; but in the afternoon a heavy rain made the dogs tracking the murderers an impossibility.

Wilson Times, April 28, 1899

Saratoga Splinters

I have just heard of a very sad affair over in Pitt county. Mr. Theodore Turnage had a store at Dongola and his nephew Robt. Turnage clerked for him. Last night some one murdered the clerk by cutting his throat and then set fire to the store. Mr. Turnage got to the store in time [to] save his nephew burning.

The Turnage Murder

Last Friday news was brought to this city that three men had been arrested in the Dongola section, charged with complicity in the murder of Bob Turnage, the full details of which awful crime were given in week before last Times.

Three men, a white man named Ellis and two negroes were arrested and taken to Greenville for safe keeping, and the trial was set for last Monday.

Last Sunday morning three more negroes were arrested. These were Jim Dixon, a brother of Ben Dixon the other negro, Ben Johnston and Cephus Langley.

On last Monday the day set for the preliminary hearing a very large crowd was in Greenville, so much so that violence was feared, in fact it seemed to be the sentiment of the crowd that if the crime was securely fastened on any of the defendants that there would immediately be a lynching bee.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the prisoners were all brought out before five Justices of the Peace. Solicitor Larry I. Moore who was present and representing the state, made the motion that the case be postponed for hearing until next Monday at 10 o'clock, giving as a reason that there was other evidence that the state wished to develop and that there was also other evidence on the part of the defendants which in justice to them should be developed.

The case was then postponed.

Rumor says that there was a woman in the case and that as soon as it was learned that no money had been taken from the store which was burned, that the people immediately began the search for this clue and soon found it, with the result that the parties were arrested.

LATER.

The Kinston Free Press of Tuesday says that one of the negroes arrested was swung up by his neck and the confession extorted from him amounted to this, that Ellis had paid him $2.00 to get Turnage out, that he went to the door of the store and asked for the keys to feed the horses. Mr. Turnage opened to give them to him as he was the regular feeder on the Turnage place. As soon as the door was opened, the mob rushed in, grabbed Turnage and taking him down the road, cut his throat and then carried him into the store and fired the building.

Wilson Times, May 19, 1899

Committed for Trial.

Greenville, N. C., May 15.—One of the largest crowds ever assembled in the court house of Pitt county was present today at the preliminary trial of Dongola murder and arson case which was continued from last Monday. Detective I. Spondour, of Smith, West and Lyon's Detective Police Agency, Baltimore worked 8 days on the case and developed some important testimony.

Six arrests were made in all, and the trial to-day was before a court of five magistrates and lasted from 10 o'clock until 6:30.

GUNFIGHT IN WILSON!

The Rise of a Southern Town, Wilson, North Carolina, 1849-1920*, pages 96-97

"Wilson's Heritage, A newsletter published by the Wilson County Historical Association,"* September 2007

Both by Dr. Patrick M. Valentine, reprinted by permission

Wilson was experiencing unusually warm weather in January 1890 when Alpheus Branch, his son Paul and his cashier Jacob Cecil Hales went looking for Frank Washington Barnes and his supporters Calvin Barnes and James Sterrett. Al Branch was Wilson's leading private banker, just on the verge of going public and challenging the town's publicly chartered bank headed by Frank Barnes. Branch headed the town's largest cotton establishment while Frank and Calvin Barnes were major backers of the developing tobacco market. Wilson was not a large town, and the two groups soon faced each other. The elder Branch, a Civil War veteran, pulled a gun and shot five times at Calvin Barnes, another Civil War veteran. Barnes was unhurt, but Constable James Marshburn, who was trying to intervene, was hit in the heel.

Both groups were hauled before magistrates James W. Lancaster and George D. Green. All these men knew each other well; all were embarrassed by the situation, not least the presiding magistrates. Green was a business partner with the Barnes in Wilson's first tobacco warehouse and would take over Wilson Cotton Mills upon Branch's death. Frank Barnes was Branch's business partner in the cotton mill while Branch had been an original director of Barnes' bank. Branch and Barnes were related to each other through Branch's wife, General Joshua Barnes' daughter Nannie. Together they had introduced fox hunting to Morehead City on the coast. Barnes was himself a magistrate and his cousin Calvin had long been one.

Magistrates Lancaster and Green fined the participants $10 each. Sterrett, about whom little else is known, alone received a $30 penalty for reasons unreported; perhaps he had stirred up the trouble. Alpheus and Paul Branch were bound over to Superior Court for carrying deadly weapons. That summer a Superior Court judge ruled "judgment suspended on payment of __ cents" [sic.]. One newspaper carried a short item when the shooting occurred, the other reluctantly followed suit but did not mention names. And there the tale ends, barely mentioned again in the press. The story was forgotten by both families. Nothing more is said about Constable Marshburn, a veteran who as Color Sergeant had been captured with the Fourth North Carolina's Regiment's flag at the Battle of Chancellorsville. Despite his heel injury Marshburn continued in police service for many more years.[1]

Had the southern code of chivalry been broken; was the code of honor now restored?[2] Why had two of the most prominent men in town gathered retainers around them and approached each other? Was it indeed over a woman, as one family member, now apprised [sic.] of the story, suspects? Was it because both now headed public banks eager for the new-found wealth of tobacco soon to be cropped? Was it new tobacco against old cotton?

Cotton had been just as good to Calvin and Frank Barnes as it had been to Alpheus Branch and his bank. However, it was the Barnes who were spearheading the county's move to tobacco. Although cotton enriched certain families, for Wilson to have remained merely a cotton center would have doomed the town to mediocrity and anonymity. As a cotton market Wilson had no room to grow, and would have been one of scores of minor cotton towns. As late as 1910 the Wilson Times claimed cotton would make Wilson as much money as it would any other county but 1910 was a good year for cotton while yielding a below-average tobacco crop.[3]

Calvin Barnes had worked his way up the economic ladder after the Civil War. Like his third cousin Frank, he was now one of Wilson's wealthiest citizens. His parents were substantial landowners before the war, and their son graduated from the University of North Carolina, a rather unusual attainment. As soon as the war came, Calvin enlisted. He served as an officer in North Carolina during the Civil War and fought at Bentonville as a major. But in 1870 Calvin owned only seventy acres. By 1880 he had corn, flour and saw mills in addition to his cotton gin and was buying more land. Calvin's mills and gin alone were worth some $8,000 to $10,000 by 1891. He and his wife Mary Ann had four children of their own while maintaining some of his siblings. Calvin Barnes became a major planter and entrepreneur active in growing and marketing the new tobacco crop. He stood for no nonsense, as shown when he broke the nose of one of his tenants and had to pay a $100 fine.[4]

Almost a decade later, in 1899, Calvin Barnes' black overseer Jonathan J. Jefferson ambushed him on a country road. Two grandsons discovered Barnes and brought him and his frightened granddaughter to a doctor in town. The sheriff captured Jefferson but held him in Raleigh, supposedly for his protection although witnesses testified that there was no outcry against Jefferson personally. Jefferson held many grievances against the short but stout Barnes, the most recent being that Barnes would not give Jefferson's daughter a new dress as promised. The testimony as in so many of these cases is vague here, but Barnes may have known the daughter more intimately than was proper. The defendant told the court "that 500 people, and possibly 5,000 in Wilson County wanted Mr. Barnes killed, and [he] reckoned some of the Barnes' [own kin] also were glad." As much as anything, shooting the grandfather in front of the little girl's eyes seemed to have shocked Wilson. Wilson newspapers gave the crime the largest coverage ever up to that time. John E. Woodard, Jefferson's attorney, cannily offered no defense in the face of the defendant's confession to a Raleigh

reporter and the testimony of a Barnes relative who said Calvin identified Jefferson some hours before his death. Among other damning evidence was a gun Jefferson had borrowed the day before the killing. Possibly because so many people, white and black, were related to Barnes, it took a whole day to select a jury but only forth-five minutes for them to declare Jefferson guilty. The judge sentenced him to death. The sheriff declared that there would be no lynching: "Our people will let the law take its course." Woodard appealed the verdict because of the hearsay nature of the identification of Jefferson since it was not a deathbed declaration and therefore legally admissible. The North Carolina Supreme Court agreed and ordered a new trial, and this time Jefferson was declared "not-guilty." At that time, as local historian Dr. William B. Clark, Jr., points out, the science of ballistics and other forensic proofs were lacking.[5]

It should be noted that a black defendant accused of murdering a prominent and wealthy white man was able to secure the services of one of Wilson's sharpest legal minds and avoid any punishment despite the compelling if circumstantial nature of the evidence against him.

On the other side of the Barnes-Branch dispute, Paul Branch may have had a poor reputation as a young man, but Jacob C. Hales would one day head Branch bank with distinction. Hales eventually had six children, and his chapter in That They All May Be One, a book on the international Christian ecumenical movement, would advocate Protestant unity. By the time death took him in 1913, Hales was "one of Wilson's best loved citizens." Reconciliation between the two groups, Barnes and Branch, in any case, seems to have been swiftly achieved two months after the shooting incident. Calvin Barnes and Branch's cashier and successor, William Preston Simpson, as the newspaper emphasized, together inspected some tobacco lands owned by Simpson in Halifax County.[6]

The Wilson Times account of the murder of Calvin Barnes was included in the October 2009 issue of Trees of Wilson.

There were two men listed in the Wilson County 1900 Census who could have been the man charged with killing Calvin Barnes.

John Jefferson, black, born May 1849, widower, day laborer, lived in Wilson Township-ED 123. Since the murder occurred at the end of August 1899, one wonders if the "wheels of justice" moved fast enough for Jefferson to have been cleared by the time the 1900 census was taken.

John J. Jefferson, inmate, white, born May, 1850, married, farmer, was listed as one of forty-two men and three women recorded as inmates in the 1900 household of William Sharp, sheriff in the census of Wilson Township-ED 125. Twenty-six of the men were recorded as "rode hands," some who were born in Virginia, South Carolina, Ohio, and Georgia. Fannie Jefferson, white, born February 1852, married twenty-eight years, three births, one living child, also lived in the same Wilson Township. Living with

INFANTICIDE

The Dead Body Found. The Mother Arrested.

Wilson Times March 24, 1899

Last Friday afternoon as Louisa Moore was in her garden, her attention was drawn to the corner of the lot. On going to the spot she found the dead body of an infant which showed evidence of having been burned. She then called her neighbors to view her ghastly find.

Louisa is the wife of L. A. Moore, colored, and lives on Greene street in this city.

When Moore came home that night, Louisa told him of her find. The next morning, he reported the matter to the police who soon gathered information sufficient from the neighbors to show that the mother of the infant should be arrested.

The coroner, Dr. J. K. Ruffin, was summoned and after empanneling a jury heard sufficient evidence to warrant the following verdict from the jury; that the deceased came to its death at the hands of its mother, Della Greene.

This woman has been recently cooking for Mr. E. G. Rawlings, and it was known that her condition was such that she had to go to the home in Enfield. A warrant was then issued for her arrest and she was soon arrested in Enfield. On Monday Sheriff Sharpe went for her and on Tuesday the preliminary hearing was held before Justices of the Peace, D. Worthington and J. W. Lancaster.

It was brought out in the evidence that the defendant had been in a delicate condition and that after her return from Mr. Rawlings she had been very sick, that while sick she was at Moore's, that the child showed signs of having been at the place where found for about five or six weeks.

Dr. C. E. Moore testified to having viewed the body, that it was then in an advanced stage of decomposition, that it showed signs of having been burned, that he could not swear that the child was alive when born.

On hearing this evidence the defendant was committed to jail to await the next court.

The condition of the woman when brought into court was indeed a pitiable one. She could hardly stand, was very weak and seemed to have gone through some terrible strain.

[Editor's notes: Della Greene was not listed in either the Wilson County 1900 or 1880 federal census records.

Lee Moore, age 21, married Louisa Morgan, 18, both Wilson County residents, on April 6, 1886, at Black Creek. The marriage was performed by H. W. Privett, J. P., and witnessed by A. L. Barden, F. C. Bains and J. B. Barden.

According to the 1880 census, Lee Moore, age 16, worked on farm, lived in Black Creek township with his parents Lawrence Moore, age 38, farmer; and his wife Viny, age 25. Their other children were Nellie, age 13; Esther, age 10; Dela Ann, age 10; John, age 7; David, age 5; and Austin, age 2.

In 1870, Larrence Moore, age 30, and Sylvia, age 30, domestic servant, lived in Wilson Township. Living with them were Eliza, age 8; Henry, age 6; Esther, age 2; and Soloman, age 21; farm laborer.

Lee Moore, age 7, lived five households away with Idea Moore, age 67; Samuel, age 23, farm laborer; Vinah, age 20, farm laborer; Nellie, age 6; Jane, age 1 month; Sidney, age 8; Frances, age 7; Nancy, age 13; and Edmond, age 14, farm laborer.

Lawrence Moore, age 30, married Vina Moore, 25, both Wilson County residents, on January 23, 1873. The marriage was performed by London Johnson, colored minister. This would imply that Lee was the son of Vinah and stepson of Lawrence.

The 1900 census for Wilson County listed Lee A. Moore, born May 1864, black, merchant; his wife of fourteen years, Louisa, born December 1868, two births, one living child, as living in Wilson Township—ED 125. Their son Ernest, born March 1888, lived with them and was attending school.

Edward G. Rawlings, born May 1860 in Virginia to parents also born in Virginia, broker; and his wife of 13 years, Sarah D., born August 1864 in North Carolina, father born in Tennessee and mother in New York, lived in Wilson Township—ED 126 in 1900. Sarah had given birth to six children, all living. At the end of the 1900 listing for Wilson Township—ED 126 were several persons who "were not reported when enumerating." The first of those was John K. Ruffin, born March 1834, widowed, physician, lodger in the household of Patrick B. Deans, born November 1853, broker; and his wife of twelve years, Minnie L., born September 1866, five births, four living children. GEORGE GAY DIED IN PRISON

Wilson Daily Times,* March 30, 1911

Would Have Been Free In June

Wilson Times, March 30, 1911

Mr. George Gay, who died yesterday in this city, would have been pardoned in June had he lived. He was sentenced to thirty years in the penitentiary for killing Mr. Wade Aycock, his employer, about ten years ago at Mr. Aycock's saloon on Goldsboro street. After killing Mr. Aycock Mr. Gay attempted suicide but his self-inflicted wound proved not fatal.

Recently Governor Kitchin, in response to a strong petition, consented to pardon the deceased at the expiration of ten years' imprisonment, which term would have expired in June.

[Editor's note: In the 1900 Wilson County Census, George R. Gay, born March 1872, bartender, lived with his parents in Wilson Township-ED 126. His parents, Robert Gay, born April 1846, watchman at the cotton mill, and his wife of thirty years, Jackie An, born July 1846, five births, five living children; and two other children Mattie, born October 1875; and John F., born October 1882, grocery store clerk; were the others in the household.

In the Wilson County census for 1880, Robert Gay, 34, farmer; and his wife Jane A., age 33; lived in Saratoga Township. Their children Sopha, age 11; George T., age 8; William, age 6; and Martha A., age 5; lived with them.

Wade Aycock was not listed in Wilson County in that census; however the Wilson Times, of January 20, 1899, carried this news item:

A NEW MAN.

"Mr. W. H. Aycock, a well known gentleman of the Fremont section has come to Wilson and has located in Mr. Billy Batts' old stand. He carries a fancy stock of fine wines, whiskies, cigars, etc. His place is a well kept orderly one and he invites his friends there to get good treatment.

"He has established a well ordered restaurant in the same place and guartees [sic.] to comfort the inner man."

Mr. Aycock began advertising in the Wilson Times. His ad stated nearly the same thing as the news article. The ad stated that the business was located on Goldsboro Street.

Wade Hampton Aycock, born May 23, 1866, died November 2, 1901, son of Jacob and Charlotte Aycock, was buried in the Aycock Cemetery on Black Creek Road in Wayne County. His parents were also buried there: Jacob Aycock, born August 6, 1829, died 1898; and Charlotte Aycock, born July 22, 1834, died November 18, 1909 (double marker).

The Nashville Graphic, No date

Wilson, N.C., March 2,-- A most shocking tragedy occurred this morning in Spring Hill Township near Buckhorn Church. Bill Lewis, who is said to have been on a drunker debauch for more than a week and who has on several occasions, it is reported, threatened to kill his whole family, killed his wife in a most horrible manner. While she was delivering a message to her son, Lewis went up behind her and struck her a blow on the head with an axe. He then attacked the son with a butcher knife. Lewis then took to the woods and was not seen again until yesterday morning, when he was captured by the officers, who have been searching for him since the foul deed.

Was Going to Eat Bear Meat.

Plummer Williams who shot at George Farmer on the 30th of September was tried before Mr. W. R. Wood Esquire this morning and sent to jail.

George lives on Mr. J. D. Farmer's farm on the Saratoga road and Mr. Daniel Lucas the principal witness who lives on Mr. Amos Hayes place was the principal witness.

Mr. Lucas is a veteran of the Civil war and rode through the yankee lines and back again. When General Lee heard of it he wanted to promote him for bravery, but Mr. Lucas explained to the General that it was not his fault but the horse he was riding which he could not control.

Mr. Lucas testified that Plummer borrowed a gun from him to shoot a bear up the road and thinking that a bear had escaped from Haag's show here on that day he loaned him the gun, believing he would get a hind quarter of bear meat and the skin from which he expected to make a buggy robe.

[Editor's notes: Amos Hayes, born November 1854, farmer; and his wife of twenty-two years, Loumisa, born May 1861, eight births, seven living children; lived in Gardner's Township according to the 1900 Wilson County census. Their children Geneva, born February 1879, married three years, two births and one living child; John W., born September 1882; Nathan T., born May 1884; Narcissus, born March 1886; Andrew J., born May 1889; and Mary Lee, born July 1899; lived with them.

Nothing was found against four of the prisoners and they were discharged. The evidence was so conclusive against the other two, Elijah Joyner and Caphas Langley, both colored, that they were committed to jail for trial at the next term of the Superior court.

The Dongola Murder.

After the arrest of three more negroes charged with the murder of Bob Turnage at Dongola several weeks ago, and after two detectives had been at work on the case for several days, the preliminary hearing was had last Monday in Greenville.

After the examination of the detectives and of the defendants and the witnesses, the solicitor moved that as no evidence was appearing against Will Ellis, the white man, and the three negroes, Ben Dixon, Ben Johnston and Jim Dixon, they be released. This was done. Then the motion was made that the two negroes Eligah Joyner and Cephus Langley be bound over to court. This was also done. The Greenville Reflector of Wednesday comments as follows:

After the trial was over and the two prisoners were taken back to jail threats of lynching began to find expression. These became so pronounced that Sheriff Mooring concluded that for the safety of the prisoners it would be best to move them, so in the early part of the night he had them quietly taken from the jail and carried elsewhere for safe keeping. The case aroused considerable feeling, especially against Elijah Joyner, who is believed to have made many false statements both before and during his examination at the trial.

W. D. AND HATTIE L. CROCKER MAKE A STATEMENT REGARDING RUMORS

Wilson Daily Times*, December 26, 1911

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin, III

A STATEMENT

From Dr. Crocker and His Wife — Mrs. Crocker Came to Wilson Immediately After the Shooting and Has Been With Her Husband Ever Since.

This morning we received a message from Dr. Crocker and Mrs. Crocker to bring Mr. W. R. Wood to their rooms in the Sanatorium where Dr. Crocker is confined from the effects of the wounds he received on Saturday from the gun in the hands of his brother-in-law, Mr. Smith.

When we reached the room we found the doctor sitting up in bed eating dinner and he informed us that both he and this wife desired to make a sworn statement in order to contradict the current rumors as to the regrettable incident. We read over both statements which were sworn to by Dr. and Mrs. Crocker and their oaths were taken by Mr. Wood.

We are indeed glad to learn that the whole trouble is the result of a misunderstanding and that Dr. Crocker will soon be out.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Crocker were visibly affected and Mrs. Crocker is devoted to her husband and has been at his bedside every moment since Dr. Crocker was taken to the Sanatorium.

Their statements follow:

Dr. Crocker's Statement.

To Whom It May Concern:

Without any fear or compulsion whatever, from any source, I take pleasure in voluntarily informing the public, that the reports now coming to my ears from various sources and seemingly, current talk, with every one in our community, is a wilful [sic] and mischievous lie, manufactured and circulated by some dirty cowards and enemies who wish to do us serious harm. My wife is absolutely true to me, virtuous, honest and just and we have had no trouble whatever between us. Our neighbors, friends and enemies as well as our relatives have been misinformed. There has been peace, love and harmony existing between us always since our marriage up to the present hour.

Mrs. Crocker's Statement.

Of my own free will and accord I voluntarily make the following statement. That my husband, Dr. W. D. Crocker has been kind and good to me and that on no occasion has he ever tried to chastise me, the current reports are absolutely false. They have no grounds whatever for the existing rumors. Doubtless those reports are due to the intent of some one to break peace between us and our relatives we have lived in peace, love and harmony ever since our marriage.

MARY ANN WALL MURDER INQUEST

Wilson Daily Times, November 20, 1914

Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Inquest Held

Wilson Times, November 20, 1914

An inquest for further investigation to inquire into the suspicious circumstances of the death of Mrs. Mary Ann Wall was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock before Dr. Swindell.

At the inquest Louisa Walls, a daughter of the dead woman, stated that the last she saw of her mother before she was found next morning was when she went out with Moore after water.

Connie Walls stated that Grover Lucas and Harvey Williams came in about seven, and Wade Moore and Luther Watson came in later. Wade Moore was drinking. Grover Lucas and H. Williams left the house. Wade Moore came to my bed and began to talk and I told him to go away. He went to the fireplace and later went out with mother after water. We went to bed and did not know mother was dead until next morning. We left Luther Watson in the room. Mother never stayed out all night before. Thought she had gone to a neighbor's. Got up next morning and saw Wade Moore coming from the crib. Walked very fast. Brother Bennie reported there was a man in the crib and we all went out together and found mother. Bennie, the little boy, also testified to about as above and Minnie, another daughter about eleven, also testified. Bennie said he saw a man in the crib with black clothes on.

Grover Lucas, being sworn, stated he was 21 years old. He says that he and Harvey Williams went over and stayed until about nine. Wade and Watson came in and we left pretty soon. Luther had been to a corn shucking but was not drinking; Wade was drinking. Mrs. Walls gave Luther a cheroot or cigar and he smoked it. I talked with Mrs. Walls two hours and she appeared very well. I have been going there about three months. Don't think Moore was too drunk to know what he was doing. Moore has been there frequently.

Harvey Williams testified that he was 19. Knew Mrs. Walls three months. Went there Monday night with Grover Lucas. Everything like it always was. She seemed well and in good spirits. Wade Moore was drinking but Luther was not when they came in. We left at 9:15.

Luther Watson, who was with Wade Moore, testified he is 19 years old. Known Mrs. Walls four years. Never seen anything wrong with woman. Never seen her drink. Had been to corn shucking. Went to pay sociable call. Wade was drinking. Had no whiskey and if Wade had any did not know it. Mrs. Walls seemed well and in usual spirits. As far as her character is concerned and as far as I know it is good. Reached house at 9:30. Found Lucas, and the children went to bed. Wade said let's get a drink of water, and he and woman went out. I went home later after calling to Wade who did not reply. Asked if he did not think it strange that woman and Wade did not return, replied he did not think of it. Reached home about a mile away, at 12 o'clock. First time I saw Wade was yesterday when he came out of field from work.

Wade Moore was the next witness. He testified he went to the house with Gaston [sic] Watson. Is 23 years old. Known Mrs. Walls five or six years. She moves from place to place. I live half a mile from her. Went to corn shucking at Gaston Wilkinson's. Took two drinks of liquor and some wine. Some say Mrs. Walls' reputation bad for four years. Been a widow 3 or 4 years. Went out after water. We sat down on the doorstep. Came back and Luther was asleep on two chairs. Tried to wake him up. I left about 11 o'clock. While on doorstep talked about picking cotton. She had on stockings but no shoes. Did not go with her to corn crib. Did not take a drink at house; had bad whiskey and did not see her take a drink. Got up about 9 o'clock next morning and went to Lamm's Cross Roads to meet a party. Went by the Walls' house. Had bird dog with me. Heard of Mrs. Walls' death about 9 o'clock. Went in and viewed remains. Denied ever having illicit relations with the woman. Asked why young men went down there to see this woman, he replied, to have a time with the young girls. Went to Jake Lamm's and slept in the cotton that night. Lamm married my sister. There was no one at house there. Went next morning to Lamm's Cross Roads after load of fodder.

As we go to press the inquest had not been concluded.

[Editor's notes: In 1900, Porth Wall, born April 1850, farm laborer; and his wife of eighteen years Mary, born Jan. 1867, farm laborer; lived in the Town of Lucama. Mary had given birth to eight children and the five living children were Louetta, born Feb. 1887, farm laborer; Octavo, born Jan. 1888, farm laborer; Lula, born May 1892; Jart, born June 1896; and Louisa, born May 1899. All five were still living at home.

P. P. Wall, 39, married Mary Ann Balance, 23, both Spring Hill Township residents, on June 2, 1889, at the home of J. M. Howell, Spring Hill Township. The marriage was performed by John T. Revell, J. P., and witnessed by E. J. Barnes, J. M. Howell and S. J. Davis.

In 1800, Mary Ann Balance, 13, lived in the Springhill Township household of her parents Alvin Balance, 43, farmer; and his wife Sally, 35. Her siblings were Leroy, 19; Lindy J., 17; John W., 15; Loujena, 11; Stephen, 7; Catherine, 5; James A., 2; and Faddy G., 8 months, who all still lived at home.

Gaston T. Watson, born Dec. 1865, lived in the Springhill Township household of his mother Pennie Watson, born April 1836, widow, farmer. Her daughters Mary F., born Apr. 1877; and Zilphia C., born Sept. 1879; also lived in the household.

SEPTEMBER 2011 MEETING MINUTES

Sue Powell, President, welcomed guests and members to the meeting. She then introduced our speaker, J. "Jay" Arthur Evans, a WCGS member, who has been a Real Estate and Oil and Gas attorney for various public and private companies and is presently consulting for oil and gas exploration companies in Texas.

The topic of his presentation was "Oil and Gas Heir ? Are You Sure?" A power point presentation was given showing oil wells, charts, and exploration methods. A person can own the surface of his land but not the mineral rights underneath which could be owned by someone else. Mineral rights can be conveyed separately from the land. Laws have been passed to protect owners of both.

How is it determined who owns the mineral rights? Much like doing genealogy research, one has to look in many kinds of records. Some of them are Real Property Records, (Deeds), Probate Records, Tax Records. The search must go back in time to find unknown heirs.

Why do oil and gas companies care? They have to prove the owners and their percentage of ownership before they can drill for oil. They must find cousin's, aunt's, uncle's etc., whether or not they left a will. The State determines who gets what and how much.

Mr. Evans talked about different types of drilling and how computer programs help in the drilling process. He also talked about natural gas use and how in the west, vehicles are being converted to natural gas, and the process of removing natural gas from the earth. He explained the process used in Texas whereby a portion of the money escheated to the state goes to education and offered this as a method that North Carolina could use as well.

He described areas in our state that have been determined to have minerals that can be explored and mined and indicated that this would become a reality.

After a question and answer period, the business part of the meeting was conducted. The minutes were approved as written in June Trees. The treasurer's report was given. Sue gave the status of Trees indexes: 2010 mailed, 2008 not started, 2011 data entry has been begun.

The nominations of officers was presented. The committee has not found a person willing to serve as president. The vice-presidential nominee, Frances Roberson, has stated that she will withdraw if a presidential nominee has not been identified. The nominee for secretary is Carol Forbes and for treasurer is Wanda Taylor. Jerry Stancil is the nominee for the board. The presidential vacancy was discussed and Marion "Monk" Moore was nominated subject to his acceptance of the position. The nominations were left open to await his response.

New discoveries were described by Rusty Rains and Sue Powell. Announcements (see below) were made. The meeting was adjourned.

Carol Forbes for Frances Roberson

[Postscript: Mr. Moore declined the nomination.]

September WCGS Board Meeting

The board met with four members in attendance. The first order of business was the wonderful news that the copyright for Founding Families was received in August.

Our books have been scanned to USB drives and CDs in order that a master copy is preserved and print ready. The cost was $120.00. There was discussion about the Hugh B. Johnson files scanned for the same reason.

Due to work hours, Wanda will not be able to gather the material and get a calendar ready for printing this year. The cost last year, not counting Wanda's hours and preparation, was $716.00 and none of them have sold to off set some of the expense. Consequently due to the rising costs of printing and postage, the board decided not to print a calendar for 2012.

Also, due to lack of member participation in getting Trees ready for mail, the board decided to inquire about the cost of having the printer fold them before delivery. This would make a significant difference in the time needed to get Trees ready for mailing.

The lack of a nominee for the president's position was discussed and is of grave concern. Frances Roberson, the vice presidential nominee, has stated that she will withdraw if there is not a president.

Announcements were made about the annual state meeting on October 29th and that the State Library is closed on Monday's due to budget constraints.

The board adjourned.

Frances W. Roberson

November 2011 Volume 20 Number 10

President's Message

When I wrote last month, I was very concerned about the future of WCGS without a president. Carol Forbes has agreed to serve another term, so we have leadership for another year.

This does not change the fact that the same persons continue to serve and do the work to keep the society going. We need for other persons to step up with new ideas to keep WCGS vital and growing.

As my term as president ends, I wish to express appreciation to the officers and board for their support and involvement to keep us on track.

Special thanks go to Wanda Taylor who has kept the business end of WCGS—the treasury and membership roster and to Frances Roberson who has taken minutes and promptly written them for Trees.

Horace Peele and Carol Forbes, our Internet Coordinators, have done a great job maintaining our web site and e-group to share our Wilson County roots and connections. Carol has also served as our Information Director, answering our phone calls and the questions of the callers.

Sincere appreciation goes Bobby Boykin, Lisa Henderson, and Albert Page and others who contiributed articles for Trees, and Judy Pate who typed computer ready newspaper articles.

Thanks to Larry Gaissert who has promptly filled the orders and shipped our publications.

Thanks also to our members who give us feedback to let us know when we have done something that helped them.

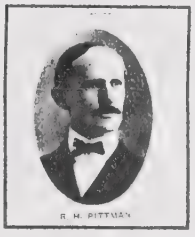
R. H. PITTMAN

Biographical History of Primitive or Old School Baptist Ministers of the United States
(Published in 1909, Reprinted in 1984)
Contributed by J. Robert Boykin

Pittman, Elder R. H., of Luray, Va., was born in Edgecombe County, N. C., August 20, 1870. His parents—R. E. and Sarah (Pitt) Pittman, were of English descent. He is the second son and third child of a family of ten children and was raised on a farm with the usual advantages of a common school education.



In youth he possessed a thirst for knowledge and an ambition to attain positions of honor and usefulness. His father being limited in "this world's goods," could not at the time give him a business or collegiate education, but did willingly permit him to leave home for the purpose of obtaining an education at his own expense. Feeling that "where there's a will, there's a way," he left his father's farm in his seventeenth year of age, entered school at Whitakers' Academy, where he, in addition to the ordinary courses, continued his study of telegraphy begun while on the farm and the following year entered business as railroad agent and telegraph operator, and before his twenty-first year of age had, by close economy and strict attention to business, paid his school expenses and about five hundred dollars to his father.

This youthful success is mentioned with the hope that it may inspire in others self-exertion and a loyal parental service, for though his parents did not require from him all he did for them during this period, yet he felt his service belonged to them while he was under age, and feels he has learned by experience that one is never the loser, but is blessed, in such service.

About this time he took up the study of law, but soon became disinterested in law and greatly interested in religion; so much so, that he could not rest with a clear conscience until he went before the Primitive Baptist Church called Hopeland, in North Carolina and asked for a home among those dear people. This was December 31, 1892, and the following day amid ice and snow he was baptized by Elder A. J. Moore, was licensed in 1893 and ordained in 1900.

In 1893 he was given a year's leave-of-absence by his employers—the A. C. L. Ry. Co., which time he spent in the University of North Carolina, after which he resumed his work with above company, at Bishopville, S. C. [He] continued with them until 1906, when he resigned all business connection and the care of churches in South Carolina in order to serve churches in Virginia, where he is now located.

Before his ordination to the ministerial work Elder Pittman took an active interest in the moral, intellectual and business up-building of his home town, and has, since taking the care of churches, manifested the same interest, and when not engaged in his ministerial duties has labored in other callings.

He has in the past held several positions in R. R. service; served as a member of the board of directors of State Bank, and of various corporations; president of cotton seed oil mill, member of legislature of South Carolina (sessions 1904-05); president literary and debating society, lieutenant in home company of (S. C.) state militia, etc.; yet feels that all worldly pursuits should be subservant to, and sacrificed for, the work of the ministry when they materially conflict. In 1896 he was married to Miss Eunice Elizabeth Barnes—a true and loyal companion, and they have four children—Dalton, Leland, Virginia and Groveen, to cheer their pathway and brighten their home.

We are having nice weather at this time.

There have been several arrests made in the Turnage murder case.

Wilbanks Letter.

Aug. 10, 1897.

TO THE EDITORS OF WILSON TIMES:

Mr. J. R. Wiggins is very sick and continues to grow worse.

Mr. Richard Baker of Gardners, was sent to the Asylum at Raleigh, some time ago; the cause of his insanity is thought to be bad health. His people have heard from him, and he does not improve any.

Mrs. K. L. Pender, widow of J. J. Pender, died the 2nd day of Aug. She was sick only 7 days. She has been a true member of the Primitive Baptist church for many years. Mrs. Pender was highly respected by all who knew her. Elder Wm. Woodard preached a very good sermon at her funeral. She leaves many friends and kindred to mourn her loss. To them we extend our heart felt sympathy.

Races.

The races last Monday afternoon were largely attended, considering the tobacco sales and the business in the city always attendant upon the sales.

In the first race, Nancy Patchen, owned by W. J. Davis, won in 1.22. The others participating in this race were Hustler, owned by Larry Bass, and Henry owned by Selby & Hare.

In the next race, Simon, owned by Jno. Corbett, and Cheerful owned by Lucien Hadley, each won two heats, and the race was not decided. The time was 1.26. The other horse participating was Fanny, owned by Calvin Brownley.

The third and last race was the one which everyone wished to see. Salome, a beautiful mare, owned by F. W. Barnes and having a record of 2.28, trotted against Annie F., a pretty clean limbed mare, owned by J. D. Farrior. The former won. Time 1.15½.

All the heats were half mile ones, the track was in pretty condition and all present enjoyed seeing the horses go round. But who does not like to see two pretty horses vieing [sic] with each other in an innocent race?

Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce met last Tuesday afternoon but the absence of [a] quorum prevented the transaction of any formal business. The plans for a new market house to be built near the present City Hall, were discussed and a committee appointed to get the sentiment of the members regarding it.

The canaling of Hominy Swamp and the enlarging of the present canal was urged and the same committee will get the sentiment of the members regarding this and submit the same to the city aldermen.

Those who know, or have heard of Messrs. M. J. Edwards and Dr. J. J. Both of the above named gentlemen are natives of Wilson county. Dr. Lawrence many years ago having run a little drug store in this place and manufactured the celebrated remedy "Ressadalis" which Mr. Edward's was also interested in. Mr. Edwards claimed a royalty on the medicine, and it not being forthcoming sued for the same with the above results. Dr. Lawrence has been a very successful man, being rated at a million or more, and now resides in St. Louis, Mo., publishing a medical journal and manufacturing several of his proprietary medicines. Two leading Wilson lawyers were in the case. Judge Connor representing the defendant and F. A. Woodard Esq., the plaintiff.

Runaway.

Last Tuesday, as Mr. Branch Bissett was driving into town down Park Avenue, the mule caught the line under its tail and becoming unmanageable, threw Mr. Bissett from the cart. In falling Mr. Bissett's head struck the wheel, causing a severe wound just above his eye. In turning the corner at Mr. Geo. D. Green's the cart was turned over and the mule thrown headlong. The harness was soon cut and the mule disentangled.

No damage was done to the mule or cart, but Mr. Bissett in addition to his painful wound, lost some of his tobacco.

The interment was made yesterday afternoon at four o'clock at the family burial ground about three miles from Wilson on the Finch Mill Road.

The deceased was an excellent young man, just twenty years of age. He had been ill only a few days and was in Wilson last week.

The pall bearers were Messrs. G. W. Proctor, George Amerson, Larry Amerson, Redman Petway, Andrew Moore and Charles Williams.

[Editor's notes: Elisha Barnes, 21, married Rosa Hill, 18, on November 11, 1890, at the home of W. B. Ruffin in Wilson Township. F. L. Farmer, J. P., performed the ceremony, and B. D. Braswell, J. P. Amerson, and Albert Anderson were the witnesses.

RUBY LEE BELL

Ruby Lee, the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Bell and granddaughter of Mrs. Jesse Dildy died Wednesday morning of infantile paralysis. The funeral was conducted by Rev. G. F. Smith, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. The burial occurred in Maplewood cemetery.

[Editor's notes: The Maplewood Cemetery grave marker for Ruby Lee Bell, born September 14, 1908, died November 10, 1911, daughter of G. C. and Mittie Bell, seems to indicate that either the obituary or the grave marker bears an incorrect date.

The Maplewood Cemetery office records indicate the burial of Cleveland Bell (no date) and M. L. Bell, interred September 20, 1923, who may have been her parents. There is not a marker of either of them.

In 1900, Grover C. Bell, born August 1885, student, lived with his parents George W. Bell, born February 1862, carpenter; and his wife of eleven years, Margaret, born January 1865, one birth, one living child; in Wilson Township—ED 126.

George Bell, 25, married Margarett Gardner, 30, on September 23, 1889, at the residence of R. J. Taylor. The ceremony was performed by R. J. Taylor, minister of the Disciples Church, and the witnesses were S. A. Taylor, M. A. Taylor, and B. T. Drake.

MARY ELIZABETH CARLISLE

Wilson Times, October 18, 1911

In Memoriam

Born Aug. 10th, 1856, died, October 13th, 1911, Mary Elizabeth Carlisle in her 55th year, of appendicitis. She was the daughter of Jack and Arcenie Satterthwaite who still survive her. She leaves not only her aged parents to mourn her loss but a husband, four children (2 sons and 2 daughters) Nora A. Thompson, of Wilson, N. C., Bessie L. Cobb, of Tarboro, N. C., and Johnnie B. and Thomas W. Carlisle. For over 30 years she and her husband marched together side by side sharing and sharing alike the burdens that naturally fall upon those who undertake to raise up a family. In all of those years she carried her part of the burden without a murmur or complaint. She guarded quietly and faithfully the sacred trust that her Father entrusted to her keeping. She died a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, Tarboro, where she had resided for over 20 years. A good neighbor, a kind friend, a loving and devoted wife and mother is gone. She is not dead but sleepeth. One of the earth's flowers transferred from earth and transplanted in Heaven there to impart its sweet fragrance throughout the celestial realm.

We cannot call her back to us but we can get ready and go to her. She was taken with appendicitis, Aug. 29th 1911, and after her family physician had faithfully treated the case and as a result of his diagnosis decided it was a case where the only hope depended upon an operation. It was decided to bring her to Wilson Sanitarium. She was brought here Thursday, Sept. 14th, and operated on immediately upon her arrival at the hospital. To the credit of those at the hospital in charge of the case, we concede the fact that the operation so far as efficiency and duty faithfully rendered goes, it was a marked success, but the infection had evidently gotten so deeply rooted before being brought to the hospital that even the operation and faithful service so beautifully rendered did not save her.

A Card of Thanks

We desire to express our most sincere thanks and appreciation to Drs. Moore and Dickerson for the very skilled and proficient manner in which they handled the case.

To kind friends and neighbors we are more than grateful for the many marked evidences of sympathy, helpfulness, and friendship offered us throughout the entire trying ordeal.

Lastly but by no means least we desire to take off our hats and make our most profound bow to Miss Sanforh and her very kind and faithful nurses. We are at a loss for words with which to express our deep sense of appreciation and gratitude. May the richest benedictions of Heaven attend you as you go along through life so kindly, lovingly and patiently administering to the wants and needs of suffering humanity. May the crowning epoch of such lives in this world be "the Life Beautiful" in the world to come.

Yours in sorrow,

L. S. THOMPSON,

HARVEY WATSON

Wilson Times, October 4, 1911

Brother Harvey Watson.

With much sadness I wish to announce the death of brother Harvie Watson which occurred Sept. 27th, 1911. He was about 25 or 26 years old, just in the prime of life. He united with the F. W. B. at St. Mary's church about three years ago. Harvie has been true to his church and true to his Sunday school. He always filled his place and done his duty, where ever he might be. Brother Harvie suffered with the typhoid fever about four weeks. He had several hemorrhags [sic] of course the poor boy drain to death. It was very hard to have him taken from us and at times yet when the days seems [sic] lonely and the nights longer, but we try to console ourselves with the fact that God doth all things well, and our loss is His gain. Brother Harvie was loved by his brothers, his sisters, father and mother, friends and neighbors. ... I stayed with Harvie on Monday and Monday night before he died on Tuesday morning about 7 o'clock and give him medicine but it didn't do any good. God had called him and he had to go like the rest of us have got to do. Watch and pray and be ready for God is going to call us some day. Like he did poor Harvie. ...

IN MEMORIUM
GRACE WILLIAMSON TURNER

There is a great void in our genealogy community with the death of Grace Turner. She had developed the passion for genealogy many years ago and became a fixture on Saturday mornings at State Archives. Her car carried a bumper sticker that read "Out of my way! Archives opens at 9." She worked with others to transcribe and publish many collections of records found there. She enjoyed plowing through court records and the variety of cases therein. She was always willing to assist others to find answers to their research problems. She was almost like a staff person because people turned to her for assistance.

When WCGS was started, she joined and became a mentor to the society and those of us who were new researchers. She contributed material for publication in Trees, typing abstracts of records that she found in Archives. Later, she pulled from her files dozens of photocopies of records that she had found in Archives that could be transcribed for use in Trees. With her experience with the old records, she could help decipher the difficult handwriting.

Grace will be greatly missed.

fellowship to the young sisters, the preacher announced that his purpose was to preach the funeral of Mr. R. M. Bissett who was a member of that church. His subject was, "Blessed are the dead," etc., and I tell you, Mr. Editor, he preached the biggest sermon that has been preached in old Pleasant Grove church in a long time.

Township. James S. Woodard, Sr., Baptist Minister, performed the ceremony, and Fannie Daniel, J. S. Woodard, Jr., and B. J. Thompson were the witnesses.

Their children Vina, born December 1896; and Rena, born September 1898; lived with them. His father William, born November 1830; and his wife of nine years Eleanor, born January 1839; also lived in the household.

NEW BOOKS

- J. Albert Bass has added the Wayne County 1900 Nahunta Township to his collection of census abstracts. The census entries are made consecutively by house number and contain ten columns of information. Also included are genealogical reports for those person related to him and an every name index. $13.00 + $5.00 s&h + 6.75% N. C. sales tax.
- Horace Peele has announced that he is in negotiations to have his book, The First Peelle Family in America, printed. He points out that this book is not strictly a genealogy book. It is primarily a history-event book on the family and a research book for others beginning their research containing many typed wills and lots of deed extracts. It is an important record of the growth of the Peele family within America. This book has some genealogy in it, but the actual genealogy book will come later. The book contains more than 500 pages. The price will be determined by the number of pre-publication orders that he receives. He suggested that it might be around $25 for a soft copy or $35 for a hard copy (both may not be available). If you are interested in purchasing one notify him by email at horace@peele.info .
- Bridger Family Chronicles, From the Old World to the New has been published by Linda Bridgers Boyette and Doris Bridgers Capps-Owens. It is a genealogical book beginning with Henry Brygger (1480) of Godalming, Surrey County, England, and includes twenty generations down to the present. Family surnames are Brygger, Brydgere, Bridger, Bridgers and Bridges. It contains maps, a timeline, a gazetter, wills, deeds, census records, tax lists, birth certificates, marriage records, death certificates and a 654 page genealogical report on 6,500 descendants. Proceeds from the sale of the book will be used to restore the graveyard of James William and Mary Elizabeth Bridgers located near Macclesfield, Edgecombe County, North Carolina. The book can be purchased on http://www.lulu.com/spotlight/Bridger . The hardcover book contains 799 pages and costs $80.00 + shipping + N. C. sales tax. It can also be downloaded for $39.99.
- Steward Dunaway has compiled a collection of books dealing with county records housed in the North Carolina State Archives. The original records are photographed and each image is included in these books. A short transcript is provided to allow for indexing. The collection includes general historical books , revolutionary war historical books, and books that are specific to one or several counties. Those which focus entirely on our parent counties are

  Edgecombe County Mill Records (1760-1868)
  Nash County Mill Records
  Nash County Bridge Records

The latter of these has already been purchased for and given to the Wilson County Public Library from the Memorial Fund. The other two will be purchased, and other books in the collection will be evaluated for purchase. Email at Sedunaway@embarqmail.com for more information.

OCTOBER 2011 MEETING MINUTES

The meeting was opened with a welcome to members and guests. Minutes were approved as written in the October issue of Trees. A brief treasurer's report was given by Wanda Taylor showing expenses of $341.12 and income of $142.12 for the past month. Much of the expenses were due to the conversion of our books from paper to digital cds and USB drives for backups and easier reprints. Right now both are at Sue Powell's but there will be three locations for safety reasons.

Sue reported work on data entry of the 2011 index has begun. The 2008 index has not been begun.

Lisa Henderson was in town recently. She and Joan Waddell worked on the Rest Haven Cemetery for two days recording information.

An incomplete list of officers was presented and nominations were made from the floor. The elected officers are

President: Carol Forbes
Vice President: vacant
Secretary: Debbie Webb
Treasurer: Wanda Tailor
Board Member: Jerry Stancil

Jeff Scott and Carroll Arthur are in continuing terms on the board.

Grace Turner and Sarah Kirby, both active contributors to WCGS, died recently. It was suggested that an article be written in Trees in honor of their work efforts through the years.

Several announcements were made of meetings and workshops. Horace Peele is publishing a book on the history of the Peele family and is taking prepublication orders.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Douglas Rader was introduced. He is a principal scientist of oceans and estuaries with an environmental defense firm. He is an oceanographer and an amateur archeologist and genealogist with family ties to early Stantonsburg through marriage into the Peacock family who were early settlers in the area.

Quoting Dr. Rader "Piecing together the story of early settlement around Stantonsburg is complicated-unusually-by the landscape and underlying hydrography, as well as the historical geography and changes in governance (i.e. the political dimensions of 'who's in charge') that occurred in this region during the colonial period."

Using maps following the conversion of changing lines in the areas, showing pictures of artifacts starting about 1740 when the lower Roanoke and Tar Basins were "largely full of colonists, and others were pushing rapidly into the northern Piedmont and southern Piedmont from Virginia and South Carolinas," Dr. Rader gave a wonderful background of the migration during that time frame.

Those in attendance had a special treat.

Following a question and answer period the meeting was adjourned.
